Tito Offers To Negotiate End of Feud With Soviet

Moscow Told All Differences Can Be Discussed, But To Keep Hands Off

Belgrade, Aug. 23 (AP).—Marshal Tito's government tonight said it is ready to end its feud with Russia—provided the Soviet Union keeps its hands off Yugoslavia's affairs.

In a stiff note to Moscow, the Belgrade regime declared its preparedness to reach a settlement with Russia on "all disputed questions."

Replying to two Soviet protests that Tito's regime had imprisoned and tortured 31 Russian citizens, the note offered to let those Russians go home. The offer holds good for all other Soviet nationals who want to leave Yugoslavia.

The Russians were jailed, the note added, because they "seriously violated the laws of Yugoslavia by their espionage and hostile activities."

Far Beyond Immediate Issue

The Yugoslav reply went far beyond the immediate issue of Soviet prisoners, however. It reiterated that Tito is ready to negotiate with Moscow on a settlement of all points of difference that have cropped up during the 14-month-old scrap that began when the Cominform declared him an outcast because of his alleged anti-Soviet and nationalistic attitude.

(Yugoslavia's peace gesture was made after a mountain of propaganda had been piled up against Marshal Tito by Russia and her Cominform associates on the heels of Moscow's threat to take "more effective measures" to protect her citizens in the southern Slav country. Moscow charged Saturday that the Ttio regime was a Fascist enemy of the Soviet Union and communism throughout the world.

(Following up this theme, the official Red Army newspaper in Berlin Tuesday declared Tito had founded a terror regime on the Gestapo model and would suffer the same fate "as Hitler and Mussolini, but this time much quicker."

(The Communist press in Czechoslovakia, in a similarly threatening tone, declared the Tito government "a Fascist threat to peace-loving nations" and warned that it was the policy of the Soviet Union to "exterminate fascism wherever it may appear—now as during the war."

(Moscow cartoonists pictured Tito as a Fascist executioner with an ax in his hand and as a cobra dancing to the tune of Wall Street.

(Romanian Vice Premier Gheorghe Gheorghiu Dej accused him of "plotting to set ablaze again the Balkan powder keg."

(As a result of the intensified propaganda offensive, some diplomatic observers in Belgrade have been wondering and worrying whether a showdown might be near in which force would be used.)

Conditions Stated

In its new note, Yugoslavia said disputed questions would have to be settled "in accordance with, and in the spirit of, the international obligations undertaken by both governments."

Furthermore, the Yugoslav people "are under no conditions willing to allow anyone whomsoever to

Feldman Denies Unfair Aid to Hunt; Counterattack Prepared by Vaughan

Truman Aide Ready To Hit Back With Charges of His Own

By Edward T. Folliard
Post Reporter

It looks as if there'll be fireworks when Maj. Gen. Harry H. Vaughan testifies at the 5-percenter inquiry this week.

The ebullient White House military aide will be ready with a counterattack when the Senate Investigations Subcommittee calls him to Capitol Hill, probably Thursday.

He is prepared to challenge the motives of some witnesses who have testified against him, and to make some charges of his own—against witnesses and perhaps others.

Sees Truman Attacked

He is prepared also to state that partisan politics has been a factor in the hearings, with attacks on himself really being aimed at President Truman.

General Vaughan has followed the investigation closely from the outset. He is understood to be impressed by the fact that it was brought about by The New York Herald-Tribune (Independent Republican).

It was a story by Jack Steele, a member of the Washington bureau of the Herald Tribune, published June 21, that led Chairman Hoey (D., N. C.), of the Senate Investigations Subcommittee, to call for "a complete investigation of all the facts."

What Sparked Inquiry

Steele's story told of the claims of James V. Hunt, Washington management counselor, to close friendship with General Vaughan and others in high Government posts, and also of Hunt's boasts of profitable deals he had made for clients through "influence."

The story was based on information supplied by Paul Grindle, a manufacturer, of Framingham, Mass. Grindle was a reporter on the Herald Tribune in 1945-46.

Grindle eventually told his story to the Senate subcommittee. He said that Hunt, in agreeing to seek Government contracts for his factory, asked for $1000 down, $500 a month as a retainer, and 5 per cent of any contract obtained from the Government.

Gave Data to Paper

Grindle paid Hunt $1000, and then broke off with him. He kept a record of all his conversations with Hunt, and turned them over to the Herald Tribune.

General Vaughan, in preparing his own case, has given a good deal of attention to Grindle, and also to another witness—Herbert C. Hathorn, formerly a minor official of the Department of Agriculture, now a Washington lawyer associated with an economist in the "consulting business."

It was Hathorn who told the investigators how General Vaughan called him up at Agriculture on behalf of a client of John Maragon's, and implied that he could help him in his Government career or "get" his job.

Inquiries by Vaughan

General Vaughan is understood to have made some inquiries about Hathorn's activities after leaving the Government service.

Senator McCarthy (R., Wis.) a member of the subcommittee, appeared to be anticipating General Vaughan's appearance yesterday when he warned against "personal attacks on the committee."

Such attacks, McCarthy said, would simply be an attempt to divert the attention of the public from what the committee is trying to do—to make it possible for small businessmen to deal with the Government without paying large fees to "contact" men, and to shed "the bright light on any graft or corruption."

Not Merely a Contest

The Wisconsin Republican said he hoped that the public would realize that the investigation is not

As Dewey Cast Shadow

Political Tightrope Walking Revealed by Hunt's Letters

James V. Hunt, 5-and-10-percenter, told a client during the 1948 presidential campaign that he would be in "a better position than before" if Gov. Thomas E. Dewey, Republican nominee, were elected. After the election, Hunt said that he had been "loyal" to President Truman all the time, so that "our relationship is even closer than heretofore."

Hunt's gyrations in the '48 campaign were reflected in letters which evoked much hilarity when read at yesterday's hearing before a Senate subcommittee investigating "influence peddlers."

Extracts follow:

OCT. 13, 1948—"If Dewey is elected (and the betting is 15 to 1) then I am in even a better position than before. I'm sure you will recall that many of my good friends on the Hill were Republicans. They are now in the most powerful spots and will be even more potent with a Republican President. Some of these men have had long conferences with Dewey and are to be very close to him in the the event he wins. And I'll be close to them."

NOV. 23, 1948, three weeks after the election—"The White House group has been most kind to me. We can abolish red tape quickly and usually deal direct on most any problem with the people who can (and do) make decisions. . . . We like Washington and enjoy the variety of problems that come to us. It has been very remunerative. Though we are non-partisan in politics, we have been close to and loyal to Mr. Truman personally, so our relationship is even closer than heretofore . . ."

Dec. 29, 1948, transcript of a telephone conversation between Ray McGreevey of Chicago, and Hunt

McGreevey—"How well do you know and how close are you to Truman?"

Hunt—"I had a nice assurance after the election. I won't tell you over the telephone. I was in the van, down the line. We went through with him all the way. It's going to be a great thing. You do not do things with him. The official family are my friends. There are going to be a lot of changes after the Inauguration . . ."

William P. Rogers, chief counsel for the Senate subcommittee, said Hunt's statements were put into the record to show how a 5-percenter had to adapt himself to the political tides.

Credentials Questioned

Dixiecrats Threaten '52 Bolt If Ousted From Committee

By The Associated Press

States Righters threatened yesterday to fight the National Democratic Party again in 1952 if they are ousted from the National Committee for bolting President Truman on the civil rights issue last year.

They were told that under party rules the committee is required to remove from its membership those who failed to support the regular Democratic ticket.

The Southerners who bolted the Truman ticket in 1948 to support the States Rights candidacy of Governor J. Strom Thurmond of South Carolina stated their case at a long closed session of the credentials committee. Pro-Truman forces sought to replace some of them.

The credentials group, headed by Frank McHale of Indiana, will make its report to the National Committee today in open session. With this hot fight disposed of, the committee will proceed to elect a successor to Chairman J. Howard McGrath, who is entering the Cabinet as Attorney General.

Boyle Sure of Election

This election is a foregone conclusion. William M. Boyle, jr., of Kansas City, Mo., has no opposition for the chairmanship. He has the backing of President Truman and McGrath.

Besides seating controversies from Alabama, Louisiana, Mississippi, South Carolina and Texas, the credentials committee was asked to recommend filling of a vacancy in Wisconsin. There, Robert Tehan has resigned to go on the Federal bench. Carl Thompson of Madison has been nominated to succeed him.

The Alabama and Louisiana cases were the first heard. The credentials committee did not start until late afternoon and newsmen had to get what information they could from witnesses as they left the hearing.

Marion Rushton, Alabama committeeman and States Righter, had resigned. But he appeared at the hearing on instructions from some members of the State committee who had voted against accepting his resignation. This group also instructed him to fight the civil rights program against which many Southerners revolted last November.

1896 Rule Is Recalled

Rushton told reporters he made a factual presentation. He said he was officially seated as a committee member last year after being elected by a direct vote of the people of his State and that he had heard nothing yesterday to indicate he didn't still have the seat. No one appeared to try to replace him.

The credentials committee cited a party rule dating back to 1896 which, officials said, required the National Committee to expunge from its membership those who did not support the nominees of the national convention.

Priest Suggests Setting Up Lonely Hearts Offices Here

By Martha J. Hall
Post Reporter

Reputably-sponsored introduction bureaus through which single and widowed men and women could meet were suggested yesterday by a Catholic priest noted as an adviser on marriage.

Large numbers of commercial lonely hearts clubs, the Rev. Edward Dowling of St. Louis said, are an indication of the need for such bureaus.

Father Dowling, a leader of Cana Conferences for married and engaged couples, is one of 20 members of the Summer School of Catholic Action now in progress at Georgetown University. The traveling summer school is sponsored by the Sodality of Our Lady in St. Louis.

During the war, Father Dowling said, such a nonprofit introduction agency existed in Newark, N. J., under the sponsorship of community leaders. Through it, he said, a registered young man could meet a girl with similar education, interests, and general background.

Two of the major needs of such a bureau are dignity and integrity, Father Dowling said. Dignity would come from its sponsorship by socially acceptable people, integrity from backing by church groups.

In Newark it was found that the first qualification asked for by over 90 per cent of the applicants was

Ammunition Ship Explodes, Kills 500 In Formosa Port

Canton, Aug. 23 (AP).—An ammunition ship blew up today in the Formosan port of Takao, killing or injuring 500 persons and spreading ruin along the waterfront, the official Central News Agency said.

A succession of blasts terrorized the city. A darkening cloud of smoke hung over the port. The agency reported nearly every window in Takao was shattered by the blasts.

(No recent population figures are available on Takao. It is, however, one of the most important ports for the Chinese Nationalists on Formosa. It was a big Japanese naval base during the war.)

The agency said a crew was unloading the 3300-ton Chungli. About three-fourths of its cargo of ammunition had been removed when the first explosion came. It was followed quickly by a series of others.

Army Supply Chief Affirms Integrity In 5-Percent Probe

Maj. Gen. Herman Feldman, who in 38 years rose from private to Quartermaster General of the Army, denied yesterday that he gave an "unfair advantage" to clients of James V. Hunt, management counselor. He told the Senate subcommittee investigating 5-percenters that no firm represented by Hunt "ever did receive any quartermaster contract."

He said that he may not have been "100 per cent correct" in all of his decisions, but he asked the Senators to believe that he had acted in what he regarded "as the best interests of the Government."

"Ready to Justify Actions"

"I am prepared to justify every action I have taken and every decision I have made," he said.

Before Gen. Feldman took the witness stand, a "Dear Jim" letter which he wrote to Hunt on July 23, 1947, was read into the record. This accompanied a "preview" of the Quartermaster Corp's spending program for clothing and equipage for the fiscal year 1948. Gen. Feldman told Hunt in the covering letter that he hoped it would be a "good guide" for him, and closed with these words:

"While the above information is not considered secret, I consider it advisable that it be considered as between us, confidential."

Letter Not Confidential

Gen. Feldman, testifying yesterday, said:

"But I earnestly submit that it was not in truth confidential.'

It was General Feldman's 1947 letter to Hunt, together with the program for Quartermaster Corps buying, that led Secretary of the Army Gray to suspend him last month on the ground that he furnished "procurement information under circumstances which appear irregular."

Also introduced into the record yesterday, before General Feldman's appearance, were the following:

A letter which General Feldman sent to Brig. Gen. Wayne R. Allen, Army purchasing agent in Los Angeles, Calif., on November 19, 1947. This was in response to General Allen's request for information about Hunt, and contained the line: "I might add that Hunt has ready entree to the White House."

A letter from General Feldman to a Chicago businessman, who evidently had a friend who wanted to hire Hunt. General Feldman told him that Hunt was a very busy man, but that if his friend (Alexander Land) called by telephone it would "clinch the deal."

Hunt Drafted Cablegram

A copy of a cablegram which Gen. Feldman sent to Gen. Douglas MacArthur's quartermaster officer in Japan after Hunt, at Feldman's suggestion, had drafted the cablegram. It had to do with a building contract being sought by a Hunt client.

A postscript from Feldman to Hunt addressed to "Jim" and signed "Herman," accompanying a memorandum that was a part of the official Quartermaster Corps file.

When this last was introduced as evidence, Senator Mundt (R., S. Dak.), remarked that it seemed a "shabby" way of handling Government business.

General Brannon Testifies

Brig. Gen. Ernest M. Brannon, assistant judge advocate in charge of procurement, testified before General Feldman. He said if any "favoritism" could be found by the committee, it would be contrary to a directive which the then Secretary of the Army Kenneth C. Royall sent to General Feldman.

General Brannon did not say that General Feldman had shown favoritism to Hunt.

Asked specifically, however, if it would be "improper" to give information about the Army's buying plans to one, two or three individ-

Probe Seeks 'Hush' Diary Of Forrestal

B-36 Investigators Hear 'Very Highly Placed Person' Has Detailed Record

House B-36 probers said yesterday they had word of the existence of a detailed, heretofore unknown diary kept by the late Secretary of Defense James Forrestal.

Committee Counsel Joseph Keenan disclosed that he is trying to run down the secret diary and said he was informed it is "in the custody of a person in very high place." He said the report has not been checked but that if the document exists it may be pertinent to the current inquiry.

This revelation came as Louis Johnson, present Secretary of Defense, branded charges made against him by Representative James E. Van Zandt (R., Pa.) and in an anonymous document before the House Armed Services Committee as "lies" and "entirely false."

"Attempt to Scare Me"

He declared such "terroristic accusations" were employed by "those opposing unification in an attempt to scare me into backing away."

Johnson made no reference to Van Zandt by name, nor did he identify who is "opposing unification." But he did say that the "Government has been hurt and the armed forces hurt by charges aired on the floor." Van Zandt in a House speech reported "ugly rumors" affecting B-36 procurement and Johnson.

"The tendency to malign and defame," he declared, "to assassinate the reputations of public officials is to me much the same as a new-growing and dangerous cancer."

Throughout Johnson's coldly angry testimony, Van Zandt sat in his seat, shading his eyes from the newsreel kleig lights with his hands. The Pennsylvanian left the chamber after the hearing without asking Johnson a question or uttering a word.

Calls Charges False

Several times Johnson seemed intent on baiting his adversary into an answer. Chairman Carl Vinson (D., Ga.) apparently had the same idea. He asked the Secretary to comment directly not only on the anonymous document but on Van Zandt's speech. Johnson termed each one "false."

First mention of the possible existence of a secret diary kept by the late Secretary of Defense came during questioning of Marx Leva, general counsel of the Department of Defense. Leva was a special assistant to Forrestal, who jumped to his death from the Bethesda Naval Hospital tower last May 22, while being treated for "nervous exhaustion."

"Counsel has received word of the existence of an exhaustive diary maintained by the late Mr.

Dover, England, Wednesday, Aug. 24 (AP).—Philip Mickman, 18-year-old English schoolboy, completed swimming the English Channel early today after being in the water 23 hours and 13 minutes.

He waded ashore at Kingsdown, seven miles northeast of Dover at 5:33 a.m., British summer time (11:33, EST, Tuesday night), his associates said.

After reaching shore, the Yorkshire schoolboy, boarded the boat that accompanied him on the grueling swim and returned to Dover.

House Education Unit to Meet Today on U. S. School Aid Bill

By Mary Spargo
Post Reporter

Acting over the protests of its chairman, a majority of the members of the House Education and Labor Committee have scheduled a meeting today to consider a Federal-aid-to-education bill.

A freshman House member, Representative Hugo L. Sims (D., S. C.) led the revolt against Chairman John Lesinski (D., Mich.), and obtained 13 signatures on a petition to hold the session. Lesinski had announced he would call no session for the purpose of considering legislation, but under House Rules a committee majority can call a meeting if the chairman refuses.

Sims warned that the fact that 13 members signed the petition did not mean that all were agreed on the type of legislation needed.

The 13 were united primarily, he said, in opposition to Lesinski's "arbitrary" refusal to schedule a committee session to consider bills.

Lesinski has called two informal "round-table" discussions with representatives of various religious, racial, and educational groups interested in the questions, but has not permitted members to vote.

A three-hour session yesterday apparently led to little but a reemphasis of all the differences, religious and otherwise, facing lawmakers trying to legislate on this issue.

After it closed, Dr. Joseph M. Dawson, a representative of four national Baptist groups, an-

PUC Upholds Fay's Removal Of Telephones

The telephone company's controversial tariff section providing for removal of telephones suspected of use in abetting gambling was upheld by the District Public Utilities Commission yesterday.

But the PUC ruled that a subscriber must be informed of his right to appeal to the PUC when he is notified that his service will be discontinued.

At such an appeal, the PUC "will determine the applicability of the tariff in the specific instance."

The disputed section of the Chesapeake and Potomac Telephone Company's tariff reads: "The service is furnished subject to the condition that it will not be used for an unlawful purpose. Service will not be furnished if any law enforcement agency, acting within its jurisdiction, advises that such service is being used or will be used in violation of the law, or if the Telephone Company receives other evidence that such service is being or will be so used."

The section was attacked as "capricious and arbitrary, constituting a denial of right without

Senate Group Votes Arms For 5 Nations

West Europe Funds, Aid to China Issues Still Await Decision

By Murrey Marder
Post Reporter

Senate committee approval yesterday was given to the less controversial portions of the Administration's arms-aid plans—funds for Greece, Turkey, Iran, Korea and the Philippines.

The two most hotly contested aspects of the arms dispute, the amount of funds for western European members of the North Atlantic Treaty, and the question of new aid to China, are yet to be decided.

Chairman Tom Connally (D., Tex.) said the combined Senate Foreign Relations-Armed Services Committee is making good progress on the arms measure. Final action may be taken by Thursday.

The committee approved without change, as the House did last week, $211,370,000 for military assistance to Greece and Turkey, and a total of $27,640,000 for Iran, Korea and the Philippines.

A Republican stamp was placed on the bill in the form of several amendments, with a number of others still to be considered.

The committee approved an amendment sponsored by Senators Vandenberg (R., Mich.), and Dulles (R., N. Y.), giving Congress equal power with the President to cut off aid to any nation. The congressional action could be by concurrent resolution of the House and Senate.

Another Vandenberg - Dulles amendment that was accepted provides that no assistance shall be given any nation if it "would contravene any decision of the Security Council of the United Nations . . ."

This specification was in addition to language that would permit the President to withhold aid if he himself determines it would be inconsistent with action by the U. N.

The committee also accepted amendments by Senator Smith (R., N. J.) restating United States policy to work for universal regulation and reduction of world armament and to provide the U. N. with its own armed forces.

Another accepted amendment sponsored by Senator Tydings (D., Md.), and similar to one approved by the House, provides that at least 50 per cent of all arms shipped under the program will be transport-

Cuts to Affect District Area Less Than Elsewhere

3000 Face Dismissal In Potomac River Command, Some in Army, AF Here

By John G. Norris
Post Reporter

Well over 100,000 civilian employes of the Nation's military forces will lose their jobs under orders to be announced today.

Deputy Secretary of Defense Stephen Early confirmed reports of such an impending cutback and said the Department of Defense was preparing an announcement of the Navy yards, air bases and Army establishments affected.

From other sources, The Washington Post learned that there will be firings of employes working in this area, but that local establishments will be hit less hard than elsewhere.

At Least 3000 in Area Affected

One responsible official gave a rough estimate that some 3000 civil workers of the Potomac River Naval Command will be discharged. The Navy, with its Gun Factory and other sizable industrial plants at Indian Head, Md., and Dahlgren, Va., employs far more than the Army and Air Force in this area.

However, as the layoffs will be spread over the entire country, such establishments as Andrews and Bolling Air Force bases, the Army Medical Center and War College probably also will be affected.

Some cuts at the Pentagon are planned, but the Department of Defense Civil Service workers probably will be hit only lightly at this time. The brunt of the present reduction is on the field establishments of the Army, Navy and Air Force.

Reserve Officers to Go

Civilian workers are not the only ones affected. There will be sizable cuts in officer personnel, The Washington Post was informed. This will be accomplished by releasing reservists to inactive duty.

A considerable number of enlisted personnel on duty here, in the Navy and probably the other services, will be transferred to duty elsewhere, it was learned. There will be an over-all cut in the enlisted strength of the armed services but this will be accomplished gradually by accepting fewer enlistments to replace men released at the expiration of their hitches.

Contrary to prevalent reports, the cutback now planned will not lay up Navy ships. The Washington Post was informed. While plans to reduce the active fleet are under study in connection with next year's budget, the current reduction concerns the support forces—not tactical units.

Long Beach Yard Doomed

One Navy yard—that at Long Beach, Calif.—will be shut down entirely, it was learned. Others will suffer heavy cuts, particularly on the West Coast. Many ships have been transferred from the Pacific to the Atlantic Fleet in recent months, reducing the overhaul and repair work load at western yards.

The Charleston, S. C., shipyard, reportedly on the list for closing, is not so affected, it was learned. It will suffer a personnel reduction like other establishments, however.

"Several" Air Force bases will be closed, it was learned, and probably some naval air stations.

Secretary of Defense Louis Johnson has invited Congressmen who have yards, bases or camps to be affected in their districts to come to the Pentagon today to get a preview of the economy announcement. One reason is to familiarize them with the facts so they can answer local complaints.

Lights were burning all night at the Pentagon as officials prepared the detailed data to present to the Congressmen.

Armed forces chiefs were reluctant to talk about the orders before Johnson reveals them to the Senators and Representatives. Dep-

European Council Debates Currency

Ten Nations Start Pact Organization

By The Associated Press

On the eve of the legal beginning of the North Atlantic Alliance, representatives of 10 of the 12 member nations met yesterday to begin planning for the organization of the western world provided in the treaty.

The pact will come into force today when France's ratification is deposited with the United States in a White House ceremony. President Truman will sign a proclamation declaring the treaty in force at 12:30 p.m.

The State Department disclosed that a "working group" of Atlantic Pact diplomats met there yesterday to begin forming the council of 12 nations which, in turn, will establish the defense committee under the treaty.

Perkins Represents U. S.

Assistant Secretary of State George W. Perkins represented the United States at the session, which also was attended by representatives of Britain, Canada, France, Belgium, The Netherlands, Portugal, Italy, Norway and Denmark. Only Iceland and Luxembourg were unrepresented.

Of the seven nations which drafted the treaty, France is the last to deposit its ratification. The treaty provides that it becomes effective when all those seven have notified the United States of ratification.

Notice Today From Three

Other nations which still have to give this notice, and are expected to do so at today's ceremony, are Portugal, Italy, and Denmark. Those countries, together with Iceland and Norway, which already have deposited their ratifications, compose the five nations which joined the treaty by invitation after it was substantially completed.

The State Department made this announcement about yesterday's meeting:

"A working group composed of representatives of the North Atlantic Treaty nations met at the Department of State today and began a study designed to produce recommendations to be submitted to the respective governments on the organization to be established under the treaty.

Meeting Date To Be Set

"This working group, in addition to discussing the organization will also recommend a date and location for the first meeting of the council established by Article 9 of the Treaty.

"The working group sessions will be closed, and no information as to the substance of these discussions can be made public until the governments have considered the recommendations of the working group, and the council has taken formal action to establish the organization under the North Atlantic Treaty.

"It is hoped the working group will be able to complete its task in a few weeks."

Strasbourg, Aug. 23 (NYHT)—Advocates of European union told the European Consultative Assembly today that an economic integration of the continent is urgent if Europe is to survive.

Paul Reynaud, former French premier, declared that the Organization for European Economic Cooperation had failed because it lacks political direction. He said such direction must be supplied by the Council.

Single Currency Urged

Reynaud urged the creation of a single European currency, which he acknowledged would involve an infringement on national sovereignties.

Several other speakers agreed that a single currency was necessary, and David Eccles, British Conservative member, proposed that it should be sterling, because "Sterling is Europe's traditional money of acount and only in sterling can Europe buy many of her raw materials."

Eccles argued that it would be a long time before European currencies could be convertible into dollars, and that Europe must frankly ask America to accept discrimination against the dollar while making European monies convertible into sterling.

British Policy Scored

Reynaud was sharply critical of the British government's proposed solution of the problem created by Europe's dollar crisis—import restrictions, austerity and autarchy. He asked, "How can we create a European market if one country barricades itself behind the walls of austerity?"

Hugh Dalton, a member of the Labor Government, answered in a speech devoted to demonstrating statistically that Britain had made better progress toward recovery than other European countries, and that Britain had helped the rest of Europe since the war with various forms of aid.

British Coal Mine Strike Called Off

London, Aug. 23 (AP).—Yorkshire coal mine elevator operators bowed tonight to the wishes of union chieftains and decided to call off their crippling four-day wildcat strike.

The Lancashire branch of the union, which is also on strike, was called into session to consider similar action.

The decision to end the strike followed a warning from Sir William Lawther, president of the National Union of Mineworkers, that the men would have to "pay the price for treason" if they continued the strike.

The strike began Saturday when about 800 elevator operators in Yorkshire walked out to enforce demands for higher pay. They were joined by 600 operators in Lancashire Monday.

The National Coal Board said about 220,000 tons of coal had been lost since Saturday.

Eisler Goes to Moscow

Berlin, Aug. 23 (UP).—Gerhart Eisler, German Communist leader who jumped bail and fled the United States, has gone to Moscow, the Soviet-licensed news agency ADN reported tonight.

He will attend a "Congress of the Friends of the Soviet Union" starting Thursday.

An 'Old Lie'

Nisei Blast Pearl Harbor Tipsy Charge

By The Associated Press

The Japanese-American Citizens (Nisei) League yesterday accused a British temperance leader of spreading "old lies" about drunkenness at Pearl Harbor on the eve of the Japanese attack.

In an open letter to H. Cecil Heath, general secretary of the United Kingdom (Temperance) Alliance, the league took exception to remarks Heath made Sunday at the convention of the Women's Christian Temperance Union in Philadelphia.

The letter said Heath repeated "the threadbare charge" that drunkenness was rampant among American military forces on the eve of the Pearl Harbor attack. The league objected particularly to Heath's comment that 55 per cent of the 841 licensed liquor dispensaries in Hawaii were operated by persons of Japanese ancestry.

"Thus, while not specifically charging persons of Japanese ancestry with any crime, you attempt by Machiavellian process of indirect inference to give some validity to the lie that Hawaiian Japanese apparently were cooperating with the Imperial Japanese government to sabotage this Nation," the letter said.

The letter added that the story of Pearl Harbor drunkenness "long ago was exploded by impartial observers." It pointed out that persons of Japanese ancestry make up a third of Hawaii's population.

"Thus, one normally could expect one third of the licensed liquor dispensaries in the islands to be operated by these persons . . .," the letter said.

Dock Strikers Await Bridges To Talk Peace

Honolulu, Aug. 23 (AP).—A Federal attempt to get peace talks going again today in Hawaii's 115-day dock strike was postponed until Wednesday.

The striking International Longshoremen's and Warehousemen's Union advised United States Mediator George Hillenbrand it will not meet with him until Harry Bridges arrives here.

Bridges, head of the ILWU, is flying back to Honolulu from San Francisco.

Hillenbrand met during the morning with the committee for the seven struck stevedoring companies. He was trying to find a new base for resuming negotiations. The talks were broken off Friday.

An employer spokesman said no decision was reached pending tomorrow's meeting with Hillenbrand and Bridges.

Bridges said in San Francisco he was willing to consider any offer from 1 to 26 cents an hour as a basis for new negotiations. The 2000 longshoremen of Hawaii demanded 32 cents an hour when they walked out May 1. The current wage is $1.40 an hour.

Swearingen, special assistant to the Attorney General who served as judge at the Nuernberg trials, will give an illustrated lecture on the war trial of Karl Brandt, Hitler's personal physician, at 12:15 today, before the Rotary Club of Washington. The club's luncheon will be held at the Mayflower Hotel.

Armed Forces Cut

London, Aug. 23 (AP).—The Ministry of Defense announced today that Britain's armed forces had dropped 16,100 in strength between April and July. The loss was not explained. Total strength July 1 was 769,900 men and women.

Chiang Arrives In Canton for Talks

Canton, Aug. 23 (AP).—Chiang Kai-shek arrived today for important civil war talks in an atmosphere of official nervousness over a possible Communist-inspired uprising in Canton.

Sources close to Chiang said the generalissimo had called a meeting for Wednesday of his 12-man Kuomintang (Nationalist Party) emergency council. This is a supreme war cabinet he created.

There was a rumor that the Generalissimo flew here from the island fortress of Formosa to put down any local peace deal with the Communists, who are only 170 miles away on the northeast.

Reliable reports are that some officials, who believe peace is the best way out, were behind the purported peace movement.

Nationalist authorities appear more worried over a possible uprising led by Reds than by the peace move.

Reports circulated that about 80 Communist sympathizers were arrested last week. Authorities wouldn't talk about the report. A later account suggested some of those involved were officers of the Kwangtung Province military headquarters.

Chiang flew here on such short notice that Acting President Li Tsung-jen and Premier Yen Hsi-shan had to motor at full speed to the airfield to get there in time to greet him.

An army spokesman said the situation was stabilized on the front east and west of Hengyang. Nationalist stronghold 265 miles north of Canton.

CHIANG KAI-SHEK

Red General Lin Piao was reported moving down reinforcements from the north for renewed assaults.

The spokesman said the front also was quiet on the northeast, where the Communists have made their closest approach to this refugee capital.

Delay of Red Trial for Probe Of Juror 'Prejudice' Refused

New York, Aug. 23 (U.P.)—Federal Judge Harold R. Medina refused to delay the Communist conspiracy trial today to allow a defense investigation of charges that one juror was prejudiced against communism.

Defense Attorney Harry Sacher asked for a 24 to 48-hour recess for an investigation to determine whether the defense would move for a mistrial or ask disqualification of the juror.

The juror was quoted in a dispatch appearing in the morning newspaper here, the Daily Compass, as saying: "We are already fighting a war with communism and it should be a fight to the death." The Compass identified the juror as Russell Janney, theatrical producer.

He allegedly made the statement in a speech at Macon, Ga., last February 21. The Communist court trial began on January 17, 1949, and was not in session February 21.

The court session was delayed while Medina heard arguments for the recess in his chambers. Afterward he told reporters:

"The matter has not progressed to a point where there is anything before us."

He commented that the 32-week-old trial was "approaching the last stages."

Another Petition Filed by Meyers Seeking Freedom

Counsel for former Maj. Gen. Bennett E. Meyers filed a new petition for a writ of habeas corpus in Alexandria Federal Court yesterday seeking release of Meyers from Lorton Reformatory.

The 54-year-old wartime Army Air Force procurement chief is serving 20 months to five years for persuading a witness to lie under oath to a Senate committee.

Meyers filed a similar petition in Alexandria July 13, challenging his conviction on the grounds that a quorum of the committee was not present when the alleged perjury occurred.

He cited the case of Harold Christoeffel, former labor leader, who was freed by the Supreme Court in June for that reason.

The first petition in Alexandria was denied on a technicality. A later motion in District Court here to vacate conviction and sentence was denied.

Death Sentence For 55

Athens, Greece, Aug. 23 (U.P.)—A military court at Florina sentenced 55 persons to death 11 to life imprisonment and 20 to lesser jail terms today in a mass trial of alleged Communist saboteurs.

In Latin America

Subversive Movements Laid to Reds

Santiago, Chile, Aug. 23 (U.P.)—Russia is fanning up a series of subversive movements in Latin America as a means of neutralizing this part of the world in the cold war, a high Chilean official said today.

A chief of the Chilean Bureau of Investigation who asked that his name not be published said that a special Cominform agent arrived in Sanitago before last week's bloody riots.

"Having failed to place Latin American governments under its direct influence, the Soviet Union now seeks to neutralize them under the 'Third Front'" as between Western capitalism and Russian communism, he said.

He said recent events in Chile followed a "perfectly organized plan with branches in every Latin American country."

He referred to last week's student disorders and abortive strikes in the vital coal, copper and nitrate mines, which brought the arrest of more than 400 Communist Party members and labor union officials.

Meanwhile, a revolutionary general strike which the government had expected today as a final desperate Communist move had failed up to a late hour to materialize.

Acording to a United Press survey, less than 1 per cent of Santiago's 400,000 working population stayed away from their jobs.

Report Opposes Bill to Surrender Dogs For Research

A Senate District subcommittee yesterday formally reported its disapproval of a bill to authorize the District to turn over unclaimed dogs at the Pound to educational and scientific institutions for experimentation.

Senator Margaret Chase Smith (R., Me.) said she and District Chairman McGrath (D., R. I.) opposed the vivisection bill in its present form, while Senator Hunt (D., Wyo.) favored the controver ial measure.

The subcommittee action was made public several weeks ago, but not formally reported to the full committee until yesterday.

Donor to Blood Bank Gets It Back in Week

Great Falls, Mont., Aug. 23 (AP). James Dirkes of Fairfield gave the Red Cross blood bank one pint of his blood—considered a rare type. One week later he was hospitalized with a perforated stomach ulcer and needed a transfusion. The only blood available of the type necessary was the pint he had donated.

Finnish Union Federation Threatened by Red Action

Helsinki, Aug. 23 (AP).—A serious split in Finland's powerful Central Trade Union Federation appeared imminent tonight when five Communist unions refused to obey a fededration ultimatum to end their wildcat strikes.

While the intraunion struggle raged, observers said they feared the Communists would try to extend their strike offensive to the metal industry. This would endanger Finland's war reparations to Russia.

When the wave of Red-inspired walkouts hit, the federation ordered striking unions to end their walkouts by today or suffer expulsion from the federation. As the deadline passed, the unions kept silent and Communist leaders said the strikes would continue.

That means the five offending unions probably will be ousted from federation membership when action is taken by the big labor organization, possibly Wednesday. Social Democratic workers were expected to form new unions.

There was no reliable report on the number of men still on strike throughout the country. One federation source said, however, the estimate was about 30,000. Other estimates were as low as 13,000. At the peak of the six-day-old strike the figure was estimated at 45,000.

Most of Finland's harbors were tied up by a longshoremen's walkout.

If a metal industry strike is called it will affect shipbuilding yards in Turku and Helsinki which are delivering new ships to the Soviet Union.

Court Rule Asked In Accident to Diplomat's Auto

District Court was asked yesterday to rule that an insurance company must pay for any traffic injuries caused by a Bolivian Embassy first secretary, despite a purported claim of diplomatic immunity.

The suit was filed for $20,000 by Mrs. Bessie E. Beard, 900 N. Wayne st., Arlington, Va. She said that while she was a passenger of Enrique Jules Kempff, first secretary of the embassy last April 18, his car was in an accident resulting in the fracture of her right leg and other injuries.

The suit, filed through Attorney Alton S. Bradford, is against Kempff's insurer, Aetna Casualty & Surety Co. It is charged that Aetna claimed diplomatic immunity.

Rankin Would Renew Limited "52-20" Pay

A bill to revive "52-20" readjustment payments, but only for veterans "who came home and went to work," was introduced yesterday by Representative Rankin (D., Miss.).

Under the Rankin bill, anyone who had received a year or more training or education would be barred from receiving additional payments.

Storm Center Due Off Hatteras Today

Miami, Fla., Aug. 23 (AP).—Storm warnings flew at Cape Hatteras tonight for a hurricane containing 100-mile winds, which pounded the steamship Mormac Surf as it swirled northward off the Atlantic Coast.

Gradyl Norton, chief storm forecaster in the Miami Weather Bureau, said the hurricane of moderate force probably would brush past Cape Hatteras about daylight, and might similarly approach Cape Cod, Mass.

New Englanders, skitterish because of the disastrous 1938 blow, were advised by Norton to feel no alarm but to keep watch "so nobody will get caught unexpectedly." He said he feels certain at present that the storm center will remain at sea off Cape Hatteras and Cape Cod, but later developments might change the outlook.

Meantime, as the small, but fully developed, first hurricane of the year swirled about 300 miles at sea off Brunswick, Ga., a new tropical disturbance developed in the Atlantic some 300 miles east of Puerto Rico. Close watch is being kept by Navy and Air Force planes and surface ships.

The hurricane, named "Harry" (because it developed while President Truman was in Florida), bored past Jacksonville at midday at its 20-mile forward pace. It swept the steamship Mormac Surf with 90-mile winds and mountainous seas and swells. The ship reported visibility reduced to zero by blinding rain and windblown sea water. The vessel had rough going, but was in no trouble.

Norton said he did not expect winds of hurricane force to strike Cape Hatteras, as the storm brushed past with its center at sea, but that high tides might prevail.

D. C. To Escape Storm, Weather Bureau Says

The Weather Bureau in Washington predicted last night that the hurricane would not hit this area. It was expected to veer out to sea after passing just east of Cape Hatteras early today.

District Man Arrested in Stabbing Case

ALFRED TOOMBS
. . . stabbed by stranger

A Washington man was arrested at his home at 9:30 p. m. last on the charge that he stabbed and seriously injured Alfred Toombs, a former Washington newspaperman, Sunday night between Leonardtown and Colton's Point, Md.

He is Joseph R. Thomas, 35, 1005 Girard st. ne., an engineer employed by the Board of Education at the Parkview School.

He was picked up here on a warrant charging him with being a fugitive from justice. He waived extradition and was turned over to Sergt. M. E. Jackson of the Maryland State police. Sergt. Jackson started for the St. Mary's County jail at Leonardtown with Thomas and said on reaching there he would place a charge against him of assault with intent to kill.

Toombs was reported last night as in slightly improved condition at Johns Hopkins Hospital, Baltimore, with a deep stab wound in his chest.

His wife, Mrs. Constance Toombs, told authorities they were returning from a Leonardtown movie about 11 p. m., Sunday, when they were stopped by a number of cars blocking the road. An argument was in progress, Mrs. Toombs said, and her husband reentered his car to avoid involvement in it.

Shortly afterward, she said, they saw a man, apparently badly beaten, break away and run to another car. Toombs, his wife said, went to aid the man. The man thrust the door of his car open, she said, and stabbed Toombs in the chest. Toombs did not see the weapon, she said.

Sergeant Jackson was awaiting Thomas at his home last night with Washington Police Lieut. Otto P. Fuss and Detective Sergt. John Boccina. They declined to say what led them to him.

They said Thomas had been at a resort for a vacation, not far from the scene of the stabbing. He denied the stabbing, police said.

Toombs formerly was employed on the staffs of the Washington Star, and the Washington Times-Herald and recently had been doing free-lance writing for national magazines.

Idaho Forest Fires Force Area Closing

By The Associated Press

Fires raging out of control in Idaho's Payette National Forest yesterday caused the area to be closed to vacationers, while in Maine a dozen brush and timberland blazes were reported.

Three big fires and a smaller one in Payette were whipped by high winds after a few showers of rain had brought some hope to weary firefighters. Seven new blazes were touched off by lightning.

To meet the emergency, all of the Payette and Boise National Forests and a portion of the Sawtooth Forest were ordered closed to vacationers. Motorists may traverse the forsted areas only on main highways.

"The fires are still spreading and all are out of control," said Joe Hessel, Payette Forest information officer.

They now cover an estimated 15,000 acres.

In Maine, Deputy Forest Commissioner Austin H. Wilking said the State fast was approaching the extreme drought conditions of 1947, at that time forest fires cost 16 lives and caused 30 million dollars damage in the State.

Von Mannstein

Former Nazi Officer Gives Innocent Plea

Hamburg, Germany, Aug. 23 (AP).—Former German Field Marshal Erich von Mannstein pleaded innocent to seven war crimes charges today when his trial opened before a British military tribunal.

Von Mannstein

Charges against the 61-year-old former Wehrmacht officer stem from his alleged activities in various German high commands in Poland and Russia during World War II. They include mass extermination of Jews; alleged atrocities against Polish civilians and war prisoners; forcibly employing Russian war prisoners on work connected with military operations and forcibly recruiting them to fight against the Red army.

Von Mannstein lost a plea as the trial opened when the tribunal rejected his claim that he should receive the "soldier's right" of a trial by court-martial.

Reds Offered Him Job as Spy, U. S. Army Deserter Reports

Vienna, Aug. 23 (U.P.).—A confessed U. S. Army deserter said today the Soviet army had offered him "money, security and good living" if he would become a Russian spy.

Recruit Donald L. May, Anaheim, Calif., told Army authorities the Russians made the offer to him and his German girl friend while holding him for 110 days "under abominable conditions."

May said the Russians questioned him at great length about American forces and equipment in Germany.

He said he and his girl friend, Anna Ulrich, hitch-hiked across Germany to Austria and wandered into the Soviet zone by mistake.

The young soldier said he saw and talked to three other Americans held by the Russians.

The Army said the three disappeared into the Soviet zone last spring. Two of them were Recruits Carl Ruhmke, Grass Valley, Calif., and Porter Pontillio, Cleveland, Ohio. The name of the third was not disclosed.

The Russians in high-level negotiations for the return of the three men have insisted they do not know their whereabouts.

Jobless Man Steals Car Just to Land in Jail

Hutchinson, Kans. (U.P.).—A man stole a car here just to get into jail.

John Fontron, county attorney, said William F. Southworth of Kingston, N. Y., told him he took a car and ran a stop sign to land behind bars.

Southworth was quoted by Fontron as being a former serviceman despondent over failing to land a job.

"He said he thought he would be just as well off in jail."

Getting his wish, Southworth was jailed to await trial.

Arrival of Police Saves Pair From Attack by Park Gunman

The Washington Post

Stanley D. Hutt, 27, and Edith A. Barron, 26

"It was just by the grace of God that the police came at that moment . . ." 26-year-old Edith A. Baron said yesterday.

At 1:50 a. m., Miss Baron and her escort, Stanley D. Hutt, were sitting in their car in Rock Creek Park, near Pierce Mill. They were chatting, figuring out who was going to pay for the hamburgers that would wind up the evening.

Suddenly, a man opened the door on Miss Baron's side. "O. K.," he said softly. "Keep quiet and get out of the car." The couple got out. The man was pointing a revolver at them.

He ordered Hutt to hand over his money. Hutt gave him his wallet, containing $2. The gunman stuffed it in his pocket without glancing at its contents.

Then he gestured toward the dark woods some 100 yards distant. He told the couple to head for them:

They had gone about two thirds of the way to the woods when headlights from a car that had pulled in next to Hutt's illuminated Miss Baron's white skirt.

"Get going! Get going!" the man demanded, again waving the gun at them.

Then a police car drove by and its lights outlined them. The gunman changed his mind. "I got to go now," he said, and ran into the woods.

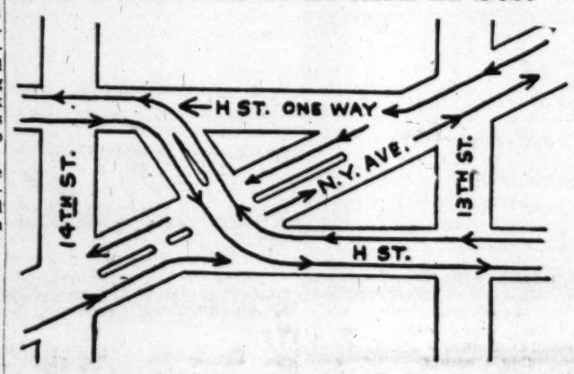
Hutt dragged Miss Baron to the ground. He thought the man might shoot. After a short time, the couple stood and began yelling. The police car returned and apparently radioed for help.

Eight squad cars—seven of Park Police and one Metropolitan cruiser—arrived shortly. Officers spread out over an area a mile square. The man eluded them.

Miss Baron, who lives at 1439 Kennedy st. nw., and works for an encyclopedia firm,

Hutt is a prelaw student at George Washington University and lives at 1410 Whittier st. nw.

Work Under Way to Eliminate Bottleneck at 13th and H Sts.



The days of another of the District's traffic bottlenecks, the intersection of New York ave., 13th and H sts. nw., are numbered.

Work is now in progress on construction of a channel across the point of ground between H st. and New York ave. in front of the New York Avenue Presbyterian Church to permit two-way traffic on a portion of H st. It is due to be completed in 45 to 60 days, Wallace L. Braun, deputy director of vehicles and traffic, said.

When completed, the channel will permit east-to-west traffic to flow smoothly along H st. For many years, both portions of H st. at that point were one-way, leading from New York ave. toward 13th st and 14th st.

A new set of signal lights will be installed at the junction of the channel and New York ave., Braun said, and existing lights will be altered to permit traffic to flow in both directions at the intersections of H and 13th and 14th sts.

The land in front of the church on the point was already owned by the District, and no condemnation was necessary, Braun said.

Klan Groups Of 6 States Join Forces

Montgomery, Ala., Aug. 23 (AP).—Ku Klux Klansmen from six States joined forces today in this first capital of the Confederacy. They invited all other klan groups to come in for one Nation-wide organization of the robed order.

Lycurgus Spinks, white-maned Klan orator from Thomasville, Ala., was chosen imperial emperor, the chief executive office. National headquarters will be in Montgomery.

The united group inaugurated Spinks in a hotel a few blocks from the capitol building in which the Alabama Legislature recently passed an antimasking law.

Spinks and the 40 to 50 KKK officials at the meeting adopted a rule against the wearing of masks in public. Only Spinks was unmasked at the hotel, however.

Spinks said the new Knights of the Ku Klux Klans of America starts with 265,000 members. He said they are principally in Alabama, Mississippi, Tennessee, Arkansas, Missouri and Louisiana.

Klan groups joining were listed as the Independent Klans, Seashore Klans, Ozark Klans, Star Klans, River Valley Klans and Allied Klans.

There was no mention here of the attacks on the robed order by Alabama officials in recent weeks.

Not included in the groups joining today was the Federated Ku Klux Klans, Inc., principal target of the Alabama officials.

Spinks said he had asked William Hugh Morris, head of the Federated Klan at Birmingham, to come in but he was not represented today. Morris now is in jail at Birmingham for refusing Klan membership lists to a county grand jury.

Also missing from the roster of Klan groups joining were the KKK organizations in Georgia, the national headquarters of the order which flourished in the 1920's.

Spinks said the Klan would start an immediate organizing campaign "in all the 48 States."

Youths Pick Wrong Car To Siphon Off Gas

San Francisco (U.P.).—Two Marin College freshmen had just taken their girl friends home after a dance and were rattling toward San Francisco in their battered old model T when the car ran out of gas.

It was a black night and they walked along the highway until they came upon a parked car. They decided to siphon a gallon of gas and leave a half dollar with an explanatory note on the front seat.

Two policemen pounced out of the darkness and hauled them to jail.

As they left the courtroom the next morning, the judge began to laugh. "Imagine those kids siphoning gas from a police car!"

New Gambling Wrinkle

Anderson, Ind. (U.P.).—Police history was made in this Hoosier city when police raided a mice game instead of their usual dice game. Mice were loosed on rotating wheels and customers were betting on which numbered compartments they would run into.

Air Force Corporal Shoots Self After Writing Paper of Plan

Atlanta, Aug. 23 (AP).—An unhappy Air Force corporal from Georgia, stationed near San Antonio, Tex., shot himself after writing the Atlanta Constitution he intended to commit suicide.

The Constitution said its letter from the airman stated he would kill himself last night. The paper learned from Kelly Air Base officials that the corporal shot himself Sunday night. Base officers said the airman, Corpl. Junior L. Potts, of Powder Springs, Ga., is resting comfortably and is out of danger.

In his airmail letter to the Constitution, received late yesterday, Potts complained:

"They promised me when I was overseas to station me at the base nearest to my home and my home is in Powder Springs, Ga. So you can see how they did it.

"Well, I've got a wife and a baby 15 months old, and I don't make enough money to keep my wife and baby out here with me, so I can't be with them and I've figured I might as well be dead, so I'm committing suicide tomorrow night, August 22, 1949.

"I don't know whether you can make a story or not, hope you can. My wife's name is Delia Louise Potts. My baby's Carolyn Diana."

[The United Press quoted San Antonio police as saying Potts' wife was with him in a hotel room Sunday night when he put a .22 rifle to his chest. He changed his mind about shooting himself, they said, but the gun went off while he was releasing the firing pin.—Editor's note.]

GO AHEAD, BE DIFFERENT

The "Joneses" may have a beautiful-looking living room, but don't copy it! Their room no doubt shows individuality . . . which is something you can't always put your finger on, yet you instinctively know when it's there or missing.

Be different. Use informal articles! They in turn will give the room the individuality and informal setting you're after. Look what's happened to the old fashioned coffee pots in the picture above. They make mighty attractive lamps, don't they? You no doubt have a number of things hidden away in the attic or cellar that would make beautiful lamps . . . just use your imagination.

When it comes to coffee tables you can really be individual. You'll find literally thousands of designs on the market today. The one in the picture above was made from picture frames and makes a pleasantly different table.

If you're using your furniture as a theme basis, carry the theme to the walls with paper designed to follow the mood of the room.

So go ahead and be different, you and the "Joneses" will both be pleased with the result.

In the past we've helped the "Joneses" . . . we'd like to have a chance to help you.

Gray Assails Theory Of Easy Atom War

By the United Press

Secretary of Army Gordon Gray said last night the Air Force must have overseas bases to effectively bomb any potential enemy.

Gray

He also denounced the "Maginot Line" theory that long-range bombers and the atomic bomb are enough to win a quick victory in case of war.

He told a Nation-wide radio (CBS) audience, in another of a series of special Defense Department broadcasts, that many Americans apparently are accepting the "candy-sweet doctrine that the atomic bomb, guided missiles, planes and supersonic speed have relegated the Army's GI Joe to an unglamorous bit part" in the Nation's defenses.

Such "unrealistic, push-button, presto, one-two type" of wars are waged only in the comic strips, he said. He contended further that such warfare will not be developed in the foreseeable future.

But he said he did not deprecate either air power or the development of new scientific weapons. On the contrary, he advocated "undisputed air superiority" for the United States.

"What I do disagree with is the specious argument that air power and superweapons, virtually alone, would be able to make a war relatively easy and that as a result there is a dwindling need for Army forces," he said.

He conceded Air Force planes could conduct combat sorties across the ocean from North American bases.

"But if strategic bombing is to have appreciable effect it must be sustained and continuous," he said. "It follows that really effective bombing would come from bases much closer to any potential enemy than those we now maintain."

Way Clear for Test Of Rent Control Act

Chicago, Aug. 23 (AP).—The Federal Court today cleared the way for a direct appeal to the United States Supreme Court of a decision that the Rent Control Act is unconstitutional.

Judge Philip L. Sullivan granted the petition of the Chicago rent office to make a direct appeal. The ruling that the law is unconstitutional was made July 26 by Federal Judge Elwyn R. Shaw. Pending the appeal, Judge Sullivan enjoined evictions from the Shoreline Cooperative Apartments, Inc., which brought the suit.

Secret Diary Kept by Forrestal Sought by B-36 Investigators

Forrestal," said Keenan. "Can you tell us anything about it?"

Keenan said it was reported that the diary kept a minute record of Forrestal's activities while Defense Chief.

Tells of "Official Journal"

Leva replied that he did not know of any "private" diary existing, but said his late chief was in the habit of dictating detailed memos of meetings and events which took place at the Pentagon. They were put into an official journal, he said.

Keenan asked if he knew where this was. Leva said he did not, but referred him to the secretaries of the late Cabinet officer—Lieut. Comdr. Frank Terry, Miss Katherine Foley and Chief Yeoman Cutcomb.

He added that "unfortunately" Forrestal worked 18 hours a day and had uniformed secretaries available so he could dictate "late at night." Leva said he never heard of Forrestal dictating any memo regarding the B-36 and that all data available on the bomber had been turned over to the committee on Monday.

Later, Keenan told newsmen that the report said the diary was in possession of a "person in very high place," and that Forrestal's secretaries would be interrogated about it.

He added that it may be pertinent to the B-36 inquiry because the anonymous document under investigation indicated that Forrestal did not favor procurement of the bomber during his last days as defense chief.

On this point, however, Secretary Johnson testified that the day after he replaced Forrestal as defense chief last May 28, the latter told him that he had "carefully considered the entire B-36 program and approved it."

Johnson added, though, that he was "surprised" a day later when Budget Bureau Director Frank Pace, jr., phoned him to discuss some phases of the program.

Pace told him, however, that no official action had been taken on the third Air Force proposal to expand B-36 production. This plan to buy 36 more of the planes received his indorsement, after Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower approved it, and Gen. Hoyt Vandenberg, Air Force chief of staff, told him the Joint Chiefs of Staff had given it their okay, the Secretary said.

Leva testified that the Research and Development Board was not consulted formally on this third order, as it was considered a continuation of an established program. He revealed that two Navy members of the board's aeronautical committee objected to the procedure and the adequacy of the information on which action was taken.

Earlier, Lieut. Gen. Edwin W. Rawlings, Air Force comptroller, testified that the cost of the B-36 program totaled $988,506,574 and that additional outlays may run it to $1,022,000,000. This would make the bombers cost $6,011,764 apiece.

He put the loss to the Government in cutting back other orders to buy more B-36s at $16,497,637, and estimated that $56,013,700 will be lost in all from contract terminations in the past two years.

Lieut. Gens. Lauris Norstad and Nathan Twining also testified on their part in B-36 procurement. They staunchly backed the bomber and declared that no "influence" could possibly affect its adoption by the Air Force.

Johnson told the committee:

(1) There has been no censorship or "chaperoning" of testimony in the probe, and he personally has had nothing to do with aircraft procurement while the investigation has been pending and under way.

(2) The "malicious" charges affecting him, which have been "tortured" into a "sinister relationship," rests on three facts: (1) He was a director of and an attorney for Consolidated-Vultee; (2) he worked for the Democratic Party in the last election; and (3) as Defense Secretary he approved one of three requests for B-36 funds.

He testified that as far as he could recall he never asked Floyd Odlum, Convair board chairman, for a campaign contribution, and that Odlum's donation totaled about $3000. Charges that he raised $1,500,000 or $6,500,000 for the Truman campaign are "fantastic and utterly false," said the Secretary.

Johnson declared he was "proud" of having approved the third B-36 order on Eisenhower's and the Joint Chiefs' recommendation. He also told the commitee he had not sought the job as Secretary as a reward for his money raising, as charged, but twice refused the post before accepting.

ed in United States merchant vessels.

The Senate committee today is expected to come to grips with the $1,160,000,000 western European portion of the Administration's $1,450,000,000 program.

The House cut the European figure exactly in half, approving an arms bill that totaled $869,505,000.

Several Senators said yesterday that the committee is still "wide open" on how it will dispose of the European aid request, but there is a strong likelihood the committee will settle for a one-billion-dollar figure proposed by Vandenburg and Dulles.

Administration spokesmen in the committee are expected to argue that, if the European figure is cut below this, it will make it difficult, when the final bill reaches a Senate-House conference committee, to increase materially the $580,495,000 approved by the House. In other words, they seek some room to bargain over the "meat-ax" cut made in the lower chamber.

Some Provision Likely

There was no concrete indication yesterday how the highly controversial issue of China aid funds will be resolved, although it is likely that some provision open to China will be added either in committee or on the Senate floor.

The issue basically revolves about the mention of the word "China" in the bill, with an outlay of about 100 million dollars involved.

Secretary of State Acheson has said he will not oppose congressional authorization for an additional sum of money to be used for arms aid "generally in the Far East," at the discretion of the President.

The State Department is determined that "China" should not be specified in the bill. To do so at this time, officials declare, could be interpreted as a reversal of the Administration's view that new aid to the Chinese Nationalist government can accomplish no purpose.

Senator Knowland (R., Calif.), who heads the pro-China bloc in the Senate, is equally determined that "China" should be mentioned by name, inasmuch as other countries are specified in the arms bill.

Unless some prior compromise is made, Knowland said, there will be a close vote on this in the committee. If the fight reaches the Senate floor, he said, he believes his group stands a good chance of winning its point.

Knowland told reporters he has no quarrel with the present provision in the bill authorizing the President to authorize or cut off funds to any recipient nation, and asks no special treatment for China.

But he said the bill should entitle non-Communist factions in China to receive such aid if they can employ it to oppose communism.

In the Senate yesterday, Republican Floor Leader Wherry (R., Nebr.), who opposed the North Atlantic treaty, which the Senate adopted by a vote of 82 to 13, flatly announced he will oppose any arms program at this time.

Congress should wait until January to review the international situation, said Wherry, for to approve an arms program now would be "just throwing money away."

VFW Drops Serious Thoughts, Cuts Loose in Jubilee Parade

Miami, Fla., Aug. 23 (U.P.).—The Veterans of Foreign Wars fell back into ranks tonight for their golden jubilee convention parade and a chance to evade "security police" for some fun-making.

The fiftieth annual VFW convention so far has been a quiet, serious affair, highlighted by discussions of international politics and by President Truman's two-hour-and-one-minute visit Monday.

Helmeted "security police," recruited from the VFW and Miami volunteers, have not been called on to take away a single "shock-stock" or water pistol. Police said the convention was one of the most subdued ever held here.

But tonight the khaki-clad delegates cut loose and made Miami know they were in town.

Weirdly garbed bands representing the Military Order of the Cootie and kilted bagpipers set the parade pace. The procession included two and a half hours of drill teams, police squads and floats.

Earlier today the delegates heard Tighe Woods, national housing expediter, and Frank W. Cortright, executive vice president of the National Association of Home Builders, square off over methods of solving the housing shortage.

Farm Views Sought On New Legislation

By the United Press

Republican and Democratic Party leaders yesterday announced new plans for finding out exactly how the Nation's farmers feel about the current congressional row over new long-range farm legislation.

Their sampling of farmer opinion presumably will have an important bearing on whether Congress continues to present high wartime price support system, adopts the Aiken flexible price support theory or chooses some middle course.

The division of opinion among the major farm organizations over new farm legislation was reflected before the Senate Agriculture Committee yesterday when three farm groups indorsed three different approaches to the politically-touchy issue.

Prefers Compromise

The National Grange said it prefers a Senate compromise over either the present law or the Aiken law, but that it doesn't think highly of any of them, while the National Farmers Union said Congress should adopt the Brannan plan lock, stock and barrel.

Charles B. Shuman of Sullivan, Ill., president of the Illinois Agriculture Association, said Congress should keep hands off and permit the Aiken law to go into effect January 1 as scheduled.

Under present law, the Government supports some 18 farm crops at a full 90 per cent of parity. The Aiken law would create a flexible support schedule ranging from 60 to 90 per cent of parity, while the compromise would establish a range of from 75 to 90 per cent.

The Brannan plan would keep support prices high but permit retail prices of perishables such as meat and milk to seek their own level. If the retail price slipped below the support level, the Government would pay the farmer the difference.

Iowa Farm Conference

Republican national headquarters said farmers and their organizations will be able to present their views on the various plans at the GOP farm conference at Sioux City, Iowa, on September 23 and 24. Republican members of the House and Senate Agriculture Committees will be there.

Democratic headquarters said Secretary of Agriculture Charles E. Brannan will discuss his program at a meeting here Thursday with party leaders from 16 Western and Midwestern States. The plan already has been rejected by the House and snubbed by the Senate subcommittee, which worked out the compromise.

Dr. J. T. Sanders, testifying for the National Grange, said he prefers the compromise because it includes fairm labor in figuring support prices, is flexible and includes dairy products in the parity index.

But A. N. McDonald of the Farmers Union contended that the compromise would result in too much help for some farmers and too little for others. He said the Brannan plan would assure fair treatment for all farmers.

Shuman said Illinois farmers favor the Aiken law with its flexible support scale because of the "desperate' 'oversupply of corn.

Murray Pins Strike Blame In Advance

New York, Aug. 23 (AP).—Philip Murray said today that his CIO United Steelworkers are ready to strike, if necessary, to gain a "fair" settlement of their wage, pension and insurance demands.

"The responsibility for such a strike," he told a Presidential fact-finding board, "will rest upon the industry and not upon the union.

"This is not a threat. This is a simple statement of fact."

Murray, who also is president of the CIO, said the steel industry's arguments before the board were the worst "vituperation, slander and abuse" he had heard in 53 years as a labor leader.

Murray's angry words opened the USW-CIO's three-day rebuttal to the industry's arguments against contract improvements.

By August 30, the board is supposed to make a report to President Truman.

The three-man fact-finding board was set up by Mr. Truman to avert a national steel strike. The truce period expires September 14.

The union asks wage, pension and insurance improvements which it estimates will cost 30 cents a man per hour. Steel profits are such that the demands easily can be met, the union argued.

Industry replied that the union's demands would cost up to 73½ cents an hour, bankrupt some plants and spiral the United States into a depression.

Murray attacked Clarence B. Randall, president of the Inland Steel Co., who spoke for industry before the board.

"Mr. Randall impugns the motives of the President in establishing the steel industry board," the union leader said.

PUC Upholds Phone Action

due process and contrary to the public interest" by Harry and Bertha Katz, 3169 Walbridge pl. nw. United States Attorney George Morris Fay had attempted to remove the Katz telephone on the grounds that it is being used in violation of District gambling statutes. It was one of 326 telephones Fay wanted disconnected in the District and Maryland on similar grounds.

Police Notice Sufficient.

The PUC decision said that the telephone company has probable cause to believe that its facilities are being used for unlawful purposes if it receives notice to that effect from a competent law enforcement agency.

"It is a commonly accepted principle that officers are presumed to do their duty, and the company should not be placed in the position of judging the competency of the duly constituted law enforcement officer," the PUC said.

"It is not the function, nor is it within the power of this commission, to make judicial determinations," the decision said. Consequently, the guilt or innocence of the telephone subscriber who appeals to the PUC will not be decided at his appeal.

Appeal proceedings "will be available to determine whether or not the company had probable cause to believe that the facilities were being used for unlawful purposes . . . and whether the tariff provision is fairly applied."

Katzes' Petition Denied

In denying the Katzes' petition to cancel the tariff section, the PUC said: "Since the obvious and express purpose of the tariff provision in question is in aid of the enforcement of laws and the upholding of public morals, it cannot be said to be contrary to the public interest."

"Since it denies no due process to one engaged in a lawful business, it does not constitute denial of due process of law."

PUC Commissioner James W. Lauderdale said "in all probability" the telephone company would not remove a telephone while a subscriber's appeal to the PUC was pending.

The PUC decision instructs the telephone company to "modify" the tariff section so as to include the instructions to subscribers of their right to appeal.

New School At Ft. Myer

Army children in Arlington will attend a brand new elementary school this year, set up for them in converted barracks near the Fort Myer Athletic Field.

Arrangements for the new school were made by Arlington School Superintendent William A. Early, when he learned that a total of 250 Army children from Fort Myer South Post, and Arlington Farms would be attending county schools in either converted barracks near Fort Myer Athletic Field or at Arlington Farms.

Miss Amelia K. Haile, a teacher at the Henry Clay School for several years, will be principal at the Fort Myer School. Five teachers have tentatively been assigned under her.

The Federal Government will contribute $100 per elementary school child.

Meeting Set On School Aid

nounced his withdrawal from the round-table discussions, because, he said, Lesinksi had cut him off when he tried to question two Roman Catholic participants.

Church and State Question

Dawson insisted the main issue involved was separation of church and state.

"So far in this controversy, it appears to be the strategy of the Catholics," he said, "to kill free speech and constitutional action by hurling the epithet 'bigot'. I think the people are entitled to know the facts."

Leslie Perry, representative of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People, singled out the measure introduced by Representative Graham Barden (D., N. C.) for attack.

He termed this measure "highly discriminatory against the colored people." Perry said that the Barden bill not only failed to provide that Federal funds be spent in equal proportion for Negro children in those States which have segregated school systems but also failed to require a Federal audit of the funds. Such an audit is necessary, Perry maintained, to see that States live up to obligations assumed in taking the Federal money.

It was the Barden bill which touched into open flame the smoldering religious controversy over Federal aid to education.

The measure was denounced as "un-American" by Francis Cardinal Spellman because it barred health, transportation and other services to parochial school children.

Representative Ralph W. G inn (R., N. Y.) angrily, and without success, tried to draw from a representative of the National Education Association an explanation of why NEA favored financial aid to rich States as well as the so-called needy States, most of which are in the South.

The National Catholic Welfare Conference indorsed a bill introduced by Representative John F. Kennedy (D., Mass.) carrying a section making it mandatory for Federal funds to be used for auxiliary services to all school children for health, bus transportation and the like.

The NCWC said that the Senate-passed Thomas bill, providing 300 million dollars a year for the Nation's schools, actually would result in nearly all States in an increase in teachers' salaries, but not in welfare services to the Nation's children.

NCWC said it approved increasing public school teachers' salaries but added that in months of negotiations the NCWC had been unable to get NEA to agree to compromise on an extension of welfare services to all children of the Nation.

The NEA-approved Thomas bill leaves it to each State to determine whether or not it will give such welfare services. Under the Kennedy bill the services would be extended whether or not the State approved.

Representative Thomas H. Burke (D., Ohio), the thirteenth member to sign Sims' petition, has introduced a new bill limiting Federal aid to teachers' salaries only.

Of today's session, Burke predicted only that the committee would not adopt the Barden bill. Burke's bill was put forward as a compromise measure. The measure has the approval of the American Federation of Teachers and Burke said it has drawn no objections from the NCWC.

There was little optimism in any quarter over the possibility of final congressional action on any Federal aid bill during this session of Congress. The House is planning a long recess, starting Friday, and Speaker Sam Rayburn (D., Tex.), who is personally opposed to any Federal aid to education, has shown no desire to speed a bill through.

Signers of the petition beside Sims and Burke were Representatives Tom Steed (D., Okla.), Cleveland M. Bailey (D., W. Va.), Leonard Irving (D., Mo.), Carl D. Perkins (D., Ky.), Graham A. Barden (D., N. C.), Adam C. Powell, jr. (D., N. Y.), Roy W. Weir (D., Minn.), Andrew Jacobs (D., Ind.), Thurston B. Morton (R., Ky.), John S. Wood (D., Ga.) and Charles R. Howell (D., N. J.).

P-TA Assails Hume School Site Delay

Delay in acquistion of a site for Arlington's proposed new Hume school brought strong protest last night from members of the Hume School Parent-Teacher Association.

Mrs. Monroe Duffill, secretary of Hume P-TA, and one of a group of its members who attended a meeting at the Arlington school board, said the group on July 9 had been promised early action on the school site by School Supt. William A. Early. The site still has not been acquired.

"Six weeks is enough time to make up your minds whether or not to go into condemnation proceedings," she told the board.

L. M. Kennison, Hume P-TA president, also protested the delay.

School Board Chairman Barnard Joy said the board received a report on the latest Hume site negotiations in executive session later in the evening. Joy said publication of appraisal figures would hinder negotiations.

The board, in other action, "noted" the resignation of Frank L. Ball, jr., as school board attorney in a letter submitted August 10.

Joy announced mimeograph copies of an audit of the Washington-Lee High School athletic fund are now available upon request. Ball had complained in his letter of resignation that the audit had not been made public.

Conferees Make Start on Charter

The Hague, The Netherlands, Aug. 23 (AP).—Dutch and Indonesian delegates sailed smoothly today through the start of their round-table conference called to write a charter of freedom for 70 million persons.

The issues facing the conference were keynoted by Dutch Premier Willem Drees conference chairman, and tne delegation chiefs in a formal session before 500 diplomats, officials and Dutch parliamentarians.

The first meeting of the steering committee will be Wednesday afternoon.

Premier Drees said the Dutch had reached the decision to transfer sovereignty to the Indonesians not because of unwilling acquiescence to circumstances, but because of the gradual realization that the interests of both the Indonesians and the Dutch would best be promoted that way.

He called for mutual trust and restraint.

States Righters Say They May Bolt Again

committeewoman, was not contested as she is regarded in the Truman camp and was invited to today's meeting.

William H. Talbot, Louisiana committeeman and a States Righter who was not invited, challenged the jurisdiction of the credentials committee. He contended his membership is a matter that lies with the people of Louisiana and the State Democratic Committee.

"The credentials committee asked me if I would work with them in the future," he told newsmen, "but I told them I would only if they saw things my way."

With Leander Perez, his attorney, the 300-pound Talbot, who is called "Little Eva," challenged the statement by McGrath that Talbot had left the Democratic Party by supporting Thurmond.

"The Democratic Party has left us," he asserted, because of its civil rights program and its tendency toward "left-wing socialism."

"If the National Committee kicks me out," he said, "I will take my fight back to Louisiana and slap them down as we did in 1948.

Perez said no action was taken against Southern committee members after the 1928 election when several Southern States went Republican in a bolt from Alfred E. Smith.

Miss Mary Evelyn Dickerson, Louisiana committeewoman, also uninvited to today's session, said she told the credentials committee that while she was not active in the last campaign she did not support Thurmond but voted for President Truman.

So long were the arguments that the credentials committee heard only part of the Texas case before recessing for dinner at 8 p. m.

Here the fight was between Wright Morrow of Houston, incumbent committeeman, and Byron Skelton of Temple, who claimed the backing of a State convention last September for the committee post.

Representatives Patman, Poage and Combs of Texas supported Skelton, while Representative Lucas backed Morrow.

common religious background. Thus, Father Dowling said, religious groups might easily sponsor the introduction bureaus.

The idea has a "black eye," he said, because of the "shoddy commercial agencies" which now exist. But such a plan, he feels, will ultimately have to be worked out.

"There would be a lot of rough spots at first," the priest said, "but the absence of it is rough, too."

In another talk at the school the Rev. Leo P. Wobido praised square dancing as a tool of democracy. Frequent exchange of partners, its simplicity, and the fact that square dancing puts no penalty on the inexperienced are among its advantages, he said.

Classes at the summer school will be continued through Saturday afternoon.

'No Headaches'

TV Fumes Can't Hurt, Say Experts

The theory that chemical fumes from a burning television set gave ten Arlington firemen aching noggins in a recent fire was poohpoohed yesterday by the United States Public Health Service and the Bureau of Standards.

Arlington Fire Chief A. C. Scheffel has advanced the idea that his men sustained violent headaches when they sniffed fumes from the beryllium phosphor inner coating of television tubes. He has asked the National Board of Fire Underwriters to investigate.

A Public Health Service spokesman said yesterday that beryllium fumes are harmful only when breathed over a long period of time. Greatest danger lies in getting it on an open wound. He said it may prevent the wound from healing.

The PHS's research on beryllium has been done with fluorescent light tubes, according to the spokesman. None has been carried out on television tubes.

"But," he added, "it seems highly unlikely that a single television set would contain enough to poison ten men."

A representative of the Bureau of Standards chemical section of the ordnance development division reported that beryllium is not in general use in television tubes. "Some manufacturers use it, some don't," he said.

He agreed with the PHS that it was improbable one television set would contain sufficient beryllium to make ten firemen ill.

Chief Scheffel's suspicions were aroused when he read an article in Blazes, a magazine published by fire equipment manufacturers, which claims "poisoning may result from inhalation of beryllium phosphor coating on the interior of tubes or from cuts on the hand."

Milburn Made Army Deputy For Europe

Frankfurt, Aug. 23 (AP).—Maj. Gen. Frank W. Milburn was appointed today as deputy commanding general of the United States Army in Europe.

Brig. Gen. Ralph J. Canine succeeded Milburn as commanding general of the First Infantry Division—backbone of the United States occupation forces in Germany.

General Milburn, from Jasper, Ind., had been commander of the First Division since May, 1946. He commanhed the Twenty-first Corps during the late stages of the war against Germany.

General Canine of Flora, Ind., has been artillery commander of the First Division since October, 1947. In the war he was chief of staff of the Twenty-second Corps in its drive from Normandy to Austria.

Army headquarters also announced that Brig. Gen. Charles T. Lanham will arrive Wednesday for an assignment in the European command, which will be revealed later. Lanham has been serving as staff director of the personnel policy board in the Department of Defense in Washington.

Armed Forces Firing 100,000

uty Secretary Early, however, said that the department plans an announcement today. He said the layoffs will total "over a hundred thousand."

Another source said the total will be between 100,000 and 150,000 persons.

The reduction will be less felt locally, because of recent layoffs at the Gun Factory made in anticipation of the present cuts.

AF Must About-Face

On a broad scale, the Air Force will be harder hit immediately than the Navy and Army, because it has been in the process of expanding and now must about-face. Termination of the Berlin airlift will ease matters somewhat, however.

Actually, however, the Navy suffers by far the greatest numerical cut. Proportionately, it also will be somewhat more affected than the Air Force, one source said. Armed forces civilian employes now total about 900,000—170,000 in the Air Force, 345,000 in the Navy and 385,000 in the Army.

The fired employes are simply fired. They have to look for jobs just as anyone who is fired. If they have civil service status, they do come under preferential hiring for other agencies.

They had offered to sell it for their 50-cent investment when a New Yorker took it off their hands yesterday for $1000

RCAF Plane Crash Killed 21 Aboard

Winnipeg, Manitoba, Aug. 23 (U.P.).—All 21 persons aboard the Canadian Air Force plane which crashed in flames in Manitoba's rugged northland Sunday night were killed, the Air Force announced today.

The accident was one of the worst in the RCAF's history.

Word of the tragedy came after an RCAF amphibian landed on a lake eight miles from the wreckage and a ground party made its way to the crash scene, 80 miles east of the Norway House.

The scorched, twisted wreckage was sighted by search planes this morning and the amphibian plane and parachute rescue team were dispatched to check for possible survivors.

The plane carried seven officers and crewmen, eight polio-stricken Eskimos, a pretty young nurse homeward bound from the Artic for her wedding, a newsman and four Transport Department workers.

The plane was returning from a mission to lonely northern outposts, where it picked up the sick Eskimos and the nurse.

Counterattack By Vaughan

merely a contest between the committee and witnesses.

He concluded his statement with a word of praise for the "judicious" manner in which Chairman Hoey (D., N. C.), has handled the investigation.

It looked yesterday as if James V. Hunt, central figure in the 5-percenter inquiry, would not be able to testify in person because of the state of his health.

Senator Smith (R., Me.) described Hunt as the "main star" of the investigation, and said she hoped he wouldn't be missing in the parade to the witness stand.

However, William P. Rogers, chief counsel of the committee, said that Hunt's physician seemed to think that Hunt would be put in "serious danger" if he tried to testify. He added that Roger White, Hunt's counsel, did not want to accept the responsibility of endangering his client's health by advising him to testify.

Rogers said that a list of questions might be submitted to Hunt, and added:

"The purpose of the inquiry can be just as well served by an affidavit as by an appearance."

Bennett Also Ill

Another figure in the inquiry who probably will not be able to testify, it was brought out, is David A. Bennett, president of the Albert Verley Co., of Chicago, dealer in perfume and soap oils.

Rogers said that Bennett has submitted a doctor's certificate to the effect that it would be "dangerous" for him to testify. He said that Bennett's health was "very bad."

Hunt has been represented at the hearings as saying that he was one of General Vaughan's closest friends, and that Vaughan had been in the habit of giving him White House brandy for Mrs. Hunt.

It was Bennett who paid for the seven deep-freeze units that were given to General Vaughan for himself and his friends.

Employed Maragon

Bennett also was at one time the employer of John Maragon, who has claimed General Vaughan as a "good friend."

Senator Mundt (R., S. Dak.) has tried to link Bennett's gift of the deep freezers to a trip which Maragon and two other Verley Co. agents took to Europe in July, 1945, traveling on an Air Transport Command plane.

Mundt said at one session that somebody with "colossal influence" had to "grease the skids" for a trip of that kind two months after VE-Day, and remarked that General Vaughan had shown himself to be very good at skid-greasing.

Maragon Slapper Calls Demotion 'Coincidence'

March Air Force Base, Calif., Aug. 23 (U.P.).—Col. William L. Lee, commanding officer of March Air Force Base, said today he believed his demotion from brigadier general after he slapped John Maragon was a "coincidence."

The Air Force officer slapped Maragon, a key figure in the Senate's 5-percenter investigation, in Rome February 15, 1946. Lee emphasized he considered the demotion "normal," and not connected with the face-slapping incident.

Maragon was in Rome at the time with an American mission to observe Greek elections. The Air Force officer said he slapped Maragon after he intervened in an argument with an Italian bus driver.

Lee was returned to the United States in April, 1947, and demoted to his present rank.

"It was the normal thing after the war for the Army to cut down on the number of generals," he said. "The fact that it happened after my run-in with Maragon was merely a coincidence."

Gen. Feldman Denies Giving Hunt's Clients Unfair Advantage

uals without giving it to the public. General Brannon said: "That's right."

Statement by Feldman

General Feldman, wearing his uniform with two stars and decorations and campaign badges, was accompanied by two counselors when he walked to the witness table—Lieut. Col. Charles Blumenfeld and Lieut. Col. Sherburne Whipple, jr.

He had a statement prepared and read it in a throaty baritone. The subcommittee took a recess as soon as he had finished, and questioning was put off until today's session, beginning at 10 o'clock.

Gen. Feldman at the outset sketched his rise in the Army from recruit to chief of his department, and said:

"I am proud of that record and of the achievement it represents. I say to this committee and to the American people—for this is my first opportunity to be heard—that at no time during my service have I acted except in furtherance of the interests of the United States Army and the United States of America; at no time have I abused my position or misused the influence of my office; at no time have I sought advantage or gain for myself or any other person . . ."

'Not Classified Document'

Taking up the proposed buying program he sent to Hunt on July 23, 1947, he said he furnished it at Hunt's request.

"It was not a classified document," he told the subcommittee.

He said the original buying program had been introduced at hearings before a House Appropriations Subcommittee, and had been published in the committee's report on or about May 28, 1947.

Also, he said, it was published in a New York newspaper nearly two months before he wrote to Hunt.

Buying Program Revised

General Feldman told how the buying program was revised before it went to Hunt, and four times altogether during the fiscal year of 1948. He explained that such buying programs are not "firm" programs, and therefore, offer no advance commitments that would give the possessor inside information. They are out of date shortly after their issuance, he said, and that was why the Quartermaster Corps did not make general distribution of them.

General Feldman said he had no objection to furnishing Hunt the information at the time. He recalled that Hunt had been an officer in the Quartermaster Corps during the war, and had been awarded the Legion of Merit, indicating that his superiors regarded him as "an able and dependable officer."

"Management Counselor"

"I had no knowledge of Mr. Hunt's position as a so-called 5-percenter," General Feldman continued. "He described himself as a management counselor, and in that capacity he had frequently requested that names of firms be added to our invitations lists. Such requests were typical of hundreds we received from firms and from persons interested in or representing prospective contractors. . . ."

He said these requests were welcome because businessmen were then enjoying a "sellers market," and preferred civilian business over less profitable Government contracts.

"No Unfair Advantage"

After saying that the information he gave Hunt was not confidential, General Feldman said his letter to Hunt was prompted only by a desire to facilitate the business of the Quartermaster Corps.

"It's possession," he said, "gave no unfair advantage to Mr. Hunt's firms or those of anyone else. If the list had been used—and I understand it was not in fact used—it could not have altered our normal method of procedure, purchase by awards based on competitive bidding.

"In the final analysis, unless a bidder was low, and showed evidence of financial responsibility and adequate facilities, he could not have obtained any Quartermaster Corps business. And an examination of the Quartermaster records indicates that no firm represented by Hunt ever did receive any Quartermaster contract."

Story of War Surplus

Another witness yesterday was Pierre R. Welch, a businessman with offices at 1737 H st. nw. He told how his chemical firm, which has a plant in Ohio, bought more than a million aerosol or anti-insect bombs from the War Assets Administration in 1947.

He said he had been told that this was all of such bombs that WAA had left. When WAA subsequently offered another huge batch for sale in the New York area, Welch testified, he tried to get excused from paying $309,000 for 850,000 of the bombs he had contracted to buy.

Welch said he tried for three weeks to have WAA amend his contract and keep the 850,000 bombs, but without success.

Says Hunt Got $5000

He said he hired Hunt to help out, and Hunt made good in three days—for a fee of $5000.

A memorandum from Hunt's files was read into the record, and showed how Hunt did it. Hunt recorded how he saw a number of men, including General Feldman. General Feldman, he wrote, thought it might be possible for the Army to use the 850,000 aerosol bombs that Welch didn't want.

Hunt saw General Feldman a second time that day, according to the memorandum, and at that time General Feldman "advised us that the Army would want the bombs and had already delivered a letter to WAA so stating."

Rejoinder by Witness

Hunt's memorandum closed with the notation that Welch and his partner, Paul Eisenhuth, had been in with a certified check for $3000, completing payment of the $5000 fee.

Welch told the subcommittee at the outset that it was necessary for small businessmen like himself to hire 5-percenters if they were going to get anything accomplished in dealing with the Government.

At the end, Senator McCarthy asked him if he thought that was still true.

"Absolutely, Senator," said Welch, "and I'm glad to meet you."

House Expects 4-Week Rest; Senate Struggles to Catch Up

By the United Press

The House yesterday headed for a four-week recess while Senate leaders got nowhere in a new attempt to decide on a date for congressional adjournment.

A resolution is expected to be introduced in the House today which would give its 435 members a breathing spell from August 25 to September 21, while the log-jammed Senate tries to catch up on billions of dollars worth of appropriation bills and other "must" measures. The Senate would have to approve the House vacation.

In the Senate, meanwhile, a single objection and much laughter killed off an attempt by Senator Charles W. Tobey (R., N. H.) to adjourn that chamber immediately. Tobey asked unanimous consent, just after the Senate was called to order, to grant all Senators "leaves of absence from now until January 1, 1950."

Senator William Langer (R., N. Dak.) jumped to his feet and shouted "I object." Vice President Alben W. Barkley sustained Langer and, amid much laughter, threw out the proposal.

Later, Senate Democratic Leader Scott W. Lucas told reporters, following a meeting of his policy committee, that adjournment was discussed but no conclusions were reached.

"We hope to get out, of course, before Thanksgiving Day," he said. "But we have a program to give consideration to."

This includes the major appropriation bills which have passed the House. The deadline on Senate passage is September 15, when an emergency spending resolution expires.

Rail Union Asks 2d Fireman on Diesel-Electrics

New York, Aug. 23 (AP)—An independent union today asked for a second fireman on Diesel-electric locomotives. The Nation's railroads branded the demand "shocking and shameful."

In arguing for a second fireman, the Brotherhood of Lomocotive Firemen and Enginemen told a presidential fact-finding board it would increase railroad safety "before ghastly catastrophes occur."

Attorney Howard Meitzert of Cleveland, counsel for 160 railroads, replied that an extra man "wouldn't be worth 25 cents a day to the railroads or to the public."

The only work for an extra fireman, he said, would be to push a button occasionally or reset a switch once in a while.

The attorney called the Diesel-electric locomotives the safest ever devised.

Neitzert also argued against a brotherhood demand for wages for electric and oil-steam firemen equal to those for coal-steam engineers.

WCTU Asks Officials To Banish Liquors

Philadelphia, Aug. 23 (U.P.).—The Woman's Christian Temperance Union today called on American public officials to "banish" all wine and other alcoholic liquors from their banquets and private tables.

The appeal was addressed to "the President of the United States, Senators, Representatives, Governors of States, and all public men and their wives and daughters."

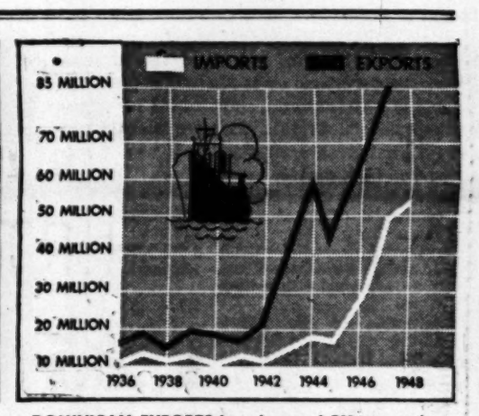
DOMINICAN MONEY buys full value anywhere. The people of this progressive Caribbean country—farmers, businessmen, manufacturers, skilled and unskilled workmen—bring profit to the merchants who carry full stocks of merchandise, much of it made locally.

THE DOMINICAN REPUBLIC'S Central Bank, patterned after the U. S. Federal Reserve System, safeguards the country's economic welfare. The bank's executive administrators are all men of sound financial experience.



DOMINICAN EXPORTS have increased 750 percent in the past 12 years. Its imports have grown 500 percent. The country's favorable trade balance in 1948 was $35,000,000. This is the result of many years of planning.

A Dominican Dollar is Worth 10 U.S. Dimes

This West Indian Isle of Progress has paid its entire foreign debt : : : Its people face the world with confidence

IN THESE DAYS of mortgaged futures, a country free of foreign debt is almost a miracle. Yet that is the condition of the Dominican Republic, despite the fact that only 18 years ago this island country was deeply in debt, with an empty treasury.

It is not a miracle, but the result of the intelligent cooperation of the Dominican people with their progressive government, headed by President Trujillo, a remarkable businessman who brought modern business methods to his job.

The country today has a sound currency, backed by ample gold reserves and substantial dollar balances in New York. It has an annual favorable trade balance of $35,000,000 or more, a strong Central Bank, and the dollar is worth exactly 10 U. S. dimes.

The Dominican Republic's fast-growing trade balance, the par value of its peso with the U. S. dollar, its 7-fold growth of bank deposits, its increasing exports and imports, its resources—all these add up to a great economy for the Isle of Progress.

For information concerning tourist attractions or business opportunities, write to the Dominican Republic Information Center, 6 West 51st Street, New York 20, N. Y.

LARGE, NEW MODERN workers' hospital in Ciudad Trujillo is typical of benefits from the public health yearly budget of $3,000,000, which provides hospitals or clinics in every city; combats malaria, cancer and tuberculosis and maintains large staffs of doctors and nurses for the care of workers. Dominicans have a planned medical program that really works.

MODERN DOMINICAN FACTORIES use American equipment to produce beer, textiles, cement, chocolate, tobacco products, essential oils, peanut oil, leather, shoes, alcohol, sugar and other fine products.

PRESIDENT TRUJILLO is responsible for the fact that 13 percent of the national budget is allocated to education. Compulsory education (7 to 14 years of age) has greatly reduced Dominican illiteracy.

Sesquicentennial

On April 15, 1791, the cornerstone of the Federal City, as George Washington always called it, was laid in Alexandria. The seat of government then was temporarily in Philadelphia, but Congress had designated the first Monday in December, 1800, as the day when it would convene in and transfer the seat of government to the Federal District on the Potomac. Actually it first met here in special session on November 22, 1800, though various offices of the executive branch—then totaling some 130 clerks plus a proportionate number of higher officers—had preceded it.

With these dates in mind the National Capital Sesquicentennial Commission had thought to open its celebration of the Capital's one hundred fiftieth birthday next April 15 and close it on November 22. That leaves less than eight months for all preparations to be made—or would have left that period of time if the House had not knocked all plans into a cocked hat by refusing the three-million-dollar advance approved by its Appropriations Committee.

The economy argument of the House in defense of its negative vote simply does not hold water. For the Treasury stood a good chance of getting back more than three million dollars. Nor is there any case for House action on the score of lack of precedent. Congress appropriated up to $10,000 for the expense of a one-day celebration of the District's centennial in 1900. In more recent years it has handed out the following sums for purposes designated:

George Rogers Clark Sesquicentennial (1929)	$1,796,000
Chicago World's Fair (1933)	1,375,000
New York World's Fair (1939)	3,275,000
Golden Gate Exposition (1939)	1,700,000
Texas Centennial Celebration (1936)	3,000,000
Celebration of the 1000th anniversary of the Government of Iceland (1930)	75,000

And these were outright grants, from which no return was expected, or, so far as we know, received. Economy, it seems, does not enter the picture when the historic celebration is in Texas or Iceland, or the commercial fair in New York, Chicago, or San Francisco. But then, it's an old story—millions for others but not one cent for the District of Columbia.

Shall we give up, then? There isn't much time, to be sure, before next April. And it would be better to have no celebration at all than one thrown together in last-minute haste. But while there is life there is hope, and the sesquicentennial project is not dead yet. Therefore we urge the Senate to repair the sad deficiency of the House in this respect as speedily as possible.

Scientists On Loyalty

The Special Committee on the Civil Liberties of Scientists has brought in some useful comments on the Administration's loyalty and security programs. Its plea is basically for the application of democratic principles to the work of scientists in Government. Undue harassment of Government employes, the committee fears, may create a feeling of insecurity "and may be expected to lessen the vigorous intellectual independence which is a prime condition of sound scientific work as it is of an imaginative civil service." In the end, security is nothing more or less than the strength of the Nation. And to remain strong we must, as the committee of scientists points out, "maintain a climate conducive to the full flowering of free inquiry."

We doubt, however, that the committee's suggestions as to the President's loyalty order will prove useful. It does not ask for abolition of the loyalty check for Government employes. "No one," says the report, "questions the propriety of the Government's demanding that its employes be loyal to their jobs and to the democratic institutions they serve." What the committee suggests (in addition to improved procedures) is a loyalty test based upon "the way employes act" rather than upon the employe's "supposed thoughts and attitudes, which are established in large part by imputing to him the beliefs of his associates." Certainly the emphasis should be upon acts and not beliefs, but, much as we agree with this approach, we doubt that an order to this effect would have any substantial effect upon the loyalty program.

The fact seems to be that most, if not all, cases now brought against suspected employes are based upon acts. For example, joining the Communist Party is an act. The same is true of attending Communist meetings. Advocacy of the overthrow of the Government is also an act, and the scientists point out that the Federal service is appropriately protected against it by statute. The fact of the matter is that thoughts and beliefs become known only as they are manifested in acts of some kind. By all means the loyalty test should be confined to acts of the suspected employe, but the nub of the problem is the manner in which the facts about his activities are established.

Titoist International

The announcement from Berlin that a "Free Communist" Party has been formed in eastern Germany and that it has sent a message of encouragement and support to Marshal Tito is news of great importance. It is a sign that for the first time since the October revolution of 1917, the Communist movement has split in two, and that the monolithic conception of party discipline is breaking under the weight of accumulated resentments. Titoism is clearly no mere schism or national particularism. Still less is it an ineffectual vestigial cult like Trotskyism. It has now emerged as an important and powerful force in world politics which is prepared to contest with the Kremlin for the allegiance of Communists everywhere. Indeed it represents itself as the true Communist orthodoxy; in Belgrade the portraits of Stalin have disappeared from the buildings and from the processions, and the portraits of Tito are now flanked by those of Marx and Engels.

The new German party, organized by Comrade Karl Heinz Scholz, is hardly powerful enough to wrest the control of the Soviet zone from the Cominform Communists, but it will add another serious headache to the many that afflict the Russian administration in that area. In satellite countries the contest between Tito and Stalin is certainly being studied with rapt interest by native Communists seeking to make up their minds about who is to be the victor. In all these countries insistent orders from Moscow to speed up the collectivization of land have produced economic chaos. It was Tito's stubborn resistance to similar orders for Yugoslavia that precipitated his expulsion from the Cominform and led Moscow to proclaim him a renegade and an outlaw. In Hungary, Bulgaria and Romania, there has evidently been a certain passive resistance within the native parties to the impossible demands made upon them by the Cominform. The consequence seems to be that a purge of dissident Communists has accompanied the liquidation of kulaks and recalcitrant clericals.

It would be no great wonder, then, if many furtive glances had been turned wistfully toward Belgrade. Nor is it likely that all ears were closed to Tito's recent appeal for the overthrow of the Cominform regimes in Bulgaria and Albania. Indeed, an attack by Tito's armed forces against Albania, isolated from the possibility of aid from the Red army, is by no means impossible. It would enable him to secure one flank while he prepares for possible attack on the other.

None of this, however, means that Tito has drawn any nearer to the Western powers in the ideological sense. His regime is as totalitarian and ruthless as it was before the breach, and must remain so, for he rules by virtue of his army and his formidable secret police. He has enemies at home more numerous than the Stalinists who may have thus far escaped his jails or evaded his executioners. Among them are the Serbian nationalists, eager to avenge Mihailovitch, and the Croat and Slovene Catholics. At any relaxation of the iron dictatorship these groups would certainly assert themselves. And yet in a sense the force of events is impelling Tito toward some understanding with the West. The economic warfare that Moscow is already applying against him, and which is likely to become more and more intense, seems to make trade with the West a matter of life and death importance to him.

Bombs For Europe

The disclosure that a plan for stockpiling American atomic bombs in Britain is under official consideration may meet some of the current British concern over atomic defense. Legally there appears to be no impediment to such an arrangement, for although the McMahon Act is strict in its ban on the sharing of industrial information, it leaves military cooperation to the President. What is contemplated, apparently, is not a transfer of title. Actual custody would be retained by the United States, but the physical presence of atomic bombs in Britain should serve the psychological purpose of reassuring the British people. It should also make totally unnecessary any contemplated British venture into the manufacture of atomic weapons.

The fault in such a plan is not that it is impracticable, but that it is not bold enough. Under the Atlantic Pact the United States has assumed a share of the responsibility for the defense of western Europe, and the strategy now is to make every effort to hold western Europe in the event of attack. The United States responsibility, like the concurrent responsibility of other participating nations, is not to any one country but to the collective entity. Why, then, should not title to a supply of atomic weapons be vested in the combined military organization under the Atlantic Pact? This would avoid any charge of favoring one country, as in the stockpiling of bombs in Britain, and would forestall similar requests from other nations. Such a move would be consistent with the American national interest in promoting integrated planning in Europe, and it would be a symbol of how seriously the United States views the partnership it has entered.

Debt Fears

In a letter to the President, Congressman Norblad expressed fears that the Government might not be able to pay off holders of savings bonds and other Government issues maturing in the next few years. The fears are based upon the fact that the budget is again unbalanced. Either Mr. Norblad is very naive or his remarks were meant to embarrass the President. For he must know, if he knows anything about Government finance, that there is no prospect for years to come of retiring any large amount of the public debt with surplus Treasury funds. The major part of the postwar debt reduction was made possible by the Treasury's huge cash surplus. Budget surpluses, if or when they return, will at best scale down the debt, which now approximates 255 billion dollars and is going higher, by a few billions each year.

With billions of dollars of Government obligations maturing in the years immediately ahead, there is, of course, no question of meeting payments from current tax receipts. The holders of these securities need not fear, however, that they will not be paid, since the Government will replace maturing issues with new bonds or other obligations that will be bought by investors, including some owners of the retired securities.

The major reason for concern about the size of the public debt and the return to deficit financing that increases its size is that interest charges on that debt impose a heavy burden of taxes on the public. Moreover, new Government borrowing absorbs funds that would otherwise be available for private investment, while deficit financing, if long continued, leads to inflation and thus reduces the real value of all investments. The size of the public debt unquestionably gives rise to knotty problems of debt management. And these are, as the President said in replying to Congressman Norblad, "of increasing significance in our economic and financial life." But while the Treasury has to make difficult decisions as to the terms of new issues to replace those due for payment, there is no reason whatever to doubt its ability to repay maturing debts from the proceeds of new issues.

Mass Cinderellas

Everywhere we turn these days we read or hear of Cinderella. A Government worker attends a grooming school and, presto! in one night she is transformed from a bucolic belle into a sleek sophisticate who kindles new light in men's eyes! In New York a salesgirl in a 5- and 10-cent store is picked as the "million dollar baby" by a nail polish and lipstick manufacturer and is showered with cocktail and nightclub parties, and a dream vacation on a country estate. Now, having become a machine age princess, she has abandoned her modest dream of becoming a model and hopes to be a writer. Meanwhile in every city, town and hamlet beauty queens who will enter the final tournament next month at Atlantic City are being presented with clothes, luggage, jewels, motor cars, film tests.

In addition, there have been the hundreds of winners of fabulous gifts of money, appliances, gadgets, trips and other luxuries in radio giveaway shows. Though some features of these shows have been banned by the FCC after October 1, there will still be enough radio Cinderellas around to whet our faith in fairies, at least of the commercial brand. Topping all of these is a man Cinderella, a 51-year-old sales engineer whose $52,000 worth of cash and merchandise won in June, the Columbia Broadcasting Co. announces, is the largest prize in radio giveaway history.

What would the creator of the original Cinderella say to all this? No one can guess, since the origin of this legend, probably the most universal of all fairy tales, goes back beyond record in human history. And it is said to have 345 variants. Now modern industry by its mass production of Cinderellas has given it another.

International Aviation

Thirty years ago civil air travel between countries was hardly more than a fond hope. In the intervening years the world has seen the growth of an immense web of commercial air routes, spanning oceans and continents and lacing together points that previously had been isolated for centuries. It is now possible for a traveler to fly to Karachi or Auckland or Helsinki secure in the knowledge that his ticket will be honored all the way, that he will find ground personnel sympathetic to his needs, that pilots will follow essentially the same rules. A large share of the credit for this standardization must go to the International Air Transport Association, which celebrates its thirtieth anniversary Thursday.

IATA is a voluntary association of more than 70 airlines representing more than 40 countries. As the trade association of the airlines, IATA concerns itself with such diverse functions as rate-making, currency clearance, timetables, maintenance standards and landing procedures. IATA is to the business end of international air travel what the International Civil Aviation Organization is as a vehicle for agreements between governments. From a miniscule undertaking of six embryo airlines in 1919, IATA now encompasses operations carrying 20 million persons over a billion miles a year. In the words of IATA's director general, Sir William P. Hildred, on the association's anniversary, "As a visible symbol of international achievement through free association in a vastly complicated activity, IATA is a sign of promise to men everywhere."

Simplified Strategy

General Arnold's "testimony" in your August 20 issue does not seem worth sending a congressional subcommittee to obtain. He says, "The thing people fear most is something they don't understand. The one thing that Russia doesn't understand is strategic bombing. Therefore that is the thing they most fear . . . The Air Force plus the A-Bomb is the winning combination to maintain peace today."

This "thinking" of General Arnold is a perfect example of arriving at a foregone conclusion from two unwarranted assumptions.

In the remainder of his "testimony" General Arnold implies that all who oppose such easy generalizations are devotees of "covered wagons" and "Mississippi gunboats."

This "testimony" is precisely what General Bradley referred to when he said, "Because the Army cannot subscribe to the thesis that air power is a self-sufficient power capable of single handed victory in a global war, I am dismayed that those who dare question it should be tagged as ox-cart soldiers in an atomic age."

General Arnold's "thinking" and "testimony" may be likened to the following:

All cats fear dogs; tigers are cats; therefore, tigers fear dogs.

I submit that this is not the kind of thinking on which to base our defense planning.

Arguing Poetry

The current controversy about the aims and functions of poetry is a striking example of the futility of arguing highly abstract concepts. Other such words are "economics," "politics," "religion," "God," and "art."

Art to the ad man means anything on the printed page that is not type. To Susie Schmaltz it may mean that "nice mountain scene" on the 1949 calendar she got from her laundry man last Christmas. A Rembrandt, we may be sure, would agree with neither of them. Unless they agreed on a definition of the word—for purposes of discussion—a conference between the huckster, Susie, and the Dutchman would be futile indeed.

So with the word "poetry." It indicates a multiplicity of things. On one level there is the doggerel well illustrated by Dr. Johnson's famous parody:

As with my hat upon my head
I walk'd along the Strand,
I there did meet another man
With his hat in his hand.

On another level are the sublime lines of a Homer, a Dante, a Goethe, and a Milton. Somewhere between are the poems by Wordsworth, Frost, Edgar Guest—and Ezra Pound. The important thing to remember is that they all satisfy the general demands of poetry, but that they may be as dissimilar in aim, function and technique as a Madonna by Raphael and a Sears Roebuck catalog cover.

"Poetry" is a convenient word for purposes of classification. But it is far too abstract for argumentative use. We cannot argue about poetry — we can argue only about individual poems.

Objective Objection

In your editorial of August 19, "Reorganization" occurred the following solecism, which is frequent in careless speech and occasional in your news columns but which one would hardly expect to encounter on your editorial page:

"Other opponents of Plan 1 directed their fire at Oscar Ewing . . . whom they assumed would be selected by the President . . ."

Whom shall we assume will be selected to shoulder the blame for this use of the objective case as subject, the linotype operator, the proofreader or—perish the thought—the editorial writer?

"Gone With the Wind"

In your August 17 editorial on the death of Margaret Mitchell, you say of her Gone With the Wind, "no other book save the Bible has even approached it in popularity."

Actually, not only has the Bible greatly surpassed Gone With the Wind in popularity, but so have two other American works of fiction, A Message to Garcia by Elbert Hubbard (1898), and In His Steps, by Rev. Charles M. Sheldon, a Congregationalist minister of Topeka, Kan. In His Steps, the story of a minister who resolves to do always "what Jesus would do," has sold 23 million copies since its publication in 1896, and is still selling well. It has recently appeared in a 25c edition.

Working Mothers

It is hard to believe that the general public is as deaf to the needs of District children as the House Appropriations Committee would have us think. The newspapers give a dismal outlook.

It is not only the unmarried mother who has a problem if she keeps her child; but many working mothers are worried and driven to distraction for lack of resources for child care. The District day care centers have helped immeasurably. Now two or three of these will have to be closed unless those who care about children can make themselves heard.

Forcing working mothers to give up their jobs and to go on meager public assistance is false economy. There are those who will say the mother should stay in the home and take care of her own children. If she is happy and secure, yes, but can she be when her allowance (based on 1946) does not cover the family needs?

At the Children's Country Home where children are sometimes taken for emergency as well as convalescent care we hear the reasons—no place to live, illness of mother or father, need to be out of the city. We also see how much children gain from a regular routine of rest, food and play.

Gifts from generous citizens and the efforts of others including benefits given by children, one group in Northeast and the other in Arlington Village, are bridging the gap in the budget of the Children's Country Home. They can now see their way for at least two more years. MARY GOLD,

Capitalism In Germany

A RECENT news item of interest printed in The Washington Post mentioned that the State Department officials were pleased with the recent election in western Germany because the parties holding the greatest plurality stood for "free enterprise capitalism."

To the American, the free enterprise concept necessitates certain essentials which must conform to democratic theories as a whole. These essentials are: 1) The right of the individual to risk enterprise, make all economic decisions relative to that enterprise, and to gain profits or suffer losses with only himself to answer to; (2) the right to compete on the basis of least costs for markets; (3) the right to demand that the government protect competitive rights, private property, and private property within the framework of a stable government.

Such a system develops on the basis of an independent middle class where individuals without collusion share in the saving and investment process necessary for economic expansion. However, this healthy middle class, consisting of the great majority of people, benefits from the high production of private enterprises. To the extent that this theoretical basis of free enterprise capitalism has existed in the United States, productive wealth has been most perfectly distributed by comparison.

Contrastingly, German capitalism historically is an emasculated capitalism. The German system was free enterprise capitalism only in the sense that the government took a hands-off attitude, but the private business organizations set up by powerful economic interests was almost literally a private economic government, run by the Fuhrerprinzip and gravitating about the privileged few.

Huge, closed family enterprises (Flick, Krupp, and Manesmann being prototypes) deprived industry of a strong middle class basis and thus allowed German industry an easier chance to exploit the consumer. Combines of "community interests" (e. g., I. G. Farben) and certain cartels (e. g., steel, coal) were so powerful that they were in the most advantageous position to dictate prices, regulate production and raw material sources, and even decide who may or may not enter a given field of business.

It is true that from time to time the German government attempted to interfere through its various cartel decrees designed to break up or rationalize cartels in the public interest, but these attempts were merely nominal, unenforced, and ineffective. Compulsory cartelization, for example, was largely at the insistence of producers' and marketing associations when effective; for they maintained huge political "corruption" funds for the purpose. Moreover, the general attitude of the government has been that this autocratic system of business was in accordance with the rules of the game.

While certain industrial robber barons of the Reich's industrial order were not the only one who helped bring Hitler to power and abetted Nazi crimes, their role cannot be overlooked. Among the many and divergent motives that seem to have prompted them to act, their tradition of autocracy in business, as well as other ajuncts of German life, cannot be overlooked.

Judging from newspaper reports and articles written in various scholarly journals on the progress of German democratization in practice, the picture is at best dismal. For example, even such negative remedies as decartelization and denazification have been subverted because of practical "necessity," or perhaps because of the future of the democratization as a whole. What, therefore, can make us believe that there has been a radical transformation in Germany thinking in respect to their attitude towards free enterprise capitalism?

World Job For Alienists

By Malvina Lindsay

Curb On Gloating

THIS IS an open letter to the first Mental Health Assembly of the World Federation for Mental Health meeting this week in Geneva.

Eminent Scientists: Your plans and proposals now being discussed should make this a less childish and more peaceful world a century or even a few decades hence. Your surveys and studies of social tensions, we laymen recognize, are the first step in curing such things. You may even find a quick mass means of making men grow up. It is heartening that you are helping the World Health Organization with its recently adopted mental health program, that you are trying to establish at Geneva a headquarters at which knowledge of human behavior can be pooled.

All this is fine for the future, but what about now—the precarious present? You are, I understand, still hoping to have experts on human relations provide consultant services for diplomats and statesmen. That indeed makes sense—if the statesmen can be persuaded that political knowledge alone doesn't make them omniscient.

But there is something else you can attempt right now in the field of human behavior. It is to discourage this worldwide exulting over minor victories, a boasting resembling that of children on a playground, yet spiked with emotional dynamite.

THE WORLD, as you realize, is sizzling with controversy between nations and groups. This is kept alive, heightened by this constant juvenile exultation by one side or the other whenever it has won a point or fraction of a point. In the most delicate negotiations at the U. N., Paris, Berlin, elsewhere, on which peace of the world may ultimately hinge, there have been time and again premature boasts by rampant nationalists, reminiscent of the bragging of Ring Lardner's crude "we win today" ballplayer.

True, some elements of the world's press and radio have been much to blame for this. But officials in the U. N., members of Congress, and other national legislative bodies, whose voices have authority, also make these badly timed boasts. Often men or women who know nothing about psychology have said to me, "Is that very smart of us to crow so much about winning? Won't it just make the other side meaner?"

It's no use to tell you that from the standpoint of strategy it is "plain dumb," especially if more negotiations are to follow. But I would be interested to know, from your expert background, just why human beings in international negotiations affecting the lives and destinies of peoples behave as if they were at a football game.

It would seem to me that since "face" is so important to nations, groups, human beings; since emphasis on it stems out of one of the East's oldest traditions, that more account of it should be taken in international negotiations. I hope your consultants can do some diplomatic education along that line. And might not nations that have more educational opportunities than others be expected to show more strategical restraint in controversy?

ANOTHER THING—all of our rows, both group and national, are being prolonged and intensified by the tendency of orators, writers, politicians, all persons with audiences, to ride to publicity or to group favor on the coattails of any current dispute. In this way the original argument grows more bitter and emotional, and members of the opposing sides, who previously might have leaned toward compromise or reason, dig deeper into their intrenchments. Thus everyone loses. Why are we not smarter, I ask you?

The East and the West, British and Americans, Catholics and Protestants, can have no argument, even the simplest, without this name-calling, vaunting, rush to opposing bandwagons. This is one of the major hazards of peace today.

I am not so naive as to think you can do anything fundamental about this overnight. I don't think anyone can do anything about it—or about anything else—by exhortation.

But this generation has great respect for science and for what it calls the realistic approach to problems. It also has special respect for psychology. I believe that if a committee of your experts on human behavior would draw up a plan of psychological strategy—call it Machiavellian if you wish—for winning disputes through intelligent manipulation of the emotions of opponents, and give it wide circulation, there would be a world-wide emotional cooling down.

Skin-Whitener

Walter White, secretary of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People, has, I am sure, confused his issues of advancement and achievement of the colored race.

To conquer the "color line" is not as simple as he has stated it as being, "using a chemical to whiten the skin." The color line can only be conquered by the awakening of Americans to the fact that a man is a man regardless of his color, race or creed. MRS. R. F. GLENN.

Matter Of Fact

By Stewart Alsop

Asia—Summing Up: II

WHAT NOW clearly threatens in Asia is nothing less than a third world war. What is needed to avert this catastrophe is to treat the situation in Asia as a warlike situation, which it is. A policy of business as usual in Asia will make a third world war inevitable.

The Soviets are already directing their drive for power in Asia as though it were a major war effort. The supreme commander of this effort is no less a man than V. M. Molotov. The American response to the Soviet power drive is feeble, diffuse and lacking in direction. It is absolutely essential that the United States should be able to respond to every challenge rapidly, sometimes secretly, and always powerfully. This can only be done by conferring great personal authority on a man of real stature whom the Congress and the country can trust. The British have already done just this, by giving great power to Malcolm MacDonald, high commissioner for southeast Asia.

The kind of power which must be granted is suggested by the nature of the most immediate problem in Asia—that of finding a realistic American course of action in China. The Molotov-Mao Tse Tung strategy is obvious. It is to press down to the borders of Burma and Indo-China and link up the vast Chinese Communist armies with the strong Communist undergrounds in these countries. If this can be done before the resistance to the Communists in Burma and Indo-China is strengthened, Burma and Indo-China will go. And they are the keys to Southwest Asia. Therefore any action which will slow the Communist push south is in the vital American interest.

YET A public, official American commitment to what is left of the Chinese Nationalist government would in the end confront the United States with an impossible choice. We could send troops to back up the commitment. Or we could welch on the commitment, which would finally destroy American influence in Asia.

What is needed instead is an unpublic, realistic, clandestine effort to shore up the many independent remaining centers of resistance to the Communists in South China. A comparatively small investment in arms and, above all, silver, astutely distributed, might hold up the Communist push south for a long time. And a few months, even a few weeks, may spell the difference between holding southeast Asia and losing it.

This sort of clandestine effort, which promotes American interests without publicly committing the United States, can only be successfully undertaken if something like wartime powers are granted. Wartime authority is also esesntial if the only remaining instrument of Western power in Communist China—the economic weapon—is to be effectively employed.

The Chinese Communists must trade with the West, and they know it. Mao Tse Tung has already announced that the greedy capitalists, in their hunger for markets, will be forced to trade with him on his own terms. If the West proves him right, the West deserves to lose Asia. But there is no reason why he should be proved right, for it is quite possible so to control trade with China that the threat of a partial or complete economic blockade can become a powerful instrument of policy.

FOR EXAMPLE, Mao Tse Tung has publicly promised "material assistance" to the Communists in southeast Asia. If Shanghai and other big Chinese cities are not to wither away, they must have what only the West can supply—fuel oil, cotton, machinery, a dozen other commodities. It must be made crystal clear to the Communist leaders that infiltration or supplying of arms to southeast Asia, or pressure on Hongkong, or any other aggressive action beyond China's borders, will mean economic blockade and the death of Chinese industry. Thus the Chinese Communists can be constantly confronted with the conflict between self-interest and ideology which led to Tito's break with the Kremlin.

If this economic weapon is to be used, firm agreement with the British is essential. But it is also essential that Congress grant the great power necessary to control every dollar's worth of trade with China. Indeed, whatever facet of the struggle for Asia may be examined, it is clear that great power, exercised with the speed and flexibility of wartime, is wholly necessary.

It is necessary, too, for a final and compelling reason. Everywhere in Asia the conviction is growing that the United States has written off not only China, but all Asia. This conviction is Molotov's greatest single asset. Asia must be convinced, first, that the United States has no imperial ambitions, but second that Asia will not be allowed to succumb to a new Soviet imperialism. The best way to do this is to appoint a supreme commander to direct a great American effort in Asia and to grant him the money and the authority he must have if the Soviet drive for power in Asia is to be halted.

Washington Calling

More Food For A Hungry World

THAT OMINOUS word "surplus" is recurring with ever increasing frequency as bumper crops continue to make the headlines. The Government is buying certain commodities and piling up loans on others in order to keep the price up to the support level called for by law.

Childs

This coincides with a conference in New York which should be making more news than it is. The United Nations is holding a scientific conference on the conservation and utilization of resources at which men of learning and knowledge are talking about ways of solving the dilemma of plenty in the midst of want.

The conference was first proposed before World War II. It was originally conceived by the late Gifford Pinchot, the father of the American conservation movement. In discussing it with President Roosevelt, Pinchot saw it as the beginning of a dramatic attack on hunger in the world, on the one hand, and on the salvaging of basic natural resources on the other.

Unfortunately, in planning the long delayed conference, State Department caution and timidity caused a scaling down of the original concept. Instead of heralding a dramatic step forward taken by the chief nations of the world, the conference largely has been limited to a technical discussion of food production and conservation.

YET nevertheless the conference is pointing up what was one of the basic problems in the years leading up to 1939 and what is still a problem unsolved. One of the signposts on the road that led to war was marked with the desperate riddle of unmanageable "surpluses" in some countries and hunger and gnawing insecurity in others.

At least one speaker at the conference had the courage to tackle this riddle head-on. Sir Herbert Broadley, deputy director of the U. N.'s Food and Agriculture Organization, dispelled any illusions anyone may have had that things are getting comfortably back to the prewar norm.

The world supply of foodstuffs is estimated to be about 5 per cent above the average output before the war. It is at least 10 per cent above that of last year.

But this is still woefully far behind the need. In the prewar years millions were hungry and other millions were close to the line of hunger. The present production would be far from sufficient to provide adequately for the population of 1939. But in the meantime there has been an enormous population increase—20,000,000 per each postwar year.

Shortly after FAO was established in 1945 a little group of experts sat down to figure out how much food it would take to give almost everyone an adequate diet in 1960. They came up with startling figures — 60 million more tons of cereal, 30 million more tons of meat, 250 million more tons of fruit and vegetables and no less than 35 billion gallons more of milk.

EVEN to present such figures may sound hopelessly Utopian. A school of thought is growing in this country which holds that starvation, famine and pestilence are inevitable. They even are desirable, if you accept this un-Christian point of view, since they keep down the unmanageable population increase.

FAO rejects this counsel of despair and futility. As Broadley said in his speech, the underfed and the discontented always are ready for the final desperate adventure of war. And as other war will make such terrifying inroads even into the resources of the "have" nations that hunger and pestilence really may become inevitable over far wider areas of the earth.

With its pathetically small budget—a fraction of the $44,300,000, which is the total proposed for the United Nations in 1950—FAO is attacking the problem of food production with emphasis on the scarcity countries. It proposes simple changes such as the shift from the sickle to the scythe, which would increase substantially the volume of grain harvested in eastern Europe and the Middle East.

That is one of FAO's strengths—that it does not propose vast and costly projects. Through education it is passing on the techniques of the high-level countries to the low-level countries. But this may not be fast enough, one reason why FAO now proposes a World Food Fund for an intensive attack on the enemy hunger.

Plowing under crops and killing little pigs is fundamentally repugnant to the average individual. Despite its threat of regimentation, one of the attractions of the Brannan farm plan is that it proposes to let production boom while keeping prices low. This may not be a solution, but mankind will not stop seeking for an answer to the riddle of "overproduction" and "underconsumption."

Chrysler Workers Reported Backing Strike Action 9-1

Detroit, Aug. 23 (U.P.).—First returns in a Nation-wide vote show Chrysler Corp. employes overwhelmingly in favor of striking to back up the CIO United Auto Workers' fourth-round economic demands, a UAW official said today.

UAW Chrysler Director Norman C. Matthews said 1600 workers at Chrysler's Los Angeles plant and 1100 at San Leandro, Calif., sanctioned strike action "if necessary" by a 9-to-1 ratio in a union-sponsored vote.

Matthews said a State-supervised election would be asked among Michigan Chrysler workers. It is required under State law.

A walkout would affect about 75,000 workers throughout the Nation.

The UAW'S demands on Chrysler are identical with those on the Ford Motor Co.—$100 monthly pensions, a health and medical care plan and an unspecified cost-of-living wage increase.

Miners, Owners Resume Talks

White Sulphur Springs, W. Va., Aug. 23 (AP).—Soft coal operators and United Mine Workers talked contract again today for two hours and the net result:

"We shall convene tomorrow at 10 a. m."

Nothing else came from the session which marked resumption of the off-and-on negotiations which had been in recess since August 11. Soft coal contracts expired June 30.

Price of Potatoes

By Mark Sullivan

Praise For Washington Post Series

AN OUTSTANDING public service has just been performed by The Washington Post, through a series of articles by Reporter John W. Ball. The service consists of acquainting the public with the facts and results of Government price support of farm crops, as applied in this case to potatoes. The service is increased by timeliness; it comes just when Congress is considering continuation of price support as it now operates, with not very substantial changes.

Sullivan

The basic facts about price support for potatoes, as operated on last year's crop, are:

The Department of Agriculture fixed a support price. It was high, $2.92 per hundredweight (varying somewhat with grades). At this price the department bought immense quantities, between a third and a fourth of the country's whole crop.

To get rid of the potatoes thus bought, the department, among other ways, sold many to manufacturers of alcohol or starch, in some cases at giveaway prices, a nominal 1 cent per hundredweight. The loss to the Government and taxpayers on the whole price-support operation was some 225 million dollars.

By its purchase the department caused prices paid for potatoes by housewife consumers to be high. The retail price went the highest in peacetime history. The per capita consumption of potatoes went to the lowest on record.

ALONG WITH great cost to consumers went fantastic profits to farmers. The current revelations in The Washington Post deal much with these. In Maine, the owner of a 30-acre farm for which he had paid $3000 in 1939, made on last year's potato crop a profit of $13,160, by sales to the Department of Agriculture at its support price, and sales in the open market at prices made high by the department's support price and purchases. The profit was net, after paying for seed, fertilizer and other expenses. It was more than four times the cost of the farm. Similar experiences were frequent.

While The Washington Post series deal with potatoes, and while the support of potatoes last year was spectacular, conditions that made it so could arise as to others of the many crops the Department of Agriculture supports. As respects cost, this can be much greater on crops which are larger than potatoes. Common expectation is that the cost of supporting several crops the coming year will be many times the cost on potatoes last year.

A special value of The Washington Post articles on potatoes is their concreteness and comprehensiveness, carrying illumination to the public. And illumination about price-support has been a lack and a need. It has been made difficult by the complexity of the methods by which price support is carried on, including technical terminology. A fundamental term is "support price," which the Department of Agriculture fixes and which is based on "parity price." It is doubtful if one person in a thousand understands what "parity price" is, or has any knowledge of the complex compilation by which it is arrived at.

FOR THE people to get, and writers to present, a clear and comprehensive picture of price support as a whole system has been made difficult by differences and variations within the system—different methods of support for different crops, different support prices in different sections of the country and for different grades of a crop.

What the public in general has learned about price support has been largely fragmentary. While this has had a mounting effect on public opinion, the present series in The Washington Post should enable the public to take an informed position on price-support as a practice of government. This is a problem which men of both parties in Congress have been reluctant to face but which some are now coming to.

The problem includes whether price support ought to be continued; whether the public will endure it, or can; whether the Government treasury can pay the cost as it is likely to become; whether, as thoughtful persons seriously question, the country's economic system must break down if it goes on.

For enlightenment of the public on that problem, at a time when Congress is considering continuation of price support, two helps might be provided. One would be widespread republication in other papers of The Washington Post articles on potatoes, or similar articles. Another would be detailed and comprehensive articles on each of the many crops as to which the Department of Agriculture supports prices, and the methods by which it does so.

By one or another of these methods, the department supports the prices of practically all farm crops.

Acheson Denies Suppression of Wedemeyer Views

By the United Press

Secretary of State Dean Acheson yesterday issued a strong denial that any part of the Wedemeyer report on China was suppressed and said that all relevant portions were included in the State Department's recent White Paper on China.

Some parts of the Wedemeyer report dealt with Korea, Acheson explained in a letter sent to the Capitol, and they were deleted for coherence and brevity.

Other phases of the China situation, which some critics suggested were omitted from the document, either were included in the White Paper at one point or another or were deleted to avoid duplication, he said.

Voters View Atlantic Pact As Committing U. S. to War

By George Gallup

Director, American Institute of Public Opinion

Princeton, N. J., Aug. 23.—Although the Atlantic Pact contains no clause specifically committing the United States to go to war if an ally is attacked, there is wide understanding throughout the country that we would be expected to go to war under such circumstances.

One of the much-discussed questions has been this matter of how far the pact obligates us to assist a member nation in time of crisis or attack. History books of the future will be able to report what impression the American people as a whole had about this point as the pact went into effect. The public's impression is recorded in a survey by the American Institute of Public Opinion among a representative sample or cross-section of voters in all 48 States.

Approximately 6 out of every 10 voters had heard or read about the pact as of early August, the survey showed, and these were asked:

"Is it your understanding that the United States will not have to go to war if any country belonging to the pact is attacked?"

The vote:

Yes, it will	38%
No, it will not	10
No opinion	10
	58%
Not familiar with pact	42
	100%

The text of the pact itself simply stipulates that member nations agree to take steps to help a member who is attacked.

West Virginia to Spend $72,941,693 onSchools

Charleston, W. Va., Aug. 23 (AP). Public school education in West Virginia is budgeted to cost $72,941,693 this fiscal year, Budget Director D. L. Gainer said today.

The figure, which includes $6,615,924 of State building aid funds, is more than $10 million ahead of last year's $62,185,462. No state aid for construction was available in 1948.

The total was reached by addition of figures in 55 county school budgets, all approved by the State Board of School Finance.

American Legion Backs Bill For Direct GI Housing Loans

The American Legion yesterday threw its support behind Administration-sought amendments to the ominibus "middle-income" housing bill which will provide direct loans to veterans.

The bills, as originally reported from the House Committee on Banking and Currency, contained such a provision but the Rules Committee refused to clear the measure with this provision in it.

Representative A. S. Monroney (D., Okla.), has announced his intention of offering an amendment to restore the direct loan provisions from the floor.

The American Legion was the second large veterans' group to throw its support behind the original Administration bill as introduced in the House by Chairman Brent Spence (D., Ky.) of the Banking and Currency Committee and in the Senate by Senator John Sparkman (D., Ala.).

On Monday, the Veterans of Foreign Wars unanimously adopted a resolution calling for passage of the bill as written originally.

The Legion, in a long telegram read to the House by Representative Frank Buchanan (D., Pa.), said the "proposed direct loan was the keystone of the whole plan" to aid the veteran.

Congress will have "again turned its back on shelter-seeking veterans" if it refuses to adopt this provision, the Legion said.

The House, after debating the rule yesterday, will go into debate on the bill itself today.

KATHRYN BLOCK, proprietress of Alfred's restaurant, took up the restaurant business 4½ years ago when, she says, "I didn't know an ice box from a kitchen range." But, she insists, she's been lucky in avoiding bad moments and embarrassing situations.

This is easy to believe while talking to Mrs. Block. She has that everything-under-control manner. "The restaurant business is really not difficult, she says. "Anyone can catch on."

"The customers make things what they are here, everyone is so friendly," she continues. However, with blond hair piled high on her head and sparkling eyes looking over the small and friendly restaurant, she has much to do in setting the mood herself.

Her clientele is regular and loyal, it comes mostly from the nearby embassies and legations. For that reason, Alfred's is more like a restaurant you'd find in Paris. Many classify it as continental.

The personnel, however, is completely American, and there's no attempt to create a "different" atmosphere. Yet there IS something different.

There's a low cork blocked ceiling, murals of English country scenes run the length of the room. Closely-arranged tables encourage repartee between guests. The waitresses are friendly.

Foodwise, Alfred's meals are dependably the same. The onion soup is especially good, as are the unusual salad with Roquefort cheese, and cheese cake brought from Rubin's in New York.

The manager, Al Fiorentino, is a former Redskin football player with an all-inclusive love of sports. After sounding out guests on the plan, the baseball game may be turned on the Alfred TV set. The TV speaker is turned low, and boxing on the radio is turned up. To provide a soothing background while all this goes on, Muzak continues! It sounds like confusion, but the effect isn't.

THE HEART of the downtown business district is the Occidental Restaurant, which Fred Buchholz started on it's respectable way almost 35 years ago.

It is a businessman's wish fulfilled. There are no frills; the motif is black and white, in straight and austere lines. Signed photographs of everybody who's anybody in government, line the walls three deep.

Chest Drive Campaigners Hear Tobin

Eight basic principles of a successful Red Feather drive were explained yesterday by Secretary of Labor Maurice J. Tobin, chairman of the Government unit, at a meeting of 85 Government department leaders in the Community Chest Federation Campaign.

The luncheon at the Willard Hotel was the first general meeting of the Government Red Feather chairmen in the drive, tenatively scheduled for October 25 to November 23.

Tobin outlined to the chairmen the following working strategy for the campaign in Government offices:

Organize a campaign committee representing all groups in your establishment.

Analyze past campaigns to discover elements of strength and weakness.

Select one keyman for each 15 to 25 employes and urge keymen to work in two-person teams.

See that keymen have an opportunity to be trained for their responsibilities.

Promote widest possible interest through rallies, leaflets, the new Red Feather movies "The Strength of a City" and other weapons.

Insist on personal solicitation so that questions can be answered.

Give sparkle to the campaign by colorful displays of posters, special awards for 100 per cent participation and other features.

See that all reports on subscriptions are made promptly and regularly.

Other speakers included General Chairman Frank J. Luchs, John S. Graham, Assistant Secretary of the Treasury and vice chairman of the Government unit; Edward J. Keyes, executive director of the Chest Federation, and William G. Gilks, manager of the Government unit.

Sitter Seeks Divorce For Husband's Dates

Chicago, Aug. 23 (AP).—Mrs. Ruth Young said in a divorce suit yesterday that her husband had been going out on dates while she had to act as baby sitter for the other woman's children.

The suit, against C. O. Young, 60, superintendent of equipment for the Illinois Central Railroad, charged cruelty but did not name the alleged rival.

Mrs. Young, 58, was awarded temporary judgment of $250 a month for support and a half interest in oil well property her husband owns.

2 Firemen Injured

Cumberland, Md., Aug. 23 (AP).—Two firemen were slightly injured fighting a four-alarm blaze which burned out the Bennett Storage Co. and an adjoining apartment dwelling last night.

Firemen brought the flames under control early this morning. Thirteen persons had to flee the apartment house. Damages to the two buildings were estimated at $30,000.

interfere in their internal affairs."

Emphasizing a determination to pursue an independent policy on foreign questions, the note stressed that Yugoslavia "is an independent and sovereign state."

"The Yugoslav government underlines that no pressure from the outside has so far had any effect on her internal policy or will it have in the future," the note said.

It called Russia's previous charges of imprisoning Soviet citizens "unfounded" and expressed Yugoslavia's "surprise that the arrest of a few White Guards who are Soviet citizens . . . could provoke such an insulting, harsh and unfounded note from the government of the U. S. S. R."

The note described the White Guards as "people with a dark past" andaccused Russia of ignoring the acts involved in the arrests in order to justify the Kremlin's current attitude of hostility toward the Belgrade government.

At the same time, Yugoslavia berated Russia for "passing over in silence" its repeated requests concerning the repatriation of Yugoslav citizens, including children, now in the Soviet Union.

Yugoslavia said she did "not intend to enter into an argument with the U. S. S. R. about the character of the regime in Yugoslavia, about the real purpose of the Cominform resolution (ousting Yugoslavia from the Cominform) and about whether or not Yugoslav economy has become an appendage to the economies of the capitalistic countries.

(All these points were stressed in the strong Moscow note of last Saturday.)

with Aunt Penny

I stopped at the drug store for a few minutes this morning and while I was there an anxious-looking young man came running in and asked for the telephone. When he saw that someone was using it, he explained that there'd been an accident up the street and that he wanted to call an ambulance. The man who was on the telephone quickly gave up the line and the young man put through his call.

This situation made me realize how vital the telephone is in times of emergency, and how important it is for us to think of others when we use the telephone.

That's especially true on party lines. A good party-line neighbor gives up the line when it's needed in an emergency, just as he'd expect others to do for him. At times like this, a little thoughtfulness goes a long way.

Tigers' 3 Homers Help Newhouser Beat Yanks, 8-4

This Morning

With Shirley Povich

THERE IS AT once the temptation to read into the Giants-Yankees Johnny Mize deal a new piece of waiver-list skullduggery wherein the National League's home run champion of 1947-48 was whisked out of the league.

Suspicion always attaches to that sort of deal involving a player of such recent eminence as Mize who was the National League's All-Star first baseman for 10 consecutive seasons barring his three war years. For the lack of a $10,000 claim, pin money as baseball sales go, Mize passed out of the NL.

POVICH

The Giants were free to sell Mize to any American League club after the seven other National League teams evinced no interest in him at the $10,000 waiver price. The Yanks are reported to have paid as high as $100,000 for the big, beet-faced first baseman who is the last two seasons hit 91 home runs.

For the logicians, the failure of some National League club to claim Mize for a tithe of what the Yankees reportedly paid for him, may not be easy to follow. But the waiver-list maneuvering is not easy in itself to follow.

THERE IS NO certainty that any other NL club could have bought Mize for a mere $10,000. But they could have blocked the deal to the Yankees by offering that much. It requires only one claim to keep a player in the league. Certainly Mize was worth $10,000 of any NL club's money, but baseball history is choked with incidents of valuable players being waived out of one major league to the other.

The Mize deal can be stripped of all of its mystery, if any, though. Despite Mize's value to the Yankees, at least his estimated value, he represented no important chattel to National League clubs who might have bid for him. Defensively, at first base, he is a well-known liability. At 36 Mize is no longer durable and is at best a short-term investment. He was hitting a mere .263 for the Giants, and no longer was a regular with that club.

No National League team needed Mize desperately. In that league, the pennant race is strictly a two-team affair between the Dodger sand Cardinals, both of whom are equipped with adequate first basemen. Mize wouldn't fetch the kind of price in the National League that he would bring from the Yankees and the Red Sox who are desperately trying to win a pennant with weaknesses at first base.

IT WAS LONG known that Mize and Giant Manager Leo Durocher were at odds. Durocher said bluntly when he took over the Giants last season that he was looking for Mize's successor. The Giants could capitalize on the Yankees' need for more hitting power in the stretch run of the pennant race when their pitching was wavering. In another year, if the Yankees came up with an adequate first baseman, Mize would bring no such prize.

The Giants had the opportunity to play the Red Sox against the Yankees to tilt the price for Mize. Rich Tom Yawkey of the Red Sox would have gone high for Mize with Billy Goodman, his own first baseman, ailing. The Yankees by buying Mize not only gambled on bolstering their own hitting power with emphasis on long distance, but were able to keep him away from the Red Sox.

It is significant that Manager Casey Stengel of the Yankees declared he knew nothing of the Mize deal until after it was announced. It was strictly a front-office transactions with General Manager George Weiss buying Mize to keep him out of the Red Sox lineup. However, Stengel doubtless will find use for Mize who has that convenient right field bleachers to shoot at in Yankee Stadium.

STENGEL HAS been alarmed at the frequency of injuries to Tommy Henrich who was pulled out of right field to substitute as a first baseman and has been paying the penalty of his inexperience. Mize at least knows how to play the bag, if slow on his feet. And in happier surroundings, away from Durocher, he may hit better. The impression is he will be a regular member of the Yankee lineup from here in despite Stengel's professed ignorance of the deal.

Stengel knows what Mize can do. Even as a .263 hitter he'll have the respect of pitching. Stengel's lack of excitement over the acquisition of Mize recalls the comment of Carl Snavely, North Carolina's football coach, a few years back. That was when Charlie Justice, best-looking football prospect in the Nation, finally matriculated at Carolina after being sought by every big-time college in the country. Said Snavely blandly, "I hope he comes out for football."

Mize's presence with the Yankees could tip the pennant race in their favor. In that he stands up there with his big bat and hits what he likes, he's a batter of the Yogi Berra stripe, only more powerful. Like Berra, he has no mental hazards up there at bat. As he said after whacking those 51 homers in 1947, "a guy does a lot better if he goes up there not thinking about anything except swinging on the first pitch that looks good."

Bums Rally To Win, 4-3, After Losing To Cards, 5-3

Brooklyn, N. Y., Aug. 23 (AP). Preacher Roe, working with only two days' rest, hurled the Brooklyn Dodgers to a 4-3 victory over the St. Louis Cardinals tonight.

The "must" victory gave the Brooks a split in their afternoon-night double-header with the National League leaders and left them still two games behind the Redbirds. The Cards had won the opener, 5-3, to forge in front by three games.

Roe allowed only eight hits in racking up his tenth victory against four losses. He fanned four, walked two and did not allow a hit after the sixth inning.

Stan Musical and Enos Slaughter collected more than half their team's hits and four-fifths of its runs as the Cards won the afternoon game.

Jackie Overcomes Girl Fright

By JACKIE ROBINSON
(As told to Ed Reid)

MY MOTHER always wanted to meet my girl friends. She could generally make up her mind quickly about them. I remember when I was very young I was hesitant about girls. I guess I was a little afraid of my ability to cope with the women. I remember making a statement that I would never let a girl make a fool of me.

I can't tell you for the life of me why I worried about it so much and I can't really say just when I got interested in girls. My mother had some definite ideas about some of the girls I brought home for her to meet. When she put her foot down I didn't go out with them any more. I would take my mother's advice every time. As you can see, everything turned out swell.

One of the first girls I think I really fell in love with was Elizabeth Renfro, the best looking girl in Washington Junior High School in Pasadena. But it was she who made friends with me—I was too bashful to start conversations. All I did the first time she talked to me was tell her to go jump in the lake! Imagine that!

Eventually she became my best girl friend and let me tell you that she must have been easy to get along with because I was not one to get dressed up just because I was going out with a girl. If girls didn't like me the way I was, well okay.

To tell you the truth, I think that behind all this sort of pride was the knowledge that we were very poor. When I was in junior high you really had to work to take a girl out on a date. You did odd jobs and collected newspapers and sold them to get a few cents scraped together for the end of the week.

A DATE consisted of a movie and a bag of popcorn, and stuff like that. If you were able to get a corsage for a girl you were doing all right. We did not have much, I'll tell you.

I went with Elizabeth until my first year at U.C.L.A. There were a couple of other girls who were more or less important to me, but then I met the girl who became my wife, Rachel, in my senior year. She was a freshman. This was the real thing, as it turned out.

When the war broke out she went to nursing school and I was drafted into the Army. We had planned on getting married right away but the war ended all this.

I didn't want Rachel to go into the service and this issue was the cause of our first argument. I told her right out that I did not want a career girl for a wife, but her mind was made up. So our engagement was broken off. I cannot really blame her for her decision to get into the fight. Her brother, Chuck, was an Air Corps officer.

He was shot down over Jugoslavia and she made up her mind then and there to pitch in and do something to help win the war. Though we were on the outs I saw her while I was on leave in San Francisco.

To show you how close you can come to making a mistake

Nats Down Indians, 4-2, Snap Streak

Cleveland, Aug. 23—Ray Scarborough, the Nat's reliable streak breaker, snapped their latest string of 11 straight defeats here tonight as he beat the third-place Cleveland Indians, 4-2, on a six-hitter.

It was the same Mr. Scarborough, who on July 27 pulled the Nats out of their last 11-game nosedive by beating the Tigers, 7-6.

Ray's win tonight was his ninth, against 10 losses, and ended Cleveland's personal 8-game winning streak over the Nats.

Ninth Loss for Lemon

The Nats' beat the Indians' No. 1 pitcher in Bob Lemon, who suffered his ninth loss against 15 wins, and failed to last out the game. Satchel Paige relieved Lemon after Lemon was removed for a pinch-hitter in the seventh. The Indians scored both their runs, unearned in that inning.

It was a costly loss for the Indians, who missed a chance to pick up a game on the league leading Yankees who lost, 8-4, to Detroit. As it is, Lou Boudreau's team remains five games off the pace.

The Nats supported Scarborough with a 10-hit attack, and Ray wound up the game with a flourish by ganning pinch-hitters Early Wynn and Ray Boone.

Huntington, W. Va., Aug. 23 (AP). Sam Snead shot his second straight-five-under-par 65 today, extending his State Open Golf Tourney lead over George Hoffer of Wheeling to five strokes.

His brilliant round tied the Spring Valley Country Club record for the second time in as many days.

Cubs Subdue Giants, 7-5

New York, Aug. 23 (AP).—The Chicago Cubs piled up a big lead for Doyle Lade, but the right-hander needed help from Bob Muncrief to beat the Giants, 7-5, today.

Held to two hits and no runs for eight innings by Lade, the slumping New Yorkers rallied for five runs and almost pulled the game out of the fire. With two out and the bases loaded, Muncrief got Bobby Thomson to hit into a force play. Lade received credit for his third victory.

Graham's Homer Tops Bosox, 5 to 4

St. Louis, Aug. 23 (AP).—Jack Graham knocked his twentieth home run of the year with a runner on base in the seventh inning to help the St. Louis Browns upset the Boston Red Sox, 5 to 4, tonight.

The result dropped the Sox to 2½ games behind the league-leading New York Yankees and kept the Browns in their newly won seventh place.

All the Red Sox runs came in the sixth against Karl Drews and Dick Starr. Al Papai then came in as relief and held the Sox while Graham put the Browns ahead.

The Browns scored twice in the first inning on three walks, a single and a force out.

They added another in the third when Stan Spence doubled, took third on Joe Dobson's wild pitch, and scored as Billy Hitchcock dropped the ball after snagging Dick Kokos' grounder.

Bobby Doerr, Merle Combs and Dom DiMaggio singled, Birdie Tebbetts walked and Starr threw a wild pitch which with Drews' balk accounted for the four Boston tallies in the sixth.

Charlie Stobbs, who went in to pitch in the sixth, threw the home run ball and was charged with his fourth loss of the season.

Detroit Ace Scores 4th Win Over New York

Detroit, Aug. 23 (AP)—Lefty Hal Newhouser whipped the league-leading New York Yankees for the fourth time this season as the Detroit Tigers won an 8-4 decision here today.

He was clipped for 10 hits, including a three-run homer by Gerry Coleman. But Hal's mates more than offset that as Pat Mullin, Eddie Lake and Vic Wertz clouted homers for the Tigers.

Newhouser's win was his thirteenth against eight losses.

The Yankees lost no ground in the American League race, however, because the second place Boston Red Sox lost to St. Louis in their night game.

Big Allie Reynolds started for the New Yorkers, who quickly provided him with a three-run lead on Billy Johnson's single, a walk and Coleman's homer.

But the big righthander was wild. In the fourth, he walked three and gave up three hits, including a squeeze bunt by Newhouser, and the Tigers took a brief 4-3 lead. After the Yankees tied it up for Allie in the top of the fifth, Mullin sent Reynolds to the showers in the bottom half of the fifth.

After Reynolds walked George Kell, Mullin blasted him for his ninth homer, and Rookie Duane Pillette took over for the Yankees. Wertz greeted him with his fifteenth homer, and in the sixth, Lake followed with his first homer, and the Tigers' 8-4 lead held up the rest of the game.

Persistent Olecranon, Beaten 12 Times, Wins at Bel Air

Bill Bennings:

AT BEL AIR

DEAR FOLKS: Jimmy Baird, the young man who as a G. I. began his saddle campaign in India, is leading the riders here with nine winners. Jockey Lammar Bauer, who figured in the spill that broke two collarbones for Jockey Carty Meyerhoffer, complained of shoulder pains and may be further examined. In addition to Dick Lawless, the leading apprentice here, there's a big boy named Jimmy McDermott who is showing much promise. He is 18 and hails from that mighty turf town of Louisville, Ky. He rides at 103 pounds. Remember the old horse, Butler, who sprang a couple of surprises in Bowie stake events? He is in training at Timonium and will attempt a comeback. Betting here is off 9 per cent of the 1948 figure. Oddly enough, attendance is up 9 per cent, proving that racing has lost none of its popularity.—BILL

Ensor Filly Edges Wingy In Feature

By Walter Haight
Post Reporter

Bel Air, Md., Aug. 23.—The thirteenth try of the year proved the lucky one for W. C. Ensor's Olecranon today after she had been beaten a variety of distances in her dozen outings.

The 3-year-old filly, named for the part of the anatomy we refer to as the "crazy bone," came on the inside entering the stretch and withstood a long drive to win the Edgewood Purse, featuring the program.

Favorite Beaten

Jockey Patsy Grant drove Olecranon home three parts of a length in front of Justin Funkhouser's Wingy, the favorite in the field of six. Swinging Star, owned by H. D. Buck, jr., was third.

Olecranon, a daughter of Mr. Bones, paid a $5.60 mutuel and was clocked in :59-3/5, capable time for the five furlongs. Despite frowning skies, rain held off and the track was fast.

Heaven Hill First

The fifth race, the second best ofering of the afternoon, went to Heaven Hill, owned by Mrs. C. M. Greer, jr., and ridden by Jockey Johnny Tammaro. Heaven Hill scooted to the wire a neck in advance of S. M. Follin's Erato. Third money in the field of seven went to O. L. Nyberg's Blue Steel. The winner was a $5 favorite and was clocked in 1:19 4-5 for the 6½ furlongs.

The daily double on the combination of 4 and 6 paid $105.20. Mrs. J. S. Hammond's Alamate won the first race at $18.20 and J. N. Curley's War Belle accounted for the second at $16.20.

through pig-headedness sometimes, there was another girl I started to go out with when I was in the Army.

HOWEVER, I had a final talk with Rachel, after I had almost made up my mind to marry the other girl, and saw really that she had more kindness, understanding and was more womanly than anybody I had ever known. What's more, my mother right off was crazy about her. We became engaged again.

This was an important decision for her, too, because I was to play ball with the Kansas City Monarchs and she didn't really want me to go around with them all over the country.

I'd like to skip over a couple of years (we'll come back to them, especially my life in the Army) to tell you about my wedding.

Rachel and I were married on February 10, 1946, in Los Angeles. I had just signed to play with Montreal. An old friend, the late Rev. Karl Downs, minister at the Scott's Methodist Church in Pasadena, flew in from Texas to marry us. He told me a long time before he wanted to perform the ceremony.

I remember someone told me that it was hard luck if I saw my bride before the ceremony. I sure wanted to avoid taking any chances so the best man, my old friend Jack Gordon, and I spent most of the time before the ceremony ducking all around the church. We were finally told to go in a room in back of the church and there we ran into a flock of bridesmaids. We did not know whether that was unlucky, too, so we dashed out of there anyway.

I'LL NEVER forget one thing about the wedding. My cousin, Van Wade, is a big, fat chap. He wanted to march up the aisle but none of the bridesmaids wanted to march with him. His feelings were awfully hurt, but I made him head usher and he did his work very well indeed.

Finally Jack Gordon and I were called out to the altar where we waited for the wedding march to begin. We were both nervous and fidgety. Then came the music and I thought I would die on the spot from nerves. It seemed like 10 years went by and I got to thinking, well, is she really coming up the aisle? You see I did not yet dare to look at her.

Finally I could not stand it any longer and turned my head so fast I almost fell over. Everybody burst out laughing because there she was only a few feet away and looking as sweet as a flower. After the ceremony I stayed around a while and stood in line and met all the people. Then I found out my troubles were beginning already.

Some fellows took my car and went off in it on a joyride. I had only my tux. Everything was in the car. I was fit to be tied because I had to wait around for two hours steaming and perspiring, wondering what had happened to all our stuff in the car. Finally after two hours they came back. I was really mad but they joshed me out of it.

We never had a real honeymoon. We spent a week in Frisco before I went out on spring training. I plan to take Rachel to Mexico City for a real honeymoon when we have time. I also would like to take her to Santo Domingo where I trained with the Dodgers one season. There is a real city, with moonlit nights and a good climate.

I really don't know when we will be able to get away on these trips. We have Jackie, jr. to take care of and in January there will be another Robinson around the household. We hope it's a girl but we'll take anything we get and love it.

Miss Crampton's 69 Wins Cup

By Leila Edwards

Miss Joan Crampton of Congressional was the winner of the Times-Herald Cup yesterday in the final Class B competition sponsored by the Women's District Golf Association this season.

Saving her best game of the season for the tournament at Indian Spring, Miss Crampton scored a 40-48—88, and deducted a handicap of 19 strokes to net a 69, and a comfortable three-stroke lead over her nearest rival.

A five-way tie for the low gross honors resulted when 91s were reported by Mrs. George Bond, Kenwood; Mrs. Flora Nooter, Manor; Mrs. Hayden Alldredge, Kenwood; Mrs. Norman Brown, Prince Georges, and Mrs. H. C. Woster, Prince Georges.

After some consultation, four of the golfers decided against a playoff, and chose to take low-net awards instead. As a result, Mrs. Flora Nooter, Manor, was given the low gross prize for her 91.

Mrs. George Bond, Kenwood, then dropped into second low net with 91—19—72, and Mrs. H. C. Woster, Prince Georges, took third with 91—18—73.

The fourth net prize went to Mrs. Norman Brown, Prince Georges, with 91—17—74, 2 down to par, and Mrs. Eli Amanuel, Indian Spring, was fifth, 94—20—74.

Two more players from Kenwood appeared in the winners' list when Mrs. Hayden Allredge placed sixth, with 91—16—75, and Mrs. Joseph Hopkinson was seventh with 93—17—76, 1 down to par. Mrs. Marty Gordon, Indian Spring, took the last prize, 92—16—76, 2 down to par.

Irving Salamy won the 12 and 13-year-old titles with a 42-41—83, while Billy Wolfe was tops in the 14-year-old class, registering a 39-37—76.

Three boys, Roy Muth, Billy Ball and Willie Beach tied for the crown in the 16-and 17-year-old divisions with Muth winning the playoff with a birdie.

Little Jack Hunter, all of 10 years old, competed against the big boys and had a round of 62-55—117

AROUND TOWN—

The kind of ball game we like: The Brandon Bulls (ages 10-14) vs. Their Fathers (Ages ? to ?), at Washington-Lee High School stadium, 2 p. m., August 28, for benefit of school safety patrol, Arlington County. Get your ticket, 25 cents, from the boy with the "Brandon Bull" on his jersey.

THIS SEASON'S most original idea for a swimming meet—the first annual All-Kiddes event, brain child of Bill Armstrong, veteran coach at the Ambassador Hotel pool. Meet scheduled for Thursday evening at the Indian Spring Country Club.

This is to let SAM JACK KAUFMAN and the other boys of the D. C. Federation of Musicians know that we haven't forgotten about their annual golfing outing at Woodmont.

In case you want to know the winners:

Best score of day—Tom Lannon, Carlton Hotel, 76.

Low gross, musicians class—Lee Hardesty, 81.

Low net, musicians class—Sammy Seymour, 85—14—71.

Championship flight — Bill Cannon, 85—12—73.

Class A—Joe Masters, 85—12—73.

Class B—Jimmy Middleton, 89—17—72.

Class C—Bob Knight, 95—15—90.

GEORGE DIFFENBAUGH, the little guy with the big heart at the Kenwood Golf and Country Club, is stepping out with the latest things in golf bags. It is bright red, of tackle twill, the kind of fabric that goes into some football pants.

A doctor friend of George's took one look at the bag and cracked: "That thing looks like a kept woman, and just as expensive."

Prince Georges Bus Service to Change Sunday

West Hyattsville, Takoma Park and Mt. Rainier Lines Will Be Affected

Extensive shifts in bus service to and through the Mount Rainier, West Hyattsville and Takoma Park areas in Prince Georges County will take effect Sunday.

This was announced yesterday by the Capital Transit Co. Some bus lines in the District will be affected.

A new route, E-4, will be established. It will begin at Riggs and Beechwood rds., and go southward and westward on Riggs, Ager and Queens Chapel rds. to the terminal of the F-4 line in the District at Michigan and Eastern aves. ne. Passengers for downtown will transfer there to the F-4 line.

The K-4 line will be extended from its present terminus at New Hampshire ave. and Longfellow st., to New Hampshire and Eastern aves.

The K-6 line will run from New Hampshire ave. and Lebanon st. south along New Hampshire ave. to Eastern ave., and District-bound passengers may transfer to the extended K-4 there.

At that point, the K-6 line will turn eastward and operate as a crosstown line to the Mt. Rainier terminal. It will follow Chillum rd., LaSalle ave. to the F-4 District line terminal, and then go along Queens Chapel rd. to 25th st. St.

To Mt. Rainier Terminal

From that point, it will take the present route of the G-4 line to the Mt. Rainier terminal, and G-4 service in that direction will be discontinued.

Instead, the G-4 line will operate westward from its present loop terminal at Farragut st., Baltimore ave. and Jefferson st., to Queens Chapel rd. It will continue along Queens Chapel rd. to the F-4 terminal, with passengers for the Mt. Rainier terminal transferring to the new crosstown K-6 line.

Portions of the present F-6 line operating in Maryland, along Sargent st., Chillum and Riggs rds., will be discontinued. The Capital Transit Co. announcement said that "people in that area will have access to the new cross-county service and to several transfer points for connection to District lines."

Jerry Klutz has recovered from his cold. His column, The Federal Diary, will be resumed in this space Thursday.

Two Ordered Held for Jury In Slayings

A man and a woman were ordered held for grand jury action yesterday on murder charges at a coroner's inquests into two recent District slayings.

One defendant, David G. Coleman, 27, of 32 L st. nw., walked into police headquarters two hours before the inquest, and surrendered. He had been sought for the stabbing last Friday night of William Williams, 27, of 63 DeFrees st. nw.

Homicide squad detectives said that in a statement to them after his surrender, Coleman admitted the stabbing and said it occurred after he was knocked down in a fight. He did not testify at the inquest. The fight arose, Coleman claimed, over attentions of a third man to Mrs. Coleman.

The second defendant held was Mrs. Mabel Corrinne Lee, 28, whose husband, Wilbert Lee, also 28, was stabbed Friday night in their apartment at 1518 D st. se. She denied the stabbing. Testimony at the inquest by members of Lee's family, and others, said she had carried a knife previously and had attempted to stab her husband.

Williams died at Freedmen's Hospital, and Lee at Gallinger Hospital.

WARL Chief Flunks Own Station's Quiz

Listeners to radio quiz shows who are under the impression any contestant who can recall his name can win a prize are in for a big shock.

Perhaps even as big a shock as Station Manager Ray W. Baker when he was asked by the Federal Communication Commission to answer a series of 57 questions used on the station's "Dollar for Answers" program.

Baker had told the FCC that "persons of average intelligence with common knowledge should be able to answer the questions used."

But he was unable to answer correctly any one of the questions.

The information came out of the FCC's opinion which ruled the station's "Dollars for Answers" a lottery and therefore illegal.

The opinion went on to state that only 2.1 per cent of the persons called by the station between April 14 and October 31, 1947, were able to answer the questions correctly with "knowledge possesed independently of the station's broadcasts." (The answer to the question was given before each phone call on the program which was heard at half-hour intervals throughout its broadcast day. The program was last heard in March, 1948.)

Some samples of the questions which stumped the station manager follow, with probable answers:

In 1945, how many stockholders were there in the American Telephone & Telegraph Co.? (684,-897.)

What was the headline of the newspaper extra on the streets the evening of December 6, 1901? (Nothing warranted an extra, according to a check of papers of that date.)

Who is the permanent conductor of the Pittsburgh Symphony Orchestra? (There is no permanent conductor.)

How many counties in Rhode Island? (5.)

What is the monetary unit of Nicaragua? (Escula.)

What was the title of Louisa May Alcott's first book? ("Flower Fables.")

How old was Julius Caesar when he married Cornelia, the daughter of Lucius Cinna? (19.)

What is the area in square miles of Tibet? (463,200.)

Present Quiz Program Decided Upon Previously

The president of Radio Station WARL said yesterday that the decision to carry the quiz program currently raising funds for an Arlington hospital was made three weeks before the FCC handed down its decision condemning the quiz-type entertainment.

R. K. Castell declared that the program which started Monday night was not in anyway a "deliberate affront" to the FCC. "We don't want anyone to think we are flaunting the decision of the FCC," he said.

Castell said the officials at the station were currently studying the FCC decision in view of modifying or changing the program if this action is called for. The FCC edict goes into effect October 1 and bans quiz shows.

36 For Year

New Polio Case Here Reported

One new case of polio was reported within the District yesterday to bring the year's total to 36 as compared with 39 last year at this time.

The latest case was a 9-month-old boy from the 1300 block of Irving st. nw., who was admitted to Children's Hospital Saturday and diagnosed yesterday.

Only one new case was reported in adjoining areas. That was a three-year-old boy from 61st place, E. Riverdale, Md., who was admitted to Children's Hospital Saturday, and reported today. This brings the Prince Georges County total to 28 for the season.

Area Polio Record

Ninety-seven cases of polio have been reported by Greater Washington health authorities so far this year.

The totals recorded so far this year by the individual communities are as follows:
District—36.
Prince Georges—28.
Montgomery County—14.
Arlington County—8.
Alexandria—6.
Fairfax—5.

Silver Spring Parking Job Nears End

Off-Street Space Provided by County Program to Take Care of 5000 Cars

A one-million-dollar county program to provide off-street parking for Silver Spring shoppers is near completion, the Montgomery County Council was told yesterday.

County Manager Irving G. McNayr said the seventh of the nine planned lots has just been completed, and that bids for leveling and grading of the remaining two will be advertised shortly.

The entire project launched in 1946, will provide parking for more than 5000 autos, McNayr said. He thought it would provide "more public parking space than in any similar area in the United States."

Just finished, he reported, is a new lot between Silver Spring and Thayer aves.

Bids will be issued shortly on one lot between Silver Spring and Sligo aves., and another on Kennett st. off Georgia ave. According to the county manager, all land in the county-owned lots was acquired at an average cost of 54 cents per square foot. Comparable Silver Spring land often sells for as much as $8 a square foot, McNayr said.

In other actions yesterday, the council:

1. Deferred granting a new permit to Blake D. Merson, who runs a refuse collection service for 4500 customers, to use his property near Rockville for a dump. A County Health Department report yesterday said sanitary land fill operations were not being used at the dump.

2. Accepted the offer of Edward B. Landry, a traffic expert, to make a survey of the driving safety records of the various county departments. Landry is president of the D. C. Safety Engineers Society and a member of the executive committee of the County Safety Board.

3. Appointed George T. Papageorge, new county director of public works, a member of the Safety Board.

McShain Bid Low for New U. S. Hospital

John McShain, Inc., of Philadelphia, was low bidder on the Government's combined clinical research center and hospital at Bethesda.

The firm's bid of $16,787,200 for the superstructure of the main building of the proposed 40-million-dollar project was more than $500,-000 less than the nearest competitor.

Three other bids for the job were also opened yesterday afternoon by the Public Building Administration: McCloskey & Co., Philadelphia, $17,340,000; the George Hyman Construction Co., Washington, D. C., $17,750,000; and Merritt-Chapman & Scott Corp., New York, $18,920,000.

The Otis Elevator Co., Washington, was low bidder on the structure's 14 elevators. The firm bid $1,096,495. The only other offer was from the Westinghouse Electric Corp., Elevator Division, Jersey City, N. J., of $1,114,373.

The foundation work on the thirteen-story building is practically finished, and construction on the superstructure is expected to begin almost immediately after the action by the Board of Awards which is expected within two weeks.

The foundation work was handled by McCloskey & Co., Philadelphia, for a reported cost of $3,273,000.

Construction on the hospital is expected to take about three years.

The 300-acre site on which the building is being erected is on the Rockville pike across from the Naval Hospital. Designed in the shape of a Maltese cross, the building will be 182 feet tall, 779 feet long and 358 feet wide. A penthouse will be built on the top. Its 1,350,000 square feet of space will make it one of the largest buildings in the Washington area.

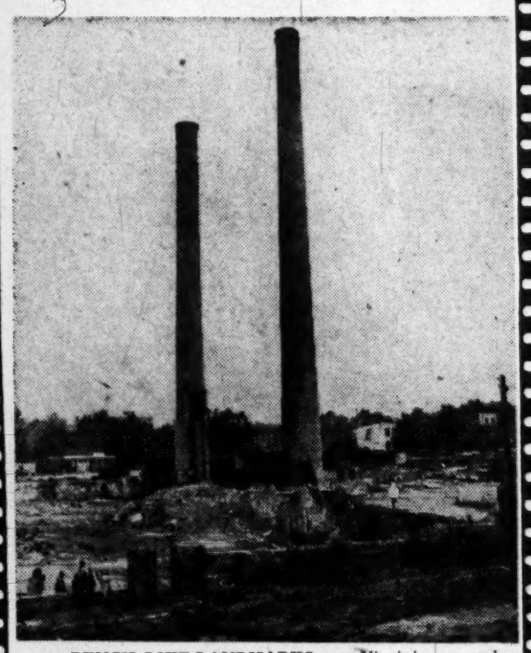
2 Men and Girl Are Held for Jury In $900 Robbery

Two young men and a girl, accused of robbing a restaurant owner of $900 last July, were ordered held for grand jury yesterday by Arlington County Court Judge Hugh Reid.

Charged with armed robbery are Charles Riddle, jr., 30, of 1871 Newton st. nw.; James H. Sebastian, 25, of 1346 Fairmont st. nw.; and Ruth Colton, 20, of 1358 Fairmont st. nw. Bonds for the three were continued at $5000 each. Two juveniles are also involved in the case.

Victim of the robbery, J. L. Heatwole, 4140 Lorcom Lane, Arlington, testified he was robbed July 27 on his way home and beaten by one of the defendants, not present in court. Detective John Sanders introduced statements by Sebastian and Riddle admitting participation in the robbery, and a statement by Miss Colton admitting she was present when the robbery took place.

Gas House Unstacked . . .



1. PENCIL-LIKE LANDMARKS near Virginia ave. and Rock Creek pky., where they towered for many years over the old gas plant, these smokestacks came down yesterday with a roar which rattled windows

2. THE FIRST DYNAMITE BLAST at the base of one stack crumples it like a brittle stick. Two explosions on the west half of each brick column and a winch-tightened cable set the direction of fall

3. IN A FINAL PUFF OF SMOKE, the stack disappears in rubble at the site of the old gas house, a 6½-acre tract being cleared by the Ace Wrecking Co. for the Washington Gas Light Co. It's tall mate remains

4. LAST OF THE STACKS rumbles to the ground. There was scattered applause from the "sidewalk superintendents" gathered round to watch the demolition of the 150-fot and 165-fot stacks

By Harry Goodwin—The Washington Post

5. THIS IS THE END—A cloud of smoke and brick dust. Razing of the old plant had been under way for months. Although the site is up for sale, no transaction is pending, a gas company spokesman said

Plasterers' Strike Here To Continue

Meeting Yesterday Fails to Reach Approach For Problem's Solution

The strike of AFL plasterers, begun last Friday, is likely to continue for at least a week, it appeared yesterday.

An afternoon session between representatives of the Employing Plasterers Association and Local 96, Operative Plasterers Union, failed to reach an approach to a solution of the dispute. Further talks were put off until Friday afternoon.

The walkout of an estimated 500 union plasterers was called last Friday after the employers' association, including 18 sub-contractors, turned down the union's request for a health fund amounting to 2 per cent of the employes' wages.

Thomas Crawford, union business agent, claimed yesterday that 10 independent plaster-work contractors have signed up on the local's terms.

Meanwhile, Richard Goodrick, Federal conciliator, called a mediation meeting for Friday in a move to avert a threatened strike by the AFL operating engineers and teamsters against the Smoot Sand and Gravel Co. The unions are seeking a 25-cent an hour raise.

Prince Georges Views Bylaws For Hospital

Definite determination as to who appoints officials at Prince Georges General Hospital, Cheverly, Md., is expected to result from new bylaws under consideration by the Prince Georges County Commissioners.

The proposed bylaws were prepared by Jerrold V. Powers, counsel to the commissioners, at the board's direction, following a recent controversy over whether the commissioners or the hospital board of directors are empowered to appoint the superintendent.

Copies of the proposed bylaws were given each commissioner yesterday at the board meeting in Upper Marlboro. The commissioners will meet at noon today to open bids on an $800,000 bond issue, to provide funds for the county's share of enlarging the hospital. The Federal Government will provide $400,000 toward the 110-bed addition. It is expected that the new bylaws will be approved at this meeting or at Tuesday's regular meeting.

Commissioners to Appoint

The bylaws provide that the commissioners appoint the superintendent but state that the board of directors will nominate candidates. They also provide that five members of the board of directors will be appointed each year for three-year terms. Each commissioner will nominate one member of the board of directors each each.

Copies of the minutes of each board of directors meeting must be sent to the commissioners. Three members of the board are ex-officio members: the president of the county medical society; the president of the Hospital Women's Auxiliary, and the president of the Board of County Commissioners.

In other actions yesterday, the commissioners:

New Recreation Board

1. Named a new recreation board to set up a county recreation program. They are Smith H. Purdum, of Hyattsville, and C. Gerald Buscher, of Berwyn Heights, lay members; Irwin I. Main, chairman of the Maryland-National Capital Park and Planning Commission, and J. Frank Dent, president of the county Board of Education, ex-officio members.

2. Adopted a resolution formally asking the Maryland Board of Public Works for the funds to carry out the proposed county school - building program. The State will make an outright grant of $1,642,800 and loan $6,351,000 under the general school construction plan enacted at the last session of the General Assembly.

Other Appointments

3. Appointed several new officials. They are Montgomery Morrow of Upper Marlboro, to be chief sanitation officer to succeed Charles L. Wood, resigned. Morrow, who has been with the county health department since 1940, has been deputy sanitation officer. James L. Thomas of Clinton was named deputy parole officer to succeed John M. Collins, who resigned to accept a State post, and John E. Stout of Lanham, named relief police desk clerk to succeed George Shepp, who resigned to become a professional bondsman.

4. Granted permits for two transformer stations to the Potomac Electric Power Co., to be installed in residential-type buildings on Volta pl. between 40th st. and 40th pl., Brentwood, and at Washington and Lakeland aves., Berwyn.

The commissioners will hold a second hearing today on a rezoning petition for an 11-acre tract in Beaver Heights, to permit construction of apartments for Negroes. Nearby property owners and residents claimed they had not been apprised of the hearing and asked for a rehearing.

And Groceries

Thief Works Check Trick For $105 Cash

Police yesterday were looking for a man who fleeced a Georgia ave. delicatessen owner out of $105.26 in cash and $19.74 worth of fancy groceries last Friday.

The man, police said, ordered the groceries and asked that the delivery boy bring change for a $125 check. He tricked the messenger into leaving both without taking the check.

The grocer, Morris M. Goldfarb, co-owner and cashier of Weinstein's Delicatessen, 6404 Georgia ave. nw., yesterday told police the following tale:

Uses Doctor's Name

A man representing himself as Dr. David L. Weinstein, of 5030 16th st. nw., phoned about 3:30 p. m. Friday and ordered a quantity of fancy groceries. He asked that change for a $125 check be sent along with the order. This was done.

The messenger, 35-year-old Corenza Jackson, was met on the sidewalk in front of the given address by a man who told him he had forgotten to order some soda and would drop by the store to pick it up. He would give Goldfarb the check then, he said, but he needed the cash to pay his nurses.

Jackson left the groceries and the money and returned without the check.

Within a few minutes, the man called again to say his plans had been changed and he would not need the soda. He would bring in the check later that day or Saturday, he said.

Wasn't Worried

Goldfarb said he knew Dr. Weinstein had a good reputation and had no reason to distrust him, so he wasn't worried.

He was very busy Saturday and Sunday, and Monday was his day off. But he checked first thing yesterday morning to see if the check has been brought in. It hadn't.

Checking with Dr. Weinstein, he found the doctor had not ordered the groceries Friday; had, infact, left town Thursday night.

The thief was described as a white man with a round face and freckles on his forehead, 28 to 30 years old, 5 feet 11 inches tall and weighing 185 pounds. He was dressed in a gray tweed suit.

Court Ruling Put Into D. C. Tax Policies

The District Commissioners yesterday incorporated a recent Court of Appeals ruling pertaining to personal property tax exemptions into Washington's tax policy.

The court ruled that each complete household could take a $1000 exemption on personal property, but in cases where several persons were part of the same household, only one exemption could be taken.

The case, in the United States Courts of Appeals, involved five orphans, Henry, John, Frederick, Helena and Elizabeth Mergner, who were living together under the guardianship of the National Bank of Washington. The bank administered a $590,000 trust fund bequeathed them in 1937 by their grandfather, John Meinberg, a bakery owner.

In personal property tax returns for the years 1943 to 1947, the National Bank reported the interest of each child separately in the furnishings. The amount was $734.08, calculated on a total value of $3670.40 and the exemption of $1000 allowed on personal property assessments was claimed in each return.

Thus calculated, there would be no valuation subject to taxation. However, the returns were rejected.

The Commissioners acted yesterday on a recommendation of Corporation Counsel Vernon E. West, who said the action merely affirmed the court ruling.

He said it would clarify matters for tax assessors who have been faced with cases similar to the Mergner one.

54-Day-Old Baby Suffocates While Being Nursed

Leroy Baker, a 54-day-old baby, was suffocated yesterday at his home, 6200 Annapolis Rd., Bladensburg, Md. Dr. James I. Boyd, Prince Georges County medical examiner, issued a certificate of accidental death.

The infant's mother, Lorraine Baker, 15, told police she fell asleep while breast-feeding the baby at 2 a. m. When she awoke at 6:30 a. m. she found a blanket over the baby's face, and he had apparently stopped breathing.

Bladensburg Rescue Squad was unable to revive the baby. He was removed to Gasch's Funeral Home, Hyattsville.

M'Grath Expects Leahy Will Get D. C. Assignment

Most Newcomers Put on Committee; Neely Certain to Be City's Next 'Mayor'

By Thomas Winship
Post Reporter

As J. Howard McGrath (D., R. I.) checked out last night as a United States Senator, he predicted his successor—Edward L. Leahy—would be named to the Senate District Committee.

The assignment of the 63-year-old lawyer and tax expert to McGrath's committee was held probable since nearly every newcomer to the Senate usually spends at least two years on the District Committee.

Leahy, who lives in Bristol, R. I., will resign his post as special adviser to the Rhode Island State Finance Department and indicated he would come here Friday. He studied law at Georgetown University.

"Mayor" Gives Good-by Luncheon

Yesterday Chairman McGrath issued his last call to the Senate District Committee to say "good-by" as Washington's "mayor" and to give a luncheon for his 12 committee colleagues and staff members.

The Rhode Island Senator and retiring chairman of the Democratic National Committee will be sworn in at 3 p. m. today as United States Attorney General at public ceremonies in the great hall of the Department of Justice.

"I have had a wonderful, satisfying time serving the District Committee," McGrath said after his farewell party. "But I feel I will still be in a position to render services to the city in my new job."

Attorney General Tom Clark will take the oath as an Associate Justice of the Supreme Court at 2 p. m at the White House. Chief Justice Fred Vinson will administer the oath to both officials.

McGrath Thanks Senators

McGrath made a brief speech on the Senate floor. He thanked the members for "all that each of you has done, and said he was "extremely grateful" to President Truman for his appointment to the Cabinet.

"I feel that the position of Senator is the greatest honor that can come to a man" but, "I have responded to a call that one could hardly have let pass by," he said. A round of oratorical tribute followed from both sides of the aisle.

When Senator Matthew M. Neely, (D., W. Va.), will officially take over as Senate District Committee chairman was not certain last night. Though assured of the assignment, Neely must be voted into the chairmanship by the Senate Committee on Committees, and go through the formality of Senate confirmation.

Presented Pen by Staff

McGrath's last act as "mayor" was moving that Senator John Foster Dulles (R., N. Y.), Governor Dewey's foreign affairs advisor, be officially confirmed as a member of the District fiscal affairs subcommittee.

A District committee member since his election to the Senate in 1946, McGrath will be remembered for his championship of District daylight saving, home-rule legislation and the 18-million-dollar revenue act of 1949.

Alexandria Votes Annexation Study

By Richard L. Lyons
Post Reporter

Fairfax County, which is preparing to fight annexation of land by Falls Church, may be attacked in another quarter by Alexandria.

The Alexandria City Council last night voted to create a committee to consider the advisability of annexing nearby land.

Because of special laws covering Arlington, any Alexandria annexation plans could involve only Fairfax.

The council action, however, cannot be considered exactly a first step towards any annexation. The council did not indicate whether it favored annexation, but only set up a committee to study the question.

Motion Made by Smoot

Councilman Albert J. Smoot, who moved to create the committee, said he felt if any action is to be taken, it should come soon, because of a movement started by rural areas for legislation preventing annexation.

The committee will consist of the city manager, the city attorney, city engineer, and one member from each of the following: City Council, Planning Commission, Chamber of Commerce, Business and Professional Women's Club.

Ordinance Adopted

The council adopted what is believed to be the first city ordinance in Virginia regulating the operation of nursery schools.

State laws govern operation of day nurseries and foster homes, but say nothing about half-day nursery schools for preschool children.

In other actions, the Council:

1. Gave the Alexandria Association another year to start work restoring the dilapidated city-owned Ramsay House, said to be the oldest building in the city.

2. Asked the city attorney to prepare an insect and rodent control ordinance, after receiving reports from the health officer.

3. Bade farewell to two members attending their last meeting—Mayor William T. Wilkins, who steps down after nine years as mayor and 12 as councilman, and Vice Mayor John W. Tulloch, five years a council member.

Order to Ruhland

Board Sets Disinterment At Gallinger

The District Commissioners yesterday directed Health Officer George C. Ruhland to issue a blanket order permitting disinterment of remains found in a long abandoned potter's field on the Gallinger Hospital grounds.

The coffins were uncovered last week in excavating for the new pediatrics - crippled children's building.

Further excavation work was halted then by the Health Department.

The last records of burials available show some were made in 1903, but the plot on which these are recorded does not indicate the exact area or identities of the dead.

The city heads also directed Public Welfare Director John W. Tramburg to arrange for "dignified" reburials with religious services in the present potter's field at Blue Plains.

D. C. Bridge Traffic Study Scheduled

A concentrated attempt to solve the growing problem of traffic snarls on bridges between the District and Virginia will begin next Tuesday.

The Highways and Bridges Committee, District Advisory Board, American Automobile Association, has called a meeting of traffic and highway authorities of the District, Virginia State and local governments, and Federal authorities to consider the problem.

It will take place at 12:30 p. m. next Tuesday, at the Mayflower Hotel.

Washington I. Cleveland, of the AAA, said that a number of factors point toward continued increase in the bridge congestion. One, he said, is the growing resident population in Virginia whose employment is in the District. Another is the forthcoming completion of the Shirley Highway in Virginia, which will funnel even more traffic to the 14th street bridge.

A third, he said, is the near-completion of the Whitehurst Freeway in Washington to Key Bridge, which he believes will enlarge rush-hour traffic loads there.

Among those invited to the meeting, Cleveland said, are District highway division, parks, traffic and police representatives; Arlington County Manager A. T. Lundberg; Bureau of Public Roads representatives; delegates from the Virginia Highway Commission, State Police, and members of Congress from Virginia.

No prepared plans will be presented at the first meeting, Cleveland said. It will be strictly an exploratory session, with discussion by all of the interests represented. One possibility to be discussed, he said, is additional bridges across the Potomac River.

The meeting was called on the suggestion of John A. King, of Falls Church, who wrote to the AAA urging a joint study of the bridge traffic problem.

No Opposition To Pepco Plan For Braddock

No opposition was raised yesterday to a proposal by Potomac Electric Power Co. to absorb the Braddock Ligh t& Power Co., its wholly owned subsidiary, at a hearing before the District Public Utilities Commission.

The sole company witness, R. Roy Dunn, vice president and treasurer of Pepco, said approval of the merger would permit economies in eliminating one of the operating companies and thus permitting interchange of maintenance crews and other personnel.

The firm also declared that the change would permit Pepco to issue securities backed by the Braddock facilities. Up to now Pepco has advanced capital for the Braddock construction program at Alexandria, Va., but has not been able to issue stock against the facilities.

At present Braddock serves the Pentagon and about 2000 other customers in northern Virginia, but primarily furnishes power for Pepco. Pepco said it could not find suitable large tracts in the District for plant expansion to meet increasing needs and therefore had to expand in Virginia, using the Braddock facilities.

Charles C. Drummond, chief accountant, Virginia State Corporation Commission, said the commission has approved the merger. If the PUC approves, the Braddock facilities will then be subject to both PUC and Virginia regulation.

The PUC took the matter under advisement.

Falls Church Water Supply Line Opened

The million-dollar city pipeline at Chain Bridge, which will pump 500 gallons of water a minute into the Falls Church water tank, was officially opened yesterday by Mayor Albert Orme.

Falls Church residents will not get the increased water supply immediately, Mayor Orme said, but he hopes by next week they'll have all the water they want.

The opening of the pipeline has been long awaited. At times during this summer's heat wave the Falls Church city water tank was down to a 5-foot level. Even with the help of the auxiliary pump from Arlington County, there were many families living in high areas above the Prout Hill tank that were without water most of the day.

Normal water load was 600,000 gallons, frequently exceeded during the heat wave. Peak load on the new line is 235 million gallons, John Shuff, field chief of utilities of the Washington Aqueduct Corps of Engineers, said.

Present at opening ceremonies yesterday besides Mayor Orme and Shuff were Roy Dunn, Falls Church city manager; James L. Patton, city engineer; James W. Head, jr., resident engineer in charge of construction, and W. Martin Johnson of the Johnson and Williams Engineering Co.

Mrs. Candee Dies; Noted Local Writer

NYHT News Service

Mrs. Helen Churchill Candee, author of a half-dozen books on art and travel and a survivor of the Titanic iceberg disaster, died yesterday of a heart attack in York Hospital, York Harbor, Me., after a two weeks' illness. She was 90.

A native and longtime resident of New York, Mrs. Candee had been living at 2310 Connecticut ave. nw., for the last 12 years, and spent her summers at York Harbor.

On her arrival in New York after the Titanic sinking in April, 1912, Mrs. Candee reported it was Maj. Archibald W. Butt, aide to Presidents Theodore Roosevelt and William Howard Taft, who placed her in a lifeboat, and himself remained on deck to die.

Mrs. Harold C. Mathews, of New York City, Mrs. Candee's daughter, told yesterday how her mother went to her cabin, when the liner struck the iceberg, donned a fur coat, and carried along some rugs.

In a lifeboat full of women, Mrs. Candee pulled an oar throughout the night, standing beside the rail because the boat was too deep to let her sit while she rowed. It was five hours before they were picked up by the Cunard liner Carpathia.

Besides Mrs. Matthews, who was for nine years chairman of the Republican Committee of 100 in New York, Mrs. Candee is survived by three grandsons and a granddaughter, and three great-grandsons. Her husband died in 1908.

President Diaz Of Panama Dies at 74

Panama, Aug. 23 (AP).—President Domingo Diaz Arosemena, veteran of 50 years in Panamanian politics, died today after a six-week illness. He was 74.

The chief executive asked for a leave of absence from his office on July 28, and First Vice President Dr. Daniel Chanis, jr., has been acting president since then.

The president, leader of the Liberal Party, died at 8:35 a. m. at the clinic where he had been undergoing treatment for coronary thrombosis.

Flags immediately were lowered to half staff throughout the republic and the neighboring Canal Zone. The government proclaimed three days of national mourning and arranged a state funeral for 10 a. m. Wednesday. U. S. Armed Forces in the Canal Zone will fire a 21-gun salute at noon Wednesday.

Diaz served less than a year of his four-year term, to which he was elected in 1948 when he made his second bid for the country's highest office.

He was defeated in 1936 by a narrow margin.

The chief accomplishment of his administration in foreign relations was the negotiation of a civil aviation agreement with the United States. The agreement transferred operations of the U. S. airlines from the Canal Zone civil terminal to Panama's new Tocumen National Airport.

The pact was believed to have paved the way for eventual new talks concerning Panama defense bases. In 1947, the government turned down an agreement to lease bases to the U. S.

Need New Curricula for Atomic Age, Sen. Wiley Says

Sees Greater World Role for Women

By Genevieve Reynolds

AMERICA'S feminine teen-agers will play a greater role in national and interational affairs than their older sisters or mothers. Senator Alexander Wiley made this prediction last night to 98 cheering delegates to Girls Nation.

Sponsored by the American Legion Auxiliary, Girls Nation is a citizenship-government training program in session this week at American University.

"You will recognize in the future, as you do even now, that our menfolk hardly have succeeded in banishing the threat of war from the world," he told the youthful leaders who have gathered here from 47 States and the Panama Canal Zone. The Wisconsin Senator emphasized that we must penetrate ideologically behind the iron curtain in order to prevent a ghastly third war.

To play a more responsible role in international and national affairs, Senator Wiley sees more women in the United Nations, UNESCO, the U. S. Congress, in State Legislatures, as well as in leading positions of industry and government.

Sees New Curricula

Senator Wiley further predicted that American colleges will gear their curricula to women's expanded and widened responsibilities. He said that educational training must be taken out of the horse and buggy stage and geared to modern living in the atomic, air, and communism age.

According to the Senator, peace will not come until men here and in Russia have renovated their thinking. "We must change the thinking of men before we can change world conditions," he said.

Pointing out that the U.N. has been supplemented by the North Atlantic Pact, he said that we will further supplement it by an Armed-Aid Program.

However, he warned that all material aid, food and arms will be wasted unles men in eastern and western Europe have the "true will, the intent and purpose of peace."

Hold Mock Court

During the morning session, Girls Nation delegates met in the Supreme Court Building, organized and held a mock court. Sara Archibald of Grant Pass, Oreg., was selected as Chief Justice. In turn she appointed as associate justices Esther Ann Turner of Conway, Ark., Nancy Wilson of Kalispell, Mont.; Shirley Ford, Conway, S. C.; Marilyn Shanks, Chicago Heights, Ill.; Myrtle Buster, Columbus Junction, Iowa; Rachael Ikard, Capper, Wyoming, and Harriet Carleson of Baltimore, Md.

The mythical case brought before the supreme court was that of the United States against John Smith. Charge was that John Smith refused to pay his taxes because American government money is being sent to Greece to help defeat the Greek rebels.

Attorneys for the defense—Nancy Humphrey of Wisner, Nebr., and Betty Jane Kenealy of Balboa, Canal Zone— argued that Mr. Smith had contributed his taxes to be used for the benefit of the United States Attorneys for the plaintiff pleaded that in sending funds to aid an allied government, the people of the United States were aided. Carolyn Walton of Keene, N. H. and Jo Alice Moody of Perry, Ga. won the case for the Government.

Delegates also heard Representative Kenneth B. Keating trace the development of an idea into a bill.

Tie in 'Senate' Race

Delegates Mary Ellen Casey of Norman, Okla., and Lois Blood of Logan, Utah, tied in a race for the presidency pro tem of the "Senate." Both presided during the delegates' senate session held in Caucus Room No. 318.

Afternoon activities included a visit to Mount Vernon, Arlington and Alexandria, Va.

Senator Karl Mundt will address the delegates at 11 a. m. today. Other speakers will include FBI representative George Carroll and Mrs. Hubert A. Goode, national president of the American Legion Auxiliary.

Election of officers for Girls Nations will be spotlighted at tonight's session.

Parents of Two Children, Ages 13 and 12, Have Always Disagreed on Training Methods; Father Argues Force, Mother Favors Reason

DEAR MARY HAWORTH: I have been married 15 years and have two children, a daughter 13, and a son 12; and my husband and I have always disagreed in matters pertaining to their rearing,—due to the fact that he and I were brought up by different methods.

Consequently, I have studied books on child psychology and child development and have tried to keep abreast of such subjects by reading the current magazine and newspaper articles on child training, too. And I find that while the authorities differ on some things, there is general agreement that children should be reasoned with,—and I have tried to follow this policy to my best ability.

Lately my husband and I have quarreled bitterly over the results of my "folly," as he calls it. The children and I discuss things very freely and I am always willing to listen to their side of the story. However, I don't feel that I let it influence my better judgment as to what is best for them.

Father Scorns the Talk-Fests

MY HUBSAND claims that as a result of this freedom of speech and thought, the children argue with me continually and he simply can't stand to listen to it. I try to tell him that we aren't really arguing, just talking things over, and that he should take part in our discussions, too. He answers that he wouldn't get mixed up in our "wrangling" for anything.

He thinks I should tell the children that they can or can't do a thing simply because I say so; that I am the boss, and no explanations on my part are necessary. I suppose I am somewhat prejudiced, but I think they are good children. They do well in school, and from all reports are well behaved and well liked wherever they go. Can I be so wrong? I want your impartial opinion.

K. H.

Man Shows Signs of Wrong Rearing

DEAR K. H.: It seems relevant to point out that your husband's disagreeable, noncooperative stand in respect to the difference in policy making opinion herein described is a significant advertisement of serious flaws in his "rearing."

He advocates rule-by-force in child training, I presume because he was brought up by strong-arm tactics that never entertained the possibility of two sides to a question, when dealing with inferior strength. But taking his present behavior as an example of later-life results thus produced, he is a poor recommendation for the system.

Certainly the training he got failed to teach him right use of reason, and obviously it frustrated him to a damaging degree, leaving him a chronic victim of blind emotional rancor when crossed, and disposed to "blow his top" in adult years, in relation to family, instead of behaving sensibly—all due to fierce resentments ingrained by his early thwarting.

He Is Giving a Bad Example

DOUBTLESS he is unconsciously "touchy" to any discussion of child-rearing methods, since the subject would tend to stir a chain reaction of outrage in his feeling-pattern. Thus his involuntary impulse to put you "in wrong" for differing with his ideas is not surprising. It amounts to making you the goat for his unresolved quarrel with his past—and in relation to you he feels somewhat abler to "fight" than he did then.

Also, of course, the nature of his unconscious grievance is such that he tends childishly—and unawarely—to begrudge his offspring a more comfortable experience, or more liberal terms of security and discipline, than he had growing-up. And if the children's reactions to your considerate philosophy seem rudely unappreciative at times, he can't say he's not to blame.

Children assimilate the example of both parents, when consistently exposed to their attitudes; and if he is sharply contemptuous or bitterly critical of your views in their hearng, he may expect them to pick up the trait—and he'll be morally liable for that. However, if the children do well in school, and are well behaved and well-liked wherever they go, your policy is paying dividends, despite his resistance. But I hope, for the greater happiness of all concerned, that he'll take profit from this discussion.

Tobe Says:

Tiniest Hats Smartest

Every one is wearing her hair short this year—every one except a few die-hards who certainly look old-hat with their long flowing locks.

The smart young girls wear a sleek, closely cropped cut with softly waved ends; but most of us have a fluff of little curls that are very easy to take care of.

So of course the fall hats are small, and the tinier they are the smarter they look. The close fitting helmet cap is the newest fashion for those of you who can wear it. But little berets, little pill boxes, tiny tricornes, are just as smart and are every woman's hats. Even the beloved calot is back—there never was a more popular hat than that.

About Birthday Party

My little boy will be 5 years old in August and I would like to give him a little party. What would you suggest in the way of games or entertainment?
E. T.

Plan a Going-to-School Party for your about-to-be 5-year-old! Most 5-year-olds are anxiosuly looking forward to "real school" and August is the month all children are getting ready to go.

The invitations could be just a simple note written as an announcement. Something like this:

School Opens, August 25.
Hours 3 to 5 p. m.
Meet at Johnny Ward's house your address

One of the mothers or the hostess wil act as "teacher" and meet the students as they arrive. The school room should be arranged in advance with chairs in straight rows or a circle and a blackboard. When the students have all arrived, explain that "we" are going to play school and start right off by "morning exercises." This could be "Follow the Leader" marched to brisk music on the piano or record player. In "Follow the Leader" the group marches single file behind a leader (an older child) and everyone does what the leader does such as holding hands over head, skipping, crawling, etc. This game could take the children out-of-doors and back in.

When the game is over, reassemble in chairs for the "Art Lesson." For this, provide the children with colorful nickel school tablets and crayons and ask them to each draw a picture. The teacher will circulate to "help" and keep them going. Don't allow too much time and when finished thumb tack the pictures onto the wall or pin onto the curtains around the room for display.

After the art lesson, have "recess." If the weather is fair they could go out of doors and play organized games like drop the handkerchief. Or, you may wish to gather the children around for a short story hour to quiet them a bit before refreshments.

For refreshments you could serve the traditional ice cream and cake or you could pass bottled chocolate milk with straws (just like they do at school) and cup cakes—each with a candle.

Favors could be school supplies, pencils, crayons or tablets.

How can I remove odors from plumbing fixtures in an old house? Scrubbing and ordinary disinfectants seem to have no effect. Soda is temporarily beneficial, but not for long. What would you suggest?
A. B.

Sometimes this type of odor comes from cracks in the floor around the exterior of the fixtures and the pipes leading to them. To eliminate it, wash every part of the fixtures, inside and out, and the floor around them with a solution of household bleach and water. Household bleach is a very good deodorant. Use one cup bleach to a gallon of soapy water. Be sure to get the solution into the cracks and crevices and let it stand to soak in. Also, pour one-half cup of undiluted bleach and one-fourth cup of vinegar into the fixture and let it stand overnight. Repeat the entire treatment until the odor is gone.

I have an old chair that was exposed to the weather over a long period of time thereby having no finish whatsoever left. The wood is a very soft wood. How should the chair be treated to get a lustrous finish, preferably without varnish?
R. P. V. V.

The chair could be finished either with shellac or linseed oil. Before applying the finish, however, the surface should be well sanded with fine sandpaper until the wood is satin smooth. Wipe away any dust which remains by going over the chair with a cloth dampened with turpentine.

To apply a shellac finish, thin fresh orange shellac with an equal part of denatured alcohol and apply with a brush or pad of cloth. Apply four or five coats, one immediately following the other. Allow to dry for 24 hours and finish by applying paste wax, well rubbed.

The linseed oil finish is one which improves in appearance with use and is very durable. Just apply as much of the oil to the freshly sanded wood as it will take. Let stand several hours and wipe off any excess. Rub the surface daily and after several days apply more oil, continuing to rub daily. The oil applications are made until no more is absorbed. Frequent and prolonged rubbing brings up the lustre and makes the finish lovely.

How would you advise cleaning very soiled and stained extra-heavy aluminum pots and pans? Also, should lightweight aluminum muffin pans be cleaned by the same process?—R. P. V. Y.

Boiling the utensils in a solution of two teaspoons of cream of tartar to one quart of water will brighten them. If the utensils are too large to boil in the solution, place the solution in the inside of them to brighten the interior. Another good way to brighten aluminum is to scour it with fine steel wool soap pads. If one of these pads is kept handy at your sink, each time the utensils are washed it is easy to give it a little scouring. Using this method, in only a few days it will begin to gleam.

The same method can be used to clean muffin pans. With baking pans it is particularly important to scour the outsides with steel wool each time they are washed to remove the grease, which if left on, would burn and discolor the next time they are heated.

Child Needs Guidance, Not Punishment

By Myrtle Meyer Eldred

You've heard innumerable persons says, "Oh, I have no use for these new ideas about child-rearing, children do just as they please."

This is one of those confused statements which the uninitiated swallow and repeat. Usually the person talking is past the child-rearing age, or has never had any children.

What they do not recognize is that the more a parent knows about how children act and why they act as they do, the less reason there is for drastic, painful punishments. Discipline they need, but discipline is another concept entirely.

Life itself is a discipline, for in living everyone discovers that he cannot do as he pleases and live in society. Society just won't permit it.

Parent Is Guide

The parent is the child's guide and teacher in what kind of behavior society will permit and it's obvious, when that is recognized, that no child can do as he pleases in any home. There are bound to be penalties for conduct which displeases the rest of the family or is opposed to what is good for everyone, in or out of the family.

But, the emphasis today is different. Now, we do not try to beat children into a mold of behavior which is devised and believed convenient for the parent. In the old days, when a parent literally was punished by making the child suffer physically for it.

Today the child needs the same guidance; he may need some punishment for flagrant meanness, willfulness or disobedience, but it may not be in the form of whipping or slapping; it may be merely an explanation, or a temporary isolation from the family or friends, or a deprivation of some treat; something which will impress the child with the nature of his misconduct, but without making him antagonistic toward the authority which is imposing the punishment.

Tell Them Why

It is the duty of parents to act in ays which the child can imitate. It is their obligation to tell the child what he can and cannot do—and children respect parents who are firm in upholding right principles. It is essential to interpret right conduct to children so they know why they are being asked to act in this particular way.

And, most of all, parents must understand growth and development of children so that they are familiar with the type of conduct which accompanies each stage. Then, they will be much more lenient with natural behavior, without altering one whit their zeal in upholding the right and the proper. There is a difference.

Gloucester Gourmets Justly Proud of Fish Dishes

By Harriet Jean Anderson

CLASPED in a lobster-claw of land is picturesque Cape Ann jutting from the north shore. "The Cape Ann Trail" is beloved by tourists, artists and writers alike for its beauty, its historical seaport towns, its charm. City-bound vacationers are flocking there this month to enjoy days filled with fishing, bathing, sightseeing and eating.

Food there is aplenty all along the trail in small taverns, inns, hotels and restaurants. Fish is the feature, as you may imagine, in spots like Gloucester and Rockport. Famed for their fishing catch, Gloucester fishermen today bring in huge loads of ocean perch as a fish specialty—rose colored, tender and sweet, it is a gourmet's favorite.

Near the well-known statue depicting the Gloucester Fisherman as a memorial to "they that go down to the sea in ships" is the Gloucester Tavern, formerly an old windmill, located on the water's edge with the surf pounding day and night at the seawalls. Food there is well cooked and well served. Perch turbans are a guest's choice.

Cooked on a Forge

Twenty minutes from Gloucester is The Blacksmith Shop in Rockport. You will enjoy the steaks, fish, lobsters and chops served from the open fire of the blacksmith forge under the supervision of Owner Melissa Collins Smith. So many visitors ask for her recipes that she has published a cookbook—three of her own recipes we give you here, her chocolate souffle, bread and her stuffed broiled lobster.

At Rocky Neck overlooking Smith's Cove is The Studio, a remodeled fish house built in 1880 and recently an artist's studio converted into a restaurant. Chef Bill Myett turns out delicious seafood platers as a food come-on.

Originating in Rockport is Anadama Bread, first made by a local fisherman whose lazy wife always gave him steamed corn meal mush and molasses for dinner. Returning home one night he could stand the mush no longer, and made it into a bread, saying "Anna, damn her." Surprised was he when it turned out so good!

Take a trip, if you can, but if not—stay home and cook Cape Ann favorites.

Rockport Broiled Lobster

2 lobsters (1¾ pounds each)
1/3 cup clam broth
2 tablespoons sherry wine
½ cup bread crumbs
1 tablespoon paprika
2 tablespoons butter, melted
¼ teaspoon salt
Dash of pepper

To split lobsters, cross the large claws and hold firmly with left hand; insert a sharp pointed knife at the head and then split the shell the entire underneath length of the body and tail. Remove the stomach and intestinal canal and small sac just back of the head. Crack the claw shells with a mallet. Fill the cavity in the head with the dressing made as follows: Pour clam broth and sherry over crumbs. Blend paprika with butter and seasonings. Combine with crumbs. Place stuffed lobsters on oiled broiler pan and broil 8 minutes with flesh side up. Turn and broil 6 minutes on shell side. Serve with melted butter and section of lemon. Garnish with claws. Yield: 4 portions.

CHOCOLATE SOUFFLE

BLACKSMITH SHOP

Chocolate Souffle

3 tablespoons butter or margarine
3 tablespoons flour
¾ cup milk
4 ounces dark sweet chocolate
½ ounce bitter chocolate
5 tablespoons strong coffee (or ½ water and ½ rum)
5 tablespoons granulated sugar
5 egg yolks
5 egg whites, stiffly beaten
Confectioners' sugar
1 egg, separated
3 tablespoons granulated sugar
1 cup whipped cream

In a heavy saucepan melt the butter and quickly stir in the flour. Slowly add the milk, stirring constantly. Stir until the consistency of heavy cream but do not boil. Remove; add the chocolate melted over hot water with the cold coffee or rum and water. Add the sugar and egg yolks; blend well. Fold in the egg whites, which have been beaten very stiff, using a folding motion with a spatula. Quickly turn into a greased souffle dish dusted with granulated sugar. Tie a band of heavy waxed paper around the dish to increase the height to about 6 inches. Immediately bake 35 minutes in a moderate oven (350 degrees F.). Carefully remove the paper, dust with confectioners' sugar and serve at once.

To make a sauce to accompany the souffle: Beat the egg yolk well, add the 3 tablespoons sugar, fold in the stiffly beaten egg white and the cup of whipped cream. Yield: 4 to 6 portions.

ANADAMA BREAD

2 cups boiling water
2 tablespoons shortening
½ cup dark molasses
1 teaspoon salt
1 envelope granulated yeast
½ cup warm water
5 cups bread flour (about)

Stir the corn meal slowly into the boiling water in top of double boiler and let steam very slowly over boiling water for 1 hour. Add shortening, molasses and salt. Cool. When lukewarm, add the yeast which has been sprinkled on top of the warm water and allowed to dissolve. Add enough flour to make a regular stiff bread dough. Knead on a lightly floured board for 10 minutes. Form into a ball, lightly grease the top, place in a bowl and let stand covered in a warm place until it rises to more than double its size, about 2 hours. Shape nto 2 loaves and place in bread pans and let rise until light. Bake in hot oven (400 degrees F.) 1 hour, or until done. Yield: 2 loaves of bread.

GLOUCESTER PERCH TURBANS

Wrap 12 small ocean perch fillets (fresh or frozen) turban style around 12 medium-sized cooked shrimp and fasten with a toothpick. Place fillets in a saucepan and add 1 cup boiling water. Poach in simmering water 5 to 8 minutes, or until perch is tender. Serve with a sauce made by combining 1 cup thick white sauce, ¼ cup light cream, 6 finely-diced shrimp sauteed in butter, and 1½ tablespoons sherry. Season to taste and pour over turbans. Yield: 4 portions.

CAPE ANN BOUILLABAISSE

1 carrot, minced
3 onions, minced
3 pounds ocean perch fillets, cut up
1 bay leaf
1 cup canned tomato pulp
3 cups fish stock
1 dozen oysters or clams
1 cup cooked shrimp or lobster meat
2 pimientos, minced
2 teaspoons salt
1/3 teaspoon paprika
2 tablespoons lemon juice

Heat the oil in a large heavy saucepan and cook the carrot and onions in it for 5 minutes. Add fish and bay leaf. Cook 5 minutes and add drained tomato pulp and fish stock. Cover and simmer without boiling for 20 minutes, or until fish is tender. Add remaining ingredients. Heat thoroughly and serve in soup plates, ladling the bouillabaisse over toast wedges and sprinkling chopped parsley over the surface. Yield: 6 portions.

Tips on Using Extra Egg Whites and Yolks

Extra egg whites and yolks are among the familiar cooking leftovers which thrifty housewives often ask how to use to best advantage.

Food scientists of the United States Department of Agriculture say it is best to use them promptly and keep them covered in the refrigerator while they wait. Cover unbroken yolks with water. Keep whites or broken yolks in a tightly covered jar or dish.

Either an extra white or an extra yolk may be added to scrambled eggs, custard, cheese sauce, whole eggs. cooked salad dressing, the egg-and-milk mixture for French toast, or for coating croquettes, sliced tomatoes or eggplant before frying. A white custard, smooth and usually firm, may be made by using four egg whites in place of two eggs called for in a recipe. A custard with a deep yellow color may be made by using two yolks for each whole egg in the recipe and all yolks as well as with sugar

Extra whites have a great variety of uses. For example, in cheese or vegetable souffle or in chocolate souffle for dessert, six egg whites may be used in place of four eggs. In baked puddings, three whites may replace two eggs. Extra whites also may be used in old-fashioned snow pudding. Fruit whips—nutritious desserts for custards, may be made with whites or all yolks as well as with sugar combining with strained fruit. baking slightly longer. Cakes, like young and old in the family—are made by whipping whites with

Bluefish Cookery

Parodying a perennially popular song, "Who put the bluefish in Mrs. Murphy's market basket?" it is quite likely that Mrs. Murphy put it there herself. For bluefish are plentiful this year.

The size is right, this season, too. There are three-quarter pounders for single portions and five-pounders for families of six or seven. Here is how Gabriel Lugot of the Waldorf-Astoria treats bluefish:

Fillet of Bluefish Indian River

Prepare bouillon by cooking thin sliced carrots and onions in well-seasoned fish stock and white wine for 20 minutes. Add a fillet of bluefish and poach 4 minutes. Remove fish and cool. Serve with some of the vegetables cooked in the bouillon. Mash a small amount of avocado pear and mix with 2/3 mayonnaise, 1/3 catsup, and a few fresh chopped chives. Use as a garnish for the fish.

For those who prefer simpler preparation, have the retailer split a bluefish. Then broil it, skin side down, eight minutes under full flame, keeping the fish three inches from the flame. Baste it when it is put under the flame and again just before it is finished. Use butter or margarine.

DP Camp Itself Overwhelms Plot

By Richard L. Coe

A WORLD OUR lucky one scarcely realizes exists is the setting for "The Girl in the Painting," at the Playhouse.

This film, starring Mai Zetterling, is set in the Displaced Persons camps of Germany and, though by the nature of things its story is the exception rather than the rule, it has an engrossing quality.

For the emotional impact of thousands of persons, hearded like animals into pathetic quarters, is a ghastly reflection on civilization. "The Search" took us into such a world, too, you may recall, and showed us how a little Czech boy found his mother.

"The Girl in the Painting" gives us much the same picture from the British point of view and at a later time than "The Search." The story is told by a British officer who happens on the painting of a young girl at a London exhibition.

By chance the man next to him gives a start of shock, for in the painting he recognizes the daughter he has not seen for nine years, when she was but a child. Together they track down the painter, a man at death's door who expires just as he gives them a clew to his subject's name.

Threading his way through the DP camps, the major finally finds the girl, the victim of a shattered mind whose pose as the daughter of a secretie DP almost convinces the officer that she cannot be the daughter of his London acquaintance. By making a camp gossip talk, with cigarette bribery, the girl's background—finally is uncovered. It's a slightly sensational finale, for the man she's innocenty been protecting is a high-ranking Nazi, but factual disclosurse since the war are no less incredible.

Naturally, flashback has to play a role in such a story and on occasion it becomes as thorny a technique as usual. Once more, through people's stories of what they have seen, we are shown things they couldn't possibly have viewed. While such scenes lend dramatic value per se, they upset what presumably is a device to enhance credulity.

The acting is of capable order, restrained, suggestive of inner emotions. Miss Zetterling gives the lost girl a childlike charm quite at the opposite end of the pole from her amusing sketch of a gambling lass in "Quartet."

But story and acting inevitably are overshadowed by the setting and the luckless thousands who must exist in such camps while an unthinking, barbaric world furthers its hates, mistrusts and fears. It is on depicting this brutal insanity that "The Girl in the Picture" rests its case.

"THE GIRL IN THE PAINTING." J. Arthur Rank release produced by Antony Darnborough. Screen play by Frank Harvey, jr., and Muriel and Sydney Box. Music by Benjamin Frankel Directed by Terence Fisher. At the Playhouse.

Suicide's Body Found With Note

Detroit, Aug. 23 (AP).—Searchers found the bullet-pierced body of a house painter late today with a note telling where they would discover the little niece he said he killed.

In the note, police said, Arthur Mayer, 30, stated he had thrown Barbara Jean Aberl, 9, from a dam. She had been missing since August 12. Officers turned the search toward the dam.

The hunt began Sunday when it was learned Mayer had not taken the girl to visit relatives. That is the reason he gave her parents when he gained their consent to drive away with her.

Barbara's sister told police today that Mayer had tried to take indecent liberties with her last summer.

Ex-Captain Who Vanished Here Seized in Germany

Frankfurt, Aug. 23 (AP).—A former U. S. Army captain who disappeared from Walter Reed Hospital in Washington has been arrested near Cologne, Germany, U. S. Army headquarters announced today.

The Army identified him as Louis F. Herzog, 39, whose wife and two children live in Lebanon, Pa.

He was arrested at the home of a German whose daughter he knew while serving in Vienna, the Army announcement said.

The Army's announcement said the Austrian-born Herzog had been relieved from duty as an officer by reason of physical disability and was in Walter Reed Hospital on leave status awaiting retirement when he disappeared.

Investigation disclosed he flew to Germany July 16. He was traced to the Cologne area, the Army announced, by records showing he had sent gift packages to a German there and had made transatlantic telephone calls to the German's daughter in Vienna.

Army agents reported the daughter had obtained a permit to join her father near Cologne and had left Vienna in June.

Bank Loan To Aid Group In CTC Deal

By S. Oliver Goodman

A bank loan of $1,250,000 has been arranged by Louis E. Wolfson and his eight associates to help finance the purchase of controlling stock interest in Capital Transit Co.

This was disclosed yesterday in an affidavit filed by the Wolfson group with the Interstate Commerce Commission.

The loan, by an unrevealed bank, would be made at 3 per cent upon a personal note indorsed by each of the applicants, secured by the Capital Transit stock as collateral and payable within the next 12 months.

The price of the 109,458 shares, at $20 a share, will be $2,189,160 to be paid to the North American Co.

Wolfson said that the balance of $939,160 will be paid in cash by him and his associates. He already has put up $250,000 as a deposit on the purchase.

Wolfson also filed a balance sheet showing total assets of $6,252,225 as of August 1, 1949, and liabilities of $2,054,297. His net worth was placed at $4,197,927.

When the Florida group originally applied for approval by the ICC and the Securities and Exchange Commission, it was announced that Wolfson and his associates would purchase the following proportionate amounts of the 109,458-share block of transit shares:

L. E. Wolfson 50,458 shares; Sam W., Saul and Cecil, 12,500 each; J. A. B. Broadwater 5000; Jack Surasky 5000; E. B. Gerbert 4500; A. J. Rosenthal 2000; Doran Weinstein 5000.

In yesterday's affidavit, Wolfson said that each of his associates would pay for the stock in proportion to their purchases.

CLARIFICATION:- Retailers who sell equipment on a time-payment basis are advised that "carrying charges for handling the payments as a part of the sales price of the merchandise" are subject to the District of Columbia sales tax. The decision was given by A. F. Brooke, sales tax administrator, in response to a query by the Electric Institute of Washington.

SPEAKER: William L. Porte, top Washington salesman of the Mutual Life Insurance Co. of New York, is busy this week telling others how to do it. Yesterday he addressed 125 leading field representatives of his company at an educational conference at the Greenbrier, White Sulphur Springs, W. Va.

Porte

Later this week, he'll speak before another honor group at the Shoreham Hotel here. More than 250 managers, and field underwriters are scheduled to open a conference here Thursday.

SEARS NET OFF: Sears, Roebuck & Co. reported net income of $43,106,509 or $1.40 a common share for the 24 weeks ended July 16, compared with $51,499,010 or $2.18 a share in the same 1948 period. Sales were $901,597,376 through July 16, a decrease of $61,506,376 from a year ago, the company said.

ODD LOTS: Production of the "wonder drug" streptomycin during the first half of 1949 equaled the total production for all 1948 . . . Confusion compounded: Decca Records will spin at 33 1/3 revolutions a minute; Columbia at 33 1/3; RCA Victor at 45; Capitol at 45 and 33 1/3; the 'big four' also will produce the standard 78 rpm . . . A 12-million-dollar pulp mill, largest in the world, has been opened by Abitibi Power & Paper Co. in northern Ontario . . . Dresser Industries, Inc., of Cleveland reports new export orders from Yugoslavia, Turkey, Italy and Argentina for oil and gas producing equipment . . . Business failures in week ended August 18 increased to 193 from 176 in previous week and 94 same 1948 week.

ENROLLMENTS: The Life Insurance Institute has opened the books for registration for 1949-50 courses to aid local agents in attaining "Chartered Life Underwriter" objectives. Sponsors are the District of Columbia Life Underwriters Association and the D. C. Chapter of American Society of Chartered Life Underwriters. Joe Silverman is the registrar and courses are expected to start early in October.

MARYLAND ISSUES: Among the Maryland flotations due this year is the $800,000 in hospital bonds that Prince Georges County is putting up for award today. Other counties in the Free State plan issues after Labor Day as follows: one million dollars worth by Cecil County; $900,000 by Anne Arundel County and $900,000 by Talbot County. The State of Maryland will be along later this year with an offering of at least $4,500,000 in Chesapeake Bay Bridge revenue bonds may reach the market in the latter part of September.

EARNINGS: Dan River Mills, Inc., of Virginia reported net income of $1,474,538 or 91 cents a common share for the 26 weeks ended July 31, against $8,229,462 or $5.41 a share in the same 1948 period. Other earnings reports:

U. S. Reports

Business Held to Even Keel in July

By the United Press

The Department of Commerce reported yesterday that business stayed on an even keel during July, enlivened by bright spots in the construction and automobile industries and by new orders to manufacturers.

The Office of Business Economics said in its monthly survey that there was a "substantial" advance in the volume of construction, most of it in residential building. The increase raised the amount above the record rate of last year.

"In other sectors of the economy—industrial production, prices retail sales and employment—changes during July and early August were small, after allowance for seasonal factors," it said.

Retail sales were seasonally lower, but the volume of goods sold was about the same as last year after lower prices were taken into consideration. Wholesale prices continued "moderately" downward as a result of falling farm prices.

But industrial prices levelled off after a steady decline that started last fall, and consumer prices rose slightly as higher rents and greater than seasonal advances for meat offset a drop in prices for textiles and house furnishings.

The department reported that business men continued to cut down their inventories, reflecting a "cautious purchasing policy" that has been followed in general since the end of last year. But at the same time there was "some" pickup from the low levels of early spring in the number of new orders received by manufacturers.

The advance in new orders amounted to eight per cent in May and June which, the department said, "represented the first significant break in this general downward trend since early fall." The rise affected nearly all industries and in cotton textiles and a few others it "exceeded the level of output by an appreciable margin."

Acting Secretary Named

Richmond, Va., Aug. 23 (AP).—Appointment of William Bailey Wilkinson, 30, as acting secretary of the Alcoholic Beverage Control Board, was announced today by John W. Hardy, the chairman. He succeeds John P. McLaughlin, who died Monday. He has served as an assistant to McLaughlin for about five months.

By the United Press

Forty-six per cent of the wealth of all the nation's manufacturers is concentrated in 113 corporations, the Federal Trade Commission reported yesterday.

Other than saying this concentration of economic power is "a subject in which the commission has long been interested," the report was issued without comment.

It was released as Commissioner Lowell B Mason and Economist John M. Blair prepared to testify today before a special House subcommittee on monopoly.

The 113 manufacturers, each with assets of more than $100 million, hold $16,093,000,000 of net capital assets, the report said. This covers property, plants and equipment.

In all there are 26 industry groups, with economic concentration ranging from three firms controlling 100 per cent of the aluminum industry, to 15 footwear manufacturers holding 57.5 per cent of the assets in their field.

As for individual firms, the report said, one manufacturer of linoleum dominates that industry with 57.9 per cent of the assets. But this is an extreme case, the cimmission added.

Where Average Falls

The average falls somewhere between that concentration and the 8.4 per cent of all assets in the drug and medicine field which one company holds.

In addition to the complete control held in the aluminum industry by three firms, the commission found that in each case a trio of firms also holds 95.3 per cent of the tin can and other tinware industry; 92.1 per cent of linoleum; 88.5 per cent of copper smelting and refining; 77.6 per cent of cigarettes; 72.4 per cent of distilled liquors; 77.2 per cent of plumbing equipment and supplies; 70.3 per cent of rubber tires and tubes; 69.5 per cent of office and store machines and devices; 68.7 per cent of automobiles; 67.7 per cent of biscuits, crackers and pretzels; 66.6 per cent of agricultural machinery, and 64 per cent of meat products.

To Compete for Falls Church Post

La Rue Van Meter, Falls Church City attorney and commissioner of revenue, and A. Burke Hertz, attorney, both announced their candidacies yesterday for the revenue commissioner post in the city's November election.

City Treasurer James E. Ferguson declared his candidacy for another term. Deadline for filing for both offices is September 10.

Van Meter was appointed by the city council to his present posts last year when the offices were created.

Hertz has never before sought political office. During the recent Virginia gubernatorial contest he was active as a committee chairman in the Fairfax Miller-for-Governor campaign.

Power Line Fund Restored In Money Bill

By the United Press

Private power interests were dealt a setback yesterday when the Senate restored to the Interior Department appropriation bill money to build transmission lines in the Southwest.

The Senate also restored $70,000 to the Southeastern Power Administration to finance disposal of power from Southern flood-control dams.

Proponents of the transmission lines said appropriation of the money would give the Southwestern Power Administration a bargaining hand in negotiating with private utilities for the transmission of power from Government dams to consumers in Oklahoma, Texas and Arkansas.

Without such an appropriation, they argued, the private companies could stall on signing contracts, and power produced by the Denison and Norfolk dams might be wasted.

The Senate vote in restoring a committee cut of $5,125,980 to a House-approved appropriation of nine million dollars was 45 to 38.

Administration leaders in the Senate thought the action opened the way to restoring other cuts made to reclamation and power project funds for California, Idaho, Colorado and Montana.

The vote gave SPA Administrator Douglas Wright four million dollars cash for fiscal 1950 and five million dollars in contract authority to build the transmission lines.

3 Claim Reward For Prisoner Who Died Before Trial

Pikeville, Ky., Aug. 23 (AP).—Three Virginians have laid claim to the reward offered for the arrest of Blaine Edgar Jones, confessed slayer who hanged himself on the eve of his murder trial.

Circuit Judge E. D. Stephenson said today he had received the claims from three men instrumental in Jones' arrest last July 19. The reward money reportedly totaled $1115. But Judge Stephenson said he had received only $615 and the rightful claimant would not be determined until after a hearing during the September court term.

He identified those who seek the reward as Raymond H. Wilson, guard at the Bland County, Va., correctional farm; Deputy Sheriff Charles H. Swayze of Wythe County., and an unidentified merchant at Cripple Creek, Va.

Chicago Grain

Chicago, Aug. 23 (AP).—A two-way market in wheat provided just about all the interest in grain dealings on the Board of Trade today. The nearby wheat futures advanced, September jumping nearly 2 cents, while the distant deliveries slumped.

As for the rest of the market, it might just as well not have opened. No contract in any other pit ended with a gain or loss of more than ½ cent. The trading pace limped along all day. Public interest in the market fell further, leaving dealings in the hands of local traders.

Wheat closed ⅞ lower to 1⅞ higher, corn was ½ lower to ¼ higher, oats were unchanged to ¼ higher, rye was ¼ to ½ higher, soybeans were ¼ to ½ higher and lard was unchanged to 7 cents a hundred pounds lower, September 12.50.

Cash and elevator interests bought near-by wheat deliveries, which gave much credence to an unconfirmed trade rumor that the Commodity Credit Corporation had again raised its bid price for cash red wheat. Presumably the elevator houses had made sales to the CCC and were lifting their hedges placed in the market when they acquired the cash grain.

Parents Can Be Rude, Too

Most of us don't like rude children. It makes us angry to have them interrupt, be too loud, or in other ways show lack of consideration for those around them. But, far too often, we ourselves are rude to our own children.

A youngster rushes in from school all excited about something that has happened. In the middle of the story he is telling us we break in and say, "How did you get that grease on your shirt?" Or we make some remark that has nothing to do with what he is saying. By doing so, of course, we tell him very clearly that we don't think the things he is talking about are at all important. It's a pretty rude procedure when you stop to think of it. We wouldn't act that way toward a stranger.

It pays to check up on ourselves now and again with a simple question, "Do I show my child the same respect and consideration as I expect from him?" If we can come through with an affirmative answer most of the time, we can be pretty sure that he will pick up the practice from us and be a youngster of whose behavior we can be proud.

The pitcher saw Cobb unpack his bags, and noticed that one large bag contained many boxes of fine cigars . . . "Lefty," Cobb told him, "if you win tomorrow's game . . ." Then Cobb pointed to Grove and to the cigars. Grove pitched the next day, and won—allowing the Tigers only one run. That night, in their room, Cobb opened his large bagful of cigars, and offered one cigar to Grove, who seemed disappointed . . . "The season's still young," Cobb explained, "and I want 'em to last."

Nephew Hints Clew in Case of Slain Medium

A nephew working in the Senate restaurant in the United States Capitol indicated yesterday that he may be able to help solve the baffling murder of his spiritualist aunt in Baltimore two weeks ago.

The 38-year-old man, a former Navy cook and dietitian, asked that his name be withheld. He said he plans to go to Baltimore Sunday to "check a few angles" that may help find the murderer.

Police have made little progress intracking down the slayer of Mrs. Emma A. Kefalos, 56-year-old crystal gazer and purveyor of love potions. She was bound, beaten and strangled in her strawberry-tinted seance chamber over a waterfront lunchroom on August 8.

The nephew claimed that his aunt made a will when he went into the service and named him as sole beneficiary. He said he understood the will has not been found.

Police reported the woman's apartment was ransacked at the time of the slaying, but almost $2000 worth of cash and savings stamps was left behind.

The nephew said he worked with Mrs. Kefalos late in 1946 and early in 1947 in running the downstairs lunchroom. Later she began leasing the restaurant space. He offered information that included the following:

Any struggle in the Kefalos apartment would have been heard in the lunchroom, especially since the floors are creaky.

The woman was terrified of living alone. When anyone knocked at the front door, she peered through a window, only letting in those known to her.

She wanted to get the restaurant space back and to that end kept raising the rent.

The nephew said police checked to find out if he worked the day of the murder, which he said he did. But police have not questioned him directly, he said. After he has made his "checks" Sunday, he said he would be glad to volunteer to help police.

Clothing Prices To Be Reduced In Great Britain

London, Aug. 23 (AP).—Britain's Labor government, waving aside protests from dealers, said tonight it will order clothing price cuts in a few days.

The statement came in the face of angry opposition from spokesmen for 250,000 shopkeepers and 10,000 dry goods men.

The Government Board of Trade said its president, Harold Wilson, would take the protests into consideration but that he proposed to make the necessary orders in the next few days.

The cuts would reduce the retail price of utility garments and textiles a flat 5 per cent. Utility goods are a low-priced line on which the government pays a subsidy to hold down the cost of living.

Belloise, Ray Finish Training

New York, Aug. 22 (AP).—Welterweight Champion Ray Robinson and belting Steve Belloise completed training today for their 10 round, non-title bout in Yankee Stadium Wednesday night.

After going through a non-boxing eight round workout, Belloise weighed 159 pounds. He will carry about a seven pound edge on Sugar Ray who scaled 152 after boxing three rounds.

Robinson sparred two rounds with the Cocoa Kid at his Pompton Lakes, N. J., camp.

New York's St. Moritz Guests Routed by Fire

New York, Aug. 23 (U.P.).—Fire broke out in the basement of the swank St. Moritz Hotel overlooking Central Park today when a beauty parlor operator dropped a gallon of nail polish remover and it burst into flames.

Hundreds of guests were routed as smoke poured into the main lobby and cafes on the lower floors.

No one was injured seriously. Damage was estimated at $10,000.

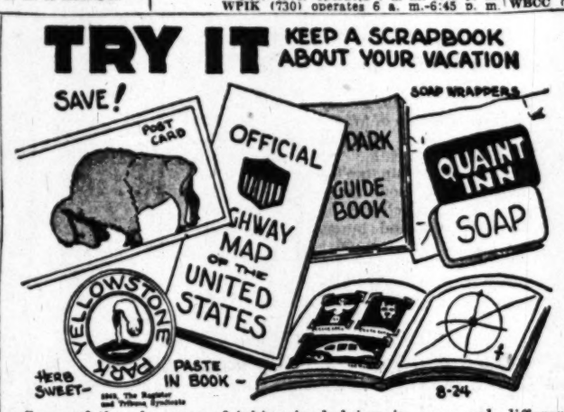
This Funny World

"Not only does he get all of their attention, but look at the size of that wardrobe"

TRY IT KEEP A SCRAPBOOK ABOUT YOUR VACATION



Some of the pleasures of taking a journey are the "memory trips" taken after you return. At that time the exciting experiences are expanded until they become real adventures, and the simple little happenings seem to ripen and mellow as time goes on, until the entire trip becomes a complete book.

To make this memory book start collecting maps, postal cards, guide books and printed matter for a scrap book as you go along on your trip. Even soap wrappers from hotels and motels will hold memories of pleasant nights spent in lodging in new and different places. Most every souvenir shop has gummed windshield stickers picturing attractive features of the area, as well as many folders with the history of the locality. Clippings from local newspapers add to the book, too.

Collect these souvenirs in a box or folder, and when you want to live over your vacation wanderings, paste them in a scrapbook in the proper order and take your trip all over again.

TOMORROW—BAKE BREAD AROUND STICK.

What's The Verdict?

JURY SELECTION

Q. Two Chinese who worked in the same laundry got into an argument over a girl. They went into the alley and dueled with knives. The survivor was charged with first-degree murder. The jury panel included 14 persons of Chinese blood. The prosecutor, exercising 14 of his allotted 20 peremptory challenges, caused all the 14 to be excluded from the jury of 12 whites which convicted the laundry worker of first-degree murder. The convicted man appeals, claiming no error in any ruling of the court but insisting that the arbitrary exclusion of the 14 Chinese deprived him of equal protection of the law. What result?

A. Each side in a criminal case is permitted a certain number of peremptory challenges of jurors. This means the challenger can keep that many persons off the jury, without giving any reason or even having any reason. Thus in the present case, the prosecutor was entitled to eliminate all 14 Chinese.

So the convicted man loses the appeal. This appears to deny him equal protection of the laws, and it is not improbable that the Supreme Court will sometimes change its views in cases like this.

Away From Home

Some families must be apart . . . Throughout the night and day . . . While husbands earn their daily bread . . . In places far away . . . And that requires sacrifice . . . And lonely hours too . . . Until their ships are sailing home . . . And happy dreams come true . . . Their only songs and rainbows are . . . The letters they receive . . . With promises depending on . . . The progress they achieve . . . The weeks and months are endless and . . . The stars are seldom bright . . . For loving lips that cannot meet . . . To kiss and say good-night . . . But all the long and lonely while . . . That they must be apart . . . They share the faith of perfect love . . . That never leaves the heart.

'Pot' Orders 'Kettle' to Stop Being Corny

"These corny jokes must stop," thunders Joe Miller, jr.

"They're as bad as the one about the calf that ran around the silo crying: 'Is my fodder in there?'

"Or the drop of ink that was blue because mother was in the well and father was in the pen."

GIVE-AWAYS

"Marguerite, wandering cat, has courageously concealed five kittens 10 weeks in basement of non-pet apartment house. Unfortunately kittens were gambolling on lawn last night; management prefers they find new homes at once." (Michigan 3011.)

"Two male dogs, 10 months old; will pay for licenses to get them good homes." (Warfield 6172 after 7 p. m.)

"Two adorable, black male kittens with tiny white bibs; 11 weeks old, healthy, housebroken." (Woodley 4392 between 6 and 8 p. m.)

MISCELLANY

Radio circles are buzzing with speculation that big color television developments are in the offing . . . Dave Groves, who drew the cartoons for this space when the column first started, postcards from Acapulco, Mexico, that he's about ready to come home after a wonderful vacation. "These Mexican girls are gorgeous," says Dave . . . Mrs. William C. Powell of 2109 F st. nw., thinks our editor is to be congratulated for adding the "Try It" feature which appears on our radio page. (Hooray for Mrs. Powell. Most folks who like things remain silent; it's usually the people with complaints who write) . . . Mrs. George W. Snyder of 3506 Valley dr., Alexandria, Va., tells me that the Mary and Martha Guild of St. Clements Church of Alexandria puts on a program of movies (cartoons and short subjects) for the small fry each Saturday morning between 10:30 and 11:30. The tap at the box office is 20 cents for the kids and 30 cents for the grownups . . . Ruth H. Lane of 619 N. Jefferson st., Arlington, Va., is dismayed by the story about a woman who reported a mailman for having his collar unbuttoned during the recent hot spell, and even more annoyed by the 150 demerits the poor guy got as a result of that complaint . . . Mrs. Elsie P. Pfleeger of 3100 Taylor st., Mount Rainier, Md., tells me that there was quite a bit of excitement at her house the other day when her son came home with a 17-pound, 35-inch carp he caught above Great Falls. Little 7-year-old Judy studied the fish at length and then piped up: "Daddy, I'll bet you have an awful time peeling that one."

GHOST TO GHOST HOOKUP?

George H. English of the Hay-Adams House asks: "Can't you make up your mind which Roosevelts are on the program?" He refers to our radio log listing of Eleanor and Anna Roosevelt's show.

On August 16, we carried it as "B. & A. Roosevelt." This was "corrected" on the seventeenth to read "F. & A. Roosevelt." On the eighteenth, we finally hit on "E. & A. Roosevelt."

The day it comes up "F. D. R. Roosevelt," I want to be tuned in.

The Washington Merry-Go-Round

Welfare Dept. Plan Still Alive

By Robert S. Allen

Congress hasn't heard the last of Government reorganization plan No. 1 to set up a Department of Welfare.

ALLEN

The Senate's turndown has not cooled President Truman's determination to put the proposal through. He will make another try to get approval.

The President disclosed this in a talk with Representatives Robert Crosser and Wayne Hays of Ohio.

"As long as Government reorganization can be vetoed by either branch of Congress," said Hays, "it will be impossible to effect economy in expenditures. It's the old story of lobby pressure. The lobbies go to work behind the scenes and kill these proposals. That happened when Hoover was President, and what the Senate did on this proposal was more of the same."

"That's true," said Truman, "but they are not scaring me. If the Hoover Commission's magnificent report is to mean anything, it will have to be put into effect. I am going to keep on sending plans for that purpose to Congress. Whenever one is vetoed, I'll send up a revised plan in its place."

Touchy History

House Rules Committee consideration of the arms-for-Europe bill unexpectedly touched off a sharp explosion on American history.

Supporting the measure, Representative Ray Madden (D., Ind.) vigorously criticized former President Herbert Hoover for assailing Administration spending policy.

"The former President was talking out of both sides of his mouth when he said we are spending ourselves into a collectivist state," thundered Madden. "He himself has advocated 30 billion dollars for defense and foreign aid out of a total budget of 42 billion dollars. He talks economy, but he wouldn't cut a cent of the military and foreign-aid expenditures."

"That's an old story," broke in Chairman Adolph Sabath (D., Ill.). "I've heard it many times. I remember as far back as the period after World War I, when the same cries were raised by those who fought to keep us out of the League of Nations. If Congress had not listened to those men, there might not have been a World War II."

Then, pointing at Representative John Davis Lodge (R., Conn.), Sabath added: "There sits the grandson of the man who led the fight against the League—Senator Henry Cabot Lodge."

For a moment Lodge sat in stunned silence. Then, white with anger, he jumped to his feet and shouted, "The record will prove who is right."

Tideland Oil

Senator Joe O'Mahoney (D., Wyo.), chairman of the Interior Affairs Committee, has thrown a monkey wrench into the drive to streamroller through a so-called "compromise" on the tideland oil issue.

He was supposed to sponsor "compromise" legislation in the Senate. But after examining the bills agreed on at secret conferences with California, Texas and Louisiana officials, O'Mahoney refused to have anything to do with them.

Hearings on the measures are scheduled to open today before a House Judiciary Subcommittee, headed by Representative Francis E. Walter (D., Pa.).

One of the measures is an out-and-out grab. It would give the States the bulk of these vast oil reserves that the Supreme Court ruled belong to the Federal Government. The other measure gives the Government a better break. It would divide the proceeds 50-50.

Says O'Mahoney, "I don't consider these bills satisfactory. Early this year, I introduced a bill that would provide Federal control over the management of tideland oil. I have not changed my position on that bill."

The chances of legislation on this issue are remote at this session.

Flashes

The House Ways and Means Committee clamped a tight secrecy ban on the names of the three members who voted against the Social Security liberalization bill. They are Representatives Carl Curtis (R., Nebr.), Noah Mason (R., Ill.), and John Byrnes (R., Wis.).

President Truman was miffed when Senator Arthur Watkins (R., Utah) rushed through the 70-million-dollar measure for the Weber Basin reclamation project without debate. "That's a very big bill to be passed by unanimous consent," the President told Senator Elbert Thomas and Representative Walter Granger of Utah.
